WANT AMERICA TO ENTER INTO PEACE PARLEY

German Program Would Have Effect on Policies of This Nation.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 16.—[Special.]—I am able to state on the highest authority the German government's peace program affecting the interests of the United States. Here it is:

The participation of the United States in the peace congress that will settle the war and endeavor to establish a means of preventing future conflicts.

An international agreement establishing the freedom of the seas in accordance with the declared policy of the United States.

An international agreement limiting the armament of the principal powers of the world and creating a league of nations to enforce peace, as advocated by President Wilson.

ENVOY SEES LANSING.

This disclosure followed a conference between Secretary of State Lansing and Count von Bernstorff, the German ambassador, today. The Teutonic envoy called on the secretary of state to inquire the attitude of the United States toward Germany's peace move and to acquaint him with Berlin's general purposes in making the overtures at this time.

Mr. Lansing informed the ambassador that the Teutonic peace notes would be forwarded to the allies today. He also explained informally the decision of the administration to await further developments before considering an American peace appeal.

FORMAL TERMS NOT GIVEN.

"We did not discuss the terms of peace," said the ambassador as he left the state department. "I have not received any formal terms and the American government knows officially that no formal terms have been proposed. All Germany has suggested is that the belligerents get together and talk. If that proposal is accepted definite terms naturally will be discussed, but till then it will not be proper to mention them. My visit to the secretary was purely for general discussion."

Count von Bernstorff communicated to the American premier the substance of the German peace plans which have been wirelessed from Berlin since Chancellor von Bethmann-Hollweg handed to the neutral nations his overtures for a parley with the allies.

SEEK MEETING IN JANUARY.

Germany hopes to induce the allies to send representatives to a preliminary council of the belligerents at The Hague in January, if possible. The purpose of this meeting would be the exchange of views to ascertain whether there is any possibility of instituting definite peace negotiations before hostilities are resumed on a grand scale in the spring.

If the allies should agree to treat with the central powers it is the intention of the German government to propose that the United States be invited to send a representative to the peace congress.

Germany holds that the United States would be entitled to a representation, because American interests have suffered from the depredations of the belligerents, and technically because the restoration of American extraterritorial rights in Turkey will be a question for consideration by the peace congress.

PACIFIC ISLANDS IMPORTANT.

There is one matter, however, on which the United States might desire to raise a voice in the peace congress. That is the disposition of the Marshall, Ladrone, and Carolina groups of islands in the Pacific ocean captured from Germany by Japan. These islands interpose as a strategic screen between America and the Philippines and their possession would be vastly to the advantage of Japan in the event of war with the United States.

There are many American statesmen who feel that the United States should endeavor in every way possible to bring about an award of these islands to any power except Japan. The Japanese government, however, has no intention of giving up the islands.

It is learned today that the Spanish ambassador and the Swiss minister have advised the United States that their governments will follow the lead of the United States with regard to the attitude neutral governments will take toward the German offer.

French Rout Foe in Wild Stampede North of Verdun

Airmen Harass Enemy with Machine Guns—Gains Increase.

BY FRED B. PITNEY.

(By Cable to The Chicago Tribune.)

PARIS, Dec. 16.—Every foot of the twelve square miles of territory north of Verdun won by the French in their brilliant stroke of yesterday has been maintained.

On the right bank of the Meuse the French obtained two more successes today. The village of Bezon Vaux suffered the fate of its fortifications, which were seized yesterday. And in the Carrieres wood, to the west of Bezon Vaux, the French lines were advanced substantially.

Counter Attack Fails.

The Germans made a desperate assault today against the French positions on Cote du Poivre (Pepper hill), between Vacherauville and Louvemont. Gen. Nivelle stopped the attack with a machine gun barrage fire.

The Germans are now back very close to the line from which they started their present offensive in February of this year. The territory which it took the crown prince eight months to conquer has been recovered by Gen. Nivelle in two short, sharp thrusts—one last summer, extending over three days, and the second yesterday, of less than twenty-four hours' duration. The Verdun front today is virtually what it was on Feb. 25.

STORY OF THE BATTLE.

(By the Associated Press.)

PEPPER HILL, Verdun Front, via Chantilly, Dec. 16.—A short, sharp battle has brought to the French their third smashing victory in two months in the vicinity of Verdun. Every objective point of the French commanders was gained.

Although the Germans offered a desperate defense, the attack was so powerful that there was no withstanding it, with the result that the Germans were pushed back along the whole line.

Thousands of German prisoners poured into the French lines during the day, and large groups are still arriving. More than eighty German cannon were captured or destroyed and many others are known to be buried.

The front over which the offensive was extended was ten kilometers (seven miles) long. The French advance had exceeded an average of three kilometers (two and one-half miles) along the whole front, at various points rushing further out.

Start of the Battle.

The battle began at 10 o'clock yesterday morning, with the left flank of the French opposite Vacherauville and the right flank on Fort Vaux.

As the church clock struck the hour every French gun opened a storm of steel, placing every shot immediately behind the German front line. The French infantry dashed forward and reached the village of Vacherauville, where they drove the Germans from house to house until the village was in their hands.

Advancing beyond the village, the French attacked a German trench known as "Bethmann's bowl," which was pierced after a hard fight and its occupants made prisoners. Then up the slopes of Pepper hill the infantrymen could be seen making methodical progress until, exactly an hour from the start, the twin crests of this height had been swept clear of Germans and the rockets announced the French were established there.

Germans Are Flanked.

In the meantime the Germans on the opposing slope had been taken in the rear by a flank movement. The surprize was so great that both the infantrymen and the gunners attempted to flee, and French aviators turned the flight into a rout by descending to withing a hundred yards of the earth and

BOY'S SLAYER MAY BE 'GUILTY'

Jury's Questions Indicate Disposition to Give Him a Light Term.

It is possible that Nicholas Moga, Saddle and Cycle club gardener accused of the murder of 15 year old William Ulrey, may know his fate today. Early this morning the jury, which had been out fourteen hours, sent out the following written questions:

Is it in the power of the jury to fix the term of imprisonment in case the jury finds the defendant guilty?

Can the jury recommend a minimum sentence?

Is it probable that the defendant must serve a long term if found guilty?

Lawyer Objects to Answer.

The judge consulted the lawyers in the case. The questions so clearly indicated that the case was going against Moga that Attorney A. M. Ehrlich objected to giving further instructions. Assistant State's Attorney Murphy, however, asked leave to present precedents for further instructions, and the judge waited while he hunted them up, declining meanwhile to act.

Father Awaits Verdict.

Frank H. Ulrey, father of the slain boy, remained in court. He said he would not leave the courtroom until he knew what disposition was to be made of the man who slew his son.

To a TRIBUNE reporter he admitted that several times during the trial it was with difficulty that he restrained himself from exacting prompt vengeance with his own hands of Moga for the dead boy.

"BUFFALO BILL" SERIOUSLY ILL AT KIN'S DENVER HOME.

Physician Says Famous Scout Is Suffering from General Breakdown—Passes Bad Night.

Denver, Colo., Dec. 16.—Col. William F. Cody (Buffalo Bill) is seriously ill here at the home of his sister, Mrs. May Decker, according to his physician, Dr. J. H. Fast.

Col. Cody passed a bad night, and it is understood members of his family have been summoned from his ranch at Cody, Wyo.

He is suffering a general breakdown, according to the physician.

DEMANDS SANTA CHASTISE A YOUTHFUL UNBELIEVER.

Young Letter Writer Asks St. Nick to Bring Whip Along When He Calls on Mathilda of Hein Place.

Little "C. A. M." turned snitcher and as proof absolute that there is such a person as Santa Claus he begs that the latter personally pay a visit to the home of his unbelieving playmate, Mathilda ——— on Hein place and bring, among other things, a whip.

His letter, one of many received yesterday by Assistant Postmaster John Hubbard, Santa's local agent, reads:

"Mathilda ——— of ——— Hein place does not believe in you and I tried to convince her there is such a man as Santa Claus. I would like you to come and visit her Christmas. She would like to have you bring her something.

"Don't forget to bring your whip along and give her a good beating."

The writer makes no appeal in his own behalf.

LLOYD-GEORGE GAINING, BUT MAY NOT SPEAK ON TUESDAY

Believed Physicians Will Taboo Address to House of Commons—British Peace Reply Not Ready.

LONDON, Dec. 16.—It appears doubtful whether Premier David Lloyd-George will be able to go before the house of commons on Tuesday.

He is making steady progress toward recovery, but it is considered unlikely that his physicians will allow him to speak next week, as his voice is affected.

At any rate it is not expected that the government will be by that time in a position to make a statement regarding the German peace proposals.

Girl of 12 Stages Love Adventure; Kisses or Tears?

Whatever happened to Margaret Andrews in the way of punishment took place after the reporter departed last night—too late to chronicle in this edition.

Her father, Theodore Andrews, keeps a saloon at Halsted and Madison streets and doesn't reach home at 608 North Clark street until late.

"Dad might kiss me and forgive me," said Margaret, who is blue eyed and dimpled and 12 years old. "But then, he might use the back of a brush. That's what I'm afraid of."

'Twas All an Accident.

The beginning of Margaret's adventure was an accident. She opened a bureau drawer, looking for a pink ribbon to tie in her hair, and saw $450 staring her in the face. It was her dad's money, with which he was going to pay his saloon rent. It looked so easy that Margaret simply took it.

"My mamma thinks Billy Countryman is too old for me," Margaret told little Miss Bunker in the Ontario hotel on her way downtown, "but I don't think so, and—neither does Billy. So that settles it. I have decided to go to Buda, Ill., to visit Billy's father. It is just as well, you know, to learn what kind of a family you are going to marry into. Then, I am told, they have a firebell on the top of a tall post in Buda which they ring every time there is a fire. I am crazy to see that bell."

She Goes A-Shopping.

Margaret next called at a loop department store. She kept several clerks busy for an hour. Margaret has a nice taste in things to wear. She selected a pretty cloak, a pair of nifty shoes with gray tops, a stunning hat, kid gloves, and a few et ceteras. The young women behind the counter opened their eyes when the infant shopper drew from her purse an immense roll of bills.

She bustled to the depot then and caught the train for Buda. She arrived in that town at 9 o'clock at night and took away the breath of Billy's dad by walking in on him unannounced.

Why She Ran Down.

"You have been bragging about that fire bell on top of the post for so long," Margaret remarked to Miss Katherine Countryman, who is her own age, "that I have run down especially to see it."

Margaret conveyed the impression that such trips were not at all unusual for a young person of her wealth and social station, and, since Billy lives in Chicago, her advent in Buda aroused no suspicion on that score.

"What time does the train leave for Chicago?" asked Margaret at the breakfast table the first thing next morning.

"At 10," replied her hostess.

"I must catch that train."

"But you haven't seen the fire bell yet."

"I know, but I'd very much rather see my mother, and I'm going back home as fast as the train will carry me."

Margaret walked into her mamma's flat in North Clark street at 4:30 o'clock yesterday afternoon. She threw $410 on the parlor table.

"Well," exclaimed her mother, looking at her through the tears in her eyes, "it's worth the $40 to get you back. But I ought to—I ought to—"

But she didn't. She gathered the little girl in her arms and kissed her.

PLAN TO SEEK A REPEAL OF ADAMSON 8 HOUR LAW.

Railroads and Union Men Near an Agreement on New Plan for Adjudicating Disputes.

New York, Dec. 16.—[Special.]—Fourfold are the means through which the four big brotherhoods and the railroad operators are striving to adjust their differences so that working conditions acceptable to both may be determined. Progress toward a compromise already has been made, as W. G. Lee, president of the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen, disclosed in Evansville, Ind., on Friday. The steps may culminate in a settlement within the next two weeks, it was learned today.

Here are the methods through which the factions hope to attain their common object:

1—Withdrawal of the case now before the United States Supreme court to test the constitutionality of the Adamson eight hour law.

2—Repeal by congress of this measure, which was forced through by direct command of President Wilson.

3—Elimination of the federal board of mediation and conciliation in railroad controversies.

4—Establishment of a nonpartisan railroad board, composed equally of brotherhood representatives and operators, for the adjudication of all difficulties in wages, schedules, and hours.

Conferences between the brotherhood heads and several members of the national conference committee of managers will be held probably in New York this week. The fate of the entire negotiations hangs on these forthcoming meetings. No certainty is felt by either side that a settlement will be effected.

CARDINAL GIBBONS SENDS 70,000 CHARITY TELEGRAMS

Baltimore Deluged with Night Letters Asking Funds for New Building for Boys' School.

Baltimore, Md., Dec. 16.—[Special.]—More than 70,000 telegraph night letters appealing for contributions of "at least a dollar" to defray the cost of a new recreation building at St. Mary's Industrial School for Boys were sent out by Cardinal Gibbons to Baltimoreans in ten hours today.

This deluge of night letter appeals, a unique scheme in Baltimore, was worked out on the suggestion of Cardinal Gibbons and Brother Paul, director of St. Mary's, who are in charge of the novel campaign. Cardinal Gibbons started the subscription with $1,000.

To deliver the huge number of telegrams in the record time more than a thousand extra employés were taken on by the telegraph company. Sixty-five taxicabs and automobiles were hired to aid the route directors and messengers in covering the city and suburbs.

In all, 511 extra boys and 140 regular messengers were used in the work. One hundred and sixty extra routing clerks, 150 extra sorting clerks, and 150 extra sheeting clerks completed the force which distributed the messages.

NOTHING IN LAW, DARROW ASSERTS

Tells Women Attorneys Courts Are Boxing Rings with Poor Man Loser.

Pretty lawyeresses by the score met in the rooms of the Brownleigh club last night to hear Clarence Darrow encourage them in their chosen profession, but when he got through with them they were a much discouraged lot. The occasion was the monthly dinner of the Woman's Law league.

"There is nothing in the law," said Mr. Darrow, to begin with.

And then he proceeded to tell them what they could not do.

"You can't be shining lights at the bar," he said, "because you are too kind.

"You can never be corporation lawyers because you are not cold blooded. You have not a high grade of intellect.

Can't Get Big Fees.

"You can never expect to get the fees that men get. I doubt if you ever make a living at the work you have chosen.

"Of course you can be divorce lawyers. That is a useful field. There are only two ways to escape after marriage. One is by murder and the other by divorce, and even the reformers would prefer divorce to murder. So you can get divorces.

"And there is another field that you can have solely for your own. You won't make a living at it, but it's worth while and you'll have no competition. That is the free defense of criminals. The courts today are like boxing rings where dwarfs are pitted against giants and the judges referee the game.

Poor Man, Poor Lawyer.

"If a poor man gets sick and has to have an operation the best surgeon in the city will perform it free of charge. But if the poor man is charged with murder you can't get a decent lawyer to defend him free of charge. Make that your field."

Among the women members of the league are Miss Susan Brandeis, daughter Supreme Court Justice Brandeis, Miss Nellie Carlin, Miss Cartwright, Miss Alice Thompson, and Miss Dorothy Brody.

FOGGIEST DAY IN LONDON; PEDESTRIANS CARRY LIGHTS.

Omnibuses and Taxicabs Halted as Dense Mist Darkens City—Worst in 50 Years.

LONDON, Dec. 17, 2:15 a. m.—A fog which settled over London yesterday is described as being the most dense in fifty years. From early morning until a late hour London was a city of perpetual night.

The inconvenience was greatest in the evening, owing to the light restrictions. Omnibusses stopped running and taxicabs disappeared from the streets. People on the streets carried torches.

In the Strand torches were lighted and soldiers new to the metropolis had to be led about like blind men.

VAST SUM SET ASIDE FOR MEN BY EMPLOYERS

Year's Prosperity Shared with 5,750,000—Chicago Houses Join.

New York, Dec. 16.—[Special.]—Not less than 5,750,000 salaried employés and wage workers will have occasion to rejoice during the holidays over the widespread prosperity prevailing in the United States.

This estimate of the number of persons affected by the increases in salaries and wages, bonuses, profit sharing plans and insurance benefits is made by Secretary of Labor Wilson, based on reports received by his department.

While no estimate of the aggregate amount of money distributed under these various plans for helping employés to celebrate the coming Christmas and to enable them to meet the high cost of living is made by the government, facts collected here indicate that it will exceed $300,000,000.

EVERY CLASS BENEFITS.

The employés who will benefit from these concessions made by individuals, firms, and corporations include almost every variety of labor. The reports to the department of labor indicate that the increases in wages average 10 per cent, while the bonuses to salaried employés range from 5 to 50 per cent.

Some of the larger concerns, like the United States Steel corporation, Standard Oil, Bethlehem Steel, the American Woolen company, the Cotton Manufacturers of New England, the Eastman Kodak company, the Consolidated Gas company and its subsidiaries, the Westinghouse Electric company, the General Electric company, the Western Union Telegraph company, the American Telephone and Telegraph company, and many of the railroads have granted notable increases in the wages of more than 1,000,000 men employed by them.

U. S. STEEL GIVES $33,000,000.

Salary increases and special compensation given by the United States Steel corporation from "time to time," together with bonuses and stock issues to be given executives during the next few weeks, will aggregate $33,000,000 for the year.

This was the "rough estimate" put on the amount by E. H. Gary, chairman of the corporation, tonight in announcing the usual opportunity for employés to subscribe for stock and the distribution of bonuses.

"The United States Steel corporation, in accordance with the plan in force during the last thirteen years," Mr. Gary said, "will offer the employés opportunity to subscribe during January for 35,000 shares of stock at a price somewhat below the market.

DISTRIBUTION FOR HOLIDAYS.

"The corporation also will distribute the usual special compensation. The total amount of the latter has not yet been definitely determined, but it will be calculated on the basis heretofore fixed. A part will be paid in cash and the balance in preferred stocks in the same proportions and on the same terms as last year.

"It is hoped distributions will be made to the smaller salaried men about Christmas and to the others about New Year's. Also many of the men in offices, particularly those not receiving special compensation above referred to, will receive increases in salaries to take effect Jan. 1.

"As a rough estimate it may be stated that the three wage increases made Feb. 1, May 1, and Dec. 15 respectively, the increases in salaries from time to time, and the special compensation will aggregate for the year about $33,000,000."

SOUTHERN PACIFIC BONUS.

San Francisco, Cal., Dec. 16.—Ten thousand employés of the Southern Pacific railroad will receive a Christmas present of 10 per cent of their annual salaries, according to announcement today. The bonus will go only to employés receiving less than $2,500 a year and will not apply to members of the railroad brotherhoods.

CHICAGO PACKER LIBERAL.

Contributions of $175,000 to the pension fund and $60,000 to the Employes' Benefit association of Morris & Co., packers, were announced last night at a meeting of the Men's club in the Morrison hotel by Nelson Morris, chairman of the board of directors.

Mr. Morris announced also that the fund directors were advised to increase permanently all pensions 25 per cent.

Mr. Morris said the directors felt these contributions would be of more lasting benefit than a bonus.

The pension fund now will have resources amounting to $909,208.41. Under the company's rules any employé upon being pensioned is now entitled to 2½ per cent of salary for each year of service.

Morris Praises Men's Loyalty.

Mr. Morris, after stating that the company had the best year in its history, asserted an important cause for the good showing was due to the loyalty and coöperation among the employés.

"There is one method of rewarding our men in which Morris & Co. has been unique," said Mr. Morris, "and that is our pension fund, which, I need hardly mention, is the most liberal in the world. Small weekly contributions of the men and sufficient annual contributions of the company, together with a bequest of $100,000 from my father, have so grown to protect you in later years and, more important, to protect your wives and children after you."

After summarizing important features of the fund, he added:

"Your board of directors know of no fitter way of expressing their appreciation than by this permanent and distinctive method—the benefit of which will continue long after all of us are gone—and this method, they feel, is much more appropriate and will be more appreciated than any temporary bonus we might give."

$500,000 for Phone Workers.

Employés of the Chicago Telephone company are to share in a Christmas bonus of between $500,000 and $600,000. This is a portion of the $2,000,000 to be distributed by the American Telephone and Telegraph company.

Employés in the service a year and receiving less than $3,000 annually will be given three weeks' pay. Those of the same class in the service for more than three months and less than one year will be given two weeks' extra pay.

Among the Banks.

Among the banks of Chicago that plan to consider the high cost of living in their annual gifts is the Union Trust company. The usual annual 4 per cent will be given to the workers with the possibility of more.

"All I can say about it now is that there may be more in addition to the usual 4 per cent," said Frederick H. Rawson, president of the Union Trust company. "We want to do some surprising, so that is all I will say."

The Central Trust company is planning to make a gift to its employés with the cost of living problem as a feature. According to W. R. Dawes, the details have not been completed.

In addition to the profit sharing plan of the Harris Trust company for its employés, details are expected to be worked out by Tuesday to increase the amount on account of the advanced cost of living.

For Fair Employes.

Included in the department stores that will give gifts to their employés is the Fair, which, according to E. J Lehmann, will make a usual present of $5 for Christmas.

Employés of the Soo Line in Chicago also will be given bonuses. According to an announcement made by President Pennington, the general office employés will be given from 5 to 10 per cent of their annual salaries. This applies to all those whose monthly pay runs below a certain figure.

CHICAGOANS OFF TO CONGO.

Five Moody Institute Students Will Sail for Africa Next Monday.

To carry the light of Christianity to darkest Africa, four young women and one man, all Chicagoans, will sail on Monday from New York to become missionaries in the Congo. They are: Miss Edith Ortleib, Miss Viola Howell, Miss Rose Horton, Mrs. Adelia Stephenson, and her husband, the Rev. John Gordon Stephenson. A sixth Chicago missionary, Alden Longwell, who intended to join the party, has decided to take a later ship. All of the missionaries are former students of the Moody Bible institute. They will become part of a mission of nine, under the African Inland mission, of which Charles H. Hurlburt is general director.

C. A. A. AIDS "BUGS" DINNER.

First Annual Charity Party to Be Given in Clubhouse on Evening of Dec. 23.

The first annual charity party of the Chicago Athletic association will be held in the clubhouse on the evening of Dec. 23 under the auspices of "the Bugs," an organization which has conducted charity dinners for four years in the Cherry Circle home, but which now has the coöperation of the club. "The Bugs" are jubilant over getting the club behind their organization and expect to raise $10,000 to $20,000 for the Christmas fund. A "Bugs" dinner will be served in three dining halls. One-half the receipts for the dinner will be devoted to the charity fund.

HUSBAND GETS INJUNCTION.

An injunction restraining Mrs. Genevieve Klaner of 4719 Magnolia avenue from opening a safety deposit box in the Sheridan Trust and Savings bank was granted her husband, George Klaner, a north side undertaker, yesterday by Judge Thomas in whose court their divorce is pending.

Klaner alleges in his petition that his wife has $1,100 worth of diamonds belonging to him and refuses to give them back. Mrs. Klaner says his charges are false.

WOOD ALCOHOL SPREE KILLS 4 IN JOLIET CELLS

Several More May Die and Others Recover from "Moonshine."

A wood alcohol orgy, mistakenly indulged in by ten convicts, was followed by wholesale death and desperate illness in Joliet penitentiary yesterday.

Four of the prisoners are dead. Three are fighting for their lives, with the chances against them. Three others are seriously sick.

Prison "moonshining," by which convicts extract alcohol by strange chemical processes from drugs and products used in the shops behind the walls, enabled the men to obtain the alcohol from a shellac mixture.

They believed the poison to be grain alcohol and drank it in an effort to forget the bitterness of prison life in the false joys of inebriety.

These Are Victims.

The dead:

ALEXANDER ARCHER, Iroquois county, serving fifth term for robbery.

MARTIN HARRIS, Cook county, serving two years for a serious offense.

EDWARD WILLIAMS, Cook county, serving fifth term for robbery.

FRANK DAWSON, Grundy county; one to fourteen years for robbery.

Those who may die:
Harry Ford, Cook county.
Harry Weaver, Rock Island.
George Johnson, Cook county.

Harry Woods, Charles Scarrett, and James Kline of Cook county are expected to recover.

Working New Process.

A mixture of shellac and wood alcohol is used in the chair and rattan shops. It is mixed outside the walls and taken to the shops in pails. For a number of days the convicts, it is believed, made secret raids upon these pails until they had accumulated several gallons of the mixture. This they kept hidden in some corner of the prison yard.

Two ways are known to convicts to separate alcohol from the shellac after the two drugs have been mixed. One is to stick a red hot poker into the mixture. The other is to throw into it a handful of salt. In their "moonshining" operations in this instance, it is said, they used salt. As a result they drained off three quarts of alcohol.

Deathbed Confession.

Nine became deathly sick while they sat at their work in the shops. Most of them were employed in the shoe shop. They keeled over one by one, and the guards rushed them to the hospital. They would not tell what made them sick, and Dr. James De Vry, the prison physician, was at a loss what to prescribe. Finally, when they realized they were on their deathbeds, two of the convicts made a clean breast.

Three died Friday night. At 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon Dawson was found by a guard stretched out on a bench in the shoe shop.

Dies as Convict Martyr.

"What's the matter with you?" asked the guard.

"Nothing at all," replied Dawson.

"You've been drinking that stuff, too."

"No, I haven't."

That was his convict idea of principle. He refused to "squeal." A "squeal" would have sent some of his pals to solitary. He was hurried to the hospital. He fell dead as he walked to a cot—literally died on his feet, a martyr to a thief's sense of "honor."

Ringleaders Locked Up.

Two convicts whose names Warden Zimmer refused to give out were confined in solitary cells last night. They are said to be ringleaders of the moonshiners. It is believed they concocted the poison that killed their comrades.

A cell-to-cell search of the penitentiary was made by guards last night, without disclosing the "cache" of the concoction.

SANTA'S COMING AFTER ALL.

Wilmette Residents to Give 160 Orphans the Gift Each Has Written For.

Up in the Methodist Episcopal orphanage at Lake Bluff there are 160 children. Each has written a letter to Santa Claus and told him just what they would like to have for Christmas. And now their every wish and fondest hope is to be realized.

A committee of Wilmette residents, headed by Ray M. Kirtland, will bring the children, in charge of Miss Lucy Jepson, the superintendent, to Wilmette on special cars.

There will be a large Christmas tree and a dinner, and each child will get the gift he or she wrote for.

ON TRIAL

Mrs. Barnes, Charged with Murder of Husband, May Know Her Fate by Christmas.

Mrs. Iva Barnes

JURY COMPLETE IN BARNES CASE

"Can Woman Be Convicted in Cook County of Murder?" Is Query.

With the completion of the jury which is to hear the evidence in the trial of Mrs. Iva Barnes before Judge Joseph H. Fitch for the murder of her husband, James, at the southern edge of Washington park last summer, opening arguments will be made tomorrow. The last man to be accepted by both the prosecution and defense was also the last man of the special venire of 100 summoned several days ago.

The jury was completed after an all day session, in which Judge Fitch held court until 7 o'clock at night. A week was consumed in selecting the jury.

In all probability day and night sessions will be held this week in an effort to finish the case before the holidays, so the jurors may spend Christmas at home.

Many Thrills Expected.

The trial is expected to run the gamut of human emotions and to furnish numerous dramatic situations. Wide public interest centers in the trial because of the long standing tradition that no Cook county jury will convict a woman of the murder of her husband. It has been done, say the assistant state's attorneys, but it was years ago.

The opening address for the prosecution will be made by Assistant State's Attorney Marvin E. Barnhart. The state, it is said, has a number of "surprises."

Defense Also Has Surprises.

The defense also promises several "surprises." Attorney Edward S. Day, with Attorney George H. Guenther, represents Mrs. Barnes.

"While we do not admit that Mrs. Barnes killed her husband, we will show that she would have been justified in anything that might have occurred," said Mr. Day.

"Do you mean some one else may have killed him?" he was asked.

"I do not care to discuss that now. I will say, however, that testimony as to a long series of abuses heaped on Mrs. Barnes by her husband will be produced."

"What will be done to counteract stories as to Mrs. Barnes' 'past life,' said to have been gathered by her husband's brother?"

"Mrs. Barnes does not fear the telling of anything she has done in the past."

"Will a plea of self-defense be a principal factor?"

"It will be involved."

LANDIS WORKS LONG IN NIGHT

Bankruptcy Grows in Unpopularity Throughout 13 Hour Session.

Fraudulent bankruptcies became distinctly unpopular long before Judge Landis left the bench at 11 o'clock last night. The court session had lasted thirteen hours. Throughout it was marked by the judge's caustic comments.

The session started with the hearing of the Joseph Smiglak bankrupt suit, in which five men have already been sent to jail on charges of perjury and conspiracy to deceive the court. Yesterday six more, including one woman, barely escaped detention. But as midnight neared the judge decided that he would have to wait until Monday to dispose finally of their cases.

Mrs. Minnie Simon.

The woman who aroused the anger of the judge was Mrs. Minnie Simon, who came into court to offer bond for Morris Peal, who had been held on charges of perjury.

When Mrs. Simon was questioned about the property she scheduled on Peal's bond she became mixed in her story, and then finally admitted that it had been recorded in the name of her 19 year old daughter, Miss Helen Discher. Miss Discher was called to the stand and she declared the property, worth $15,000, had been given her by her mother. The judge called Mrs. Simon back to the stand and delivered a lecture on the propriety of telling the truth and then bade her go on with her story.

No More Details.

Then she declared that the property had been given to her by Jacob Rothschild, a lawyer living at the Illinois Athletic club. She said he had given her the property for a consideration of $1. Attempts of the judge to learn the reason for such an extraordinary transaction revealed the fact that Mrs. Simons had filed a suit for breach of promise against the attorney, but other details were not forthcoming.

Reeking Perjury.

Two other clothing store owners, Joseph Schumacher and Harry Goodman, in separate suits occupied part of the session. In the suit of Schumacher the judge indicated that he would hold Schumacher and a number of his relatives to answer on the charge of concealing assets. The judge declared that "such reeking perjury and corruption had never been witnessed before in his court."

PLEASE COME TO SEE MAMMA, GIRL PLEADS

"We Have No Home and There Won't Be Any Christmas for Us."

The Good Fellow bureau will be open over Sunday. Telephone Central 100.

How about the Christmas eve reservation, as the old year slides into the last week before Christmas day? The Good Fellow mail bag is just bursting with correspondence for you, Good Fellows, and every letter urges that you employ quick action in making a reservation.

Reserve what? Reserve a family of needy kiddies, to whose dismal home you can go with all your holiday spirit of good fellowship on Christmas eve and make them happy with some of the good things that make children believe in Santa Claus and the Christmas saints.

Unless there is a big generous response this last week there are going to be a big bunch of little duffers who will suffer disappointment on Christmas eve as they wait up late for the arrival of a Good Fellow with his cheery smile and basket full of goodies.

"No Christmas for Us."

Letters addressed to you, Good Fellows, are pouring in from the homes of the poor kiddies. Your correspondence is piling up and you are falling behind in its perusal. Why not take care of this one right off the bat? It demands your attention:

Dear Mister or Missus Good Fellow: Will you please come to see me and my poor mamma. She is sick in bed and behind with the rent. We have no home, but we room out and live a little all over and mamma tells me there won't be any Christmas for us like there is for the other children.

Wouldn't you, dear Good Fellow, think of me? I have been sick, too. Mamma has had nothing but sickness and trouble since my papa died. I was 8 months old then. Now I am 7, but when I get to be a big girl I'll help my mamma, that is what I tell her every day, and maybe I can make some little girl happy, too, with lots of love and kisses to you dear Good Fellow and hoping you will remember little.

Ester B., Sheffield avenue.

A First Appeal.

Those are the kind of letters that make you have that Christmassy feeling of "doing something for somebody"; those are the kind of letters that are piling up on the Good Fellow's desk every day and waiting for an answer from you. What do you feel like writing in reply to:

Dear Good Fellow: This is my first time to ask for any help at Christmas time, but I am forced to. My husband is a laborer and has not had much work lately. The children are looking forward to Christmas, and particularly Walter, who had his leg broke ten weeks ago and still has the cast on. He is 10 years old and Alice is 9 and Mildred is 6 and Frank is 16 months old. I am asking you, Mr. Good Fellow, not to forget us.

Mrs. M.
(West Forty-third street).

A Mathematical Problem.

From out on Robey street there comes a letter from a little duffer whose message will tell you that he is wrestling with a grown man's problems and he would like just a little business suggestion from you as to how a family of eight can live on $10 a week. He writes:

Dear Mr. Good Fellow: I have got to tell you first how many there are here. There are six children. I am going to be 14 years old and I am the oldest and my name is Johny M. ——, and the next is Deborah, 11 years old, and the next is Mike, 10 years old, and Ellen, 6 years old, and Mary, 3 years old, and our baby is 10 months old.

We did not have him last Christmas so you see yourself our family is larger and not even as much pay as my father had last year. He only earns $10 a week and sometimes not even this much, so for eight in a family for $10 I don't know what's going to be done.

This morning mother had to put the baby and Mary and Ellen into bed to keep warm, for we had no coal nor the price of any, so a cousin of my mother's came and sent me for a basket of coal for 25 cents. Now don't forget us, any way. Remember Johnny M. ——, Tilden avenue.

Many Similar Cases.

So that's how things stand out at the M. home, Mr. Good Fellow. The poor districts of Chicago are full of little Johnny M.'s, who are concentrating all the strength of their 10 year old minds on such questions as "What to do when you get behind in the rent?" "What steps to take when the gas is cut off?" "Best course of procedure when the coal gives out," and "How to reopen credit with the grocer."

If you want to meet one of these little duffers, fill out the application blank of this page and mail it to the Good Fellow bureau, room 1106, The Tribune. By return mail or over the telephone you will receive the name of a deserving needy family, or as many children, nationality, color, race or religion as you specify. Then you go out and talk things over with them so that on Christmas eve you can show up with just a little something to make the next day a happier one for them and just a little bit different from the other gloom days.

THE GOOD FELLOW BUREAU IS OPEN TODAY—TELEPHONE CENTRAL 100.

"WELL, HERE'S HOW"

If you will be a Good Fellow at Christmas to some family of poor children in Chicago, please fill out the attached blank and send it to THE TRIBUNE (Good Fellow Department, Room 1106) or write a letter of similar import.

HEIRS OF CORNELIUS BLISS FOUND PHILANTHROPIC FUND

Large Part of $4,000,000 Estate of Late Republican Treasurer Will Be Devoted to Charity.

New York, Dec. 16.—To apply to philanthropic purposes a considerable part of the $4,100,000 estate of the late Cornelius N. Bliss, who for years was treasurer of the Republican national committee, his heirs incorporated today the Cornelius N. Bliss Memorial Fund. Mr. Bliss's widow, his son, Cornelius N. Bliss Jr., and his daughter, Miss Lizzie P. Bliss, are among the incorporators.

The purposes of the fund were announced to be "to promote secular and religious education among all classes, to care for the sick, aged, disabled, and poor, improve the condition of humanity, and to aid other organizations engaged in similar work."

SCHOOLS STILL HAVE COAL.

Board of Education and Private Consumers Have to Fight for It.

Loop skyscrapers, State street stores and the school board were listed yesterday as among those making a daily fight to secure sufficient coal.

Secretary Larson of the school board said it has not been necessary to close any school for lack of coal as yet. It requires 3,000 tons of coal a day to supply the schools.

PEACE; GOOD WILL; LAST WORD FROM DR. MUNSTERBERG

New York, Dec. 16.—A Christmas message sent by Prof. Hugo Münsterberg to a New York magazine for publication was given out today when news of the professor's death was received.

Prophesying a return of peace to the world, the message said:

"After the war no hate will remain; those who hated hotly will forget most quickly. Men will look one another in the face with astonishment; the spell will be broken. They simply will not believe that they could misjudge and maltreat their friends so grossly. The subtle power of our mind to forget will become mankind's blessing.

"As soon as peace is secured we shall keep the peace, not only by the harsh method of enforcing it but by the hundred times better method of making it natural. And it can become natural, because all the scorn of today will fall off like the scab of a healing wound.

"Unless all psychological signs deceive us, after this war ends peace will really be lasting—and I feel sure the end of the war is near. The world Christmas tree will be glistening tomorrow; the fragrance of its candles already pervades the world."

WIDOW BEFORE HER DIVORCE

Mrs. Belle Dibble of 1940 West Monroe street obtained a divorce on Dec. 12. Yesterday H. Todd, a friend of Daniel Dibble, told how he was killed in an accident in Galveston on Nov. 1. On Monday Judge Thomson will be asked if Mrs. Dibble has a claim on the insurance money that is due to her husband's heirs from the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen and the Switchmen's union.

DR. MUNSTERBERG EXPIRES IN MIDST OF CLASS TALK

Famous German Psychologist Drops Dead at Radcliffe College—Ashes to Berlin.

Cambridge, Mass., Dec. 16.—[Special]—Prof. Hugo Münsterberg of Harvard university, noted German psychologist, dropped dead today at Radcliffe college during a lecture before sixty students.

Cerebral hemorrhage, which caused the educator's death, is said to have been hastened by the criticism of his defense of the German cause.

Shortly after the beginning of the war he took up the cudgel for Germany and soon found himself the only pro-Teuton on the Harvard faculty. Two years ago it was hinted that Harvard could do without his services and he offered his resignation, but it was refused.

Students Close to Him.

Despite criticisms of Prof. Münsterberg, he was beloved by his students both at Harvard and Radcliffe. His death proved a shock, especially since he left his home in good health and fine spirits this morning. He is survived by a widow and two daughters.

Funeral services will be held Monday afternoon. The professor's body will be cremated and his ashes eventually will be sent to Germany.

Was Born in Germany.

Prof. Münsterberg was born in Danzig, Germany, in 1863, and came to Harvard in 1892 as professor of psychology. In 1910 he returned to Germany as Harvard exchange professor at the University of Berlin. In the following year he organized and became the head of the Amerika institute of the German government. In 1912 he resumed his work at Harvard. He was made president of the American Psychological association in 1898. At the time of his death he was president of the Boston German association.

For twenty years Prof. Münsterberg had written extensively on philosophical, psychological and scientific subjects. One of his best known works was "The American." He was twice decorated by the German emperor, first with the Red Eagle of the third class, and after taking up his work at Harvard with the Brown order of the second class.

GROCER IN A TRUE BILL.

Frank C. Weber Accused of Buying Goods Stolen from Warehouse.

Frank C. Weber, president of F. C. Weber & Co. of 6319 Lowe avenue, wholesale grocers, and James J. [illegible], head of the Englewood Sales company of 6221 South Halsted street, have been named jointly in a true bill voted by the December grand jury in connection with the theft of $4,500 worth of sugar from the plant of the Tuthill Warehouse company of 129 West Sixty-third street.

MAYOR FAVORS TERMS IN PRISON TO CURB SALOONS

Plans a Drastic Amendment to the State Sunday Closing Law.

An amendment to the state Sunday closing law, making the penalty a prison term, will be introduced at the direction of Mayor William Hale Thompson at the next session of the legislature. At present the greatest penalty is a $200 fine.

Mayor Thompson's latest step in his campaign to clamp down the lid on Sunday saloons was taken in the belief that small fines would fail to prevent saloonkeepers from disobeying the Sunday closing law.

The amendment would make the penalty for violation of the Sunday closing law from one to five years in the penitentiary and section 259 of the criminal code would then read as follows:

"Section 259. Whoever keeps open any tippling house or place where liquor is sold or given away upon the first day of the week, commonly called Sunday, shall be imprisoned in the penitentiary for not less than one year nor more than five years."

Small Fines Insufficient.

"There has been much discussion as to whether it is possible for the mayor of Chicago to close saloons on Sunday in accordance with the state law as is his duty," the mayor said. "As is well known, in order to strengthen the force of law against the violators, I have ordered the chief of police to make arrests for Sunday closing violations on state warrants. This strength is added to my revocation power.

"Many people think, however, that if only small fines are imposed on violators the Sunday closing law will become more or less of a farce."

State Senator Gotthardt Dahlberg, who is an assistant corporation counsel, has consented to introduce the amendment on the first day of the next session of the legislature, Mayor Thompson said.

After Brewers, Too.

Senator Dahlberg will introduce a bill to make it unlawful for breweries to own saloon licenses.

"In my opinion," Senator Dahlberg said, "many of the violations of the Sunday closing law and indeed many of the infractions of ordinances by saloonkeepers are the result of the practice of some brewers who place irresponsible men in charge of their saloons."

Hoyne Discounts Move.

State's Attorney Hoyne said that if the bill is passed as drafted by the mayor it would only make it harder to obtain a conviction.

"I do not know what the mayor has in his mind, if anything, on this proposition," said Mr. Hoyne. "It is bad enough to attempt to obtain a conviction on a misdemeanor without trying when it is made a felony. It would be next to impossible to obtain a conviction if the offense is made a felony."

Capt. Thomas Meagher recommended the saloon license of Frank Petchen, 132 West Thirty-first street, be revoked.

VILLA BANDITS CUT OFF FORCE OF DE FACTO TROOPS

Capture Jiminez and Santa Rosalia and Peril Army of Gen. Muguria—Gen. Trevino Arrested.

El Paso, Tex., Dec. 16.—Proceeding swiftly forward, Villista forces have captured Jiminez and are now in possession of that city, as well as Santa Rosalia, the only important point between them and Chihuahua City, according to advices reaching here tonight.

The occupation of these two towns by bandit forces effectually severs the only channel of supplies and ammunition for Gen. Murguia's government army in the north.

This movement of Villa leads observers to believe the bandit chief is planning an assault on Torreon, possibly simultaneously with another raid upon Chihuahua City.

Gen. Trevino, Carrancista commander of the garrison during the defense of Chihuahua City, has been placed under arrest by Gen. Murguia, it was reported tonight.

NO EXPRESS DRIVERS' STRIKE

Voluntary communications "from a large majority of employés" show recent reports regarding a possible renewal of the express wagon drivers' strike are unfounded, according to a statement issued yesterday by officials of four companies. The statement adds:

"These rumors, it is claimed, originated with persons not authorized to act or speak for the employés."

AMERICAN CHRISTMAS SHIP SAILS TODAY FOR PALESTINE

Naval Collier Taking Supplies to Destitute People of Syria and Armenia—Over $1,000,000 Given

New York, Dec. 16.—Two former American ambassadors to Turkey, Oscar Straus and Henry Morgenthau, took part today in ceremonies preliminary to the sailing of America's Christmas ship, the United States naval collier Cæsar, for Beirut with $250,000 worth of food, clothing, and medical supplies for the destitute people of Syria and Armenia.

The sailing of the ship was postponed until tomorrow morning because the loading of the cargo was not completed until late today.

The relief committee announced today that besides this shipment, it had cabled $410,000 for distribution at inland centers which cannot receive supplies from the Cæsar's cargo, besides pledging $500,000 to be sent to Syria and Armenia in January, although its treasury is declared to be virtually empty.

Bradley, a justice of the peace, in Mr. Bradley's office, 763 Chapel street.

LIEUT. VERNON CASTLE IS HONORED AS AIR FIGHTER.

Promoted to Operating Single Seated Plane After Destroying German Machine.

[BY CABLE TO THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE.]

PARIS, Dec. 16.—Lieut. Vernon Castle of the flying corps of the British army has been promoted to operating a single seated airplane in offensive patrol work after destroying a German machine last week. Castle has just arrived in Paris to obtain a fast French machine, which he will drive back to the British base on the first clear day. This is the first time Castle has left the front since May, when he was sent to France.

FRENCHMAN TELLS SPIRIT OF FRANCE IN WAR TIME.

M. Marcel Knecht of Nancy Lectures Before the Alliance Francaise.

M. Marcel Knecht of the University of Nancy, who is an official delegate from France to America, delivered yesterday in the Art institute, under the patronage of the Alliance Francaise, a lecture in which he described the spirit of the French people in war time.

"If the soldiers of France," said M. Knecht, "were gloriously fighting in the trenches, their fathers, their mothers, their wives, and their children also were doing their duty by plowing the fields, by taking their places in the shops and factories, by doing splendid work in hospitals. The civilians of France maintain the same hopeful spirit which inspires the men on the front. And if France has been able to withstand the assaults of the enemy it is through the energy and the patience of her whole population."

M. Knecht, referring to the future, gave hints of a complete transformation of French industry and business after the war. The manufacturers and the kings of finance have understood during this hard strain the patriotic necessity of modernizing their proceedings and the conditions of production. "We are inspired," he said, "by the sympathy shown to France by our brothers in the great republic of the United States."

M. Knecht announced that lectures on the charitable efforts of the United States will be given throughout France, in hospitals, and even on the front.

Strosnider Gets Limit, Ten Years.

Springfield, Ill., Dec. 16.—The state board of pardons today announced it had given John Strosnider, convicted of fleecing the late Dr John C. Kirby out of $20,000 by a wire tapping game, the limit, ten years. Strosnider was sentenced from one to ten years.

WOMAN WINS $10,000 PRIZE FOR FILM SEQUEL

Millionaire Movie Magnate Has a Long Hunt for Mrs. Helen O'Keefe.

A $10,000 check, as lonesome as the "it" in puss-wants-a-corner, roved all over Chicago last night looking for its proper niche in the way of a pocketbook. A millionaire wanted to get rid of it and get his supper. The woman to whom it was made out, innocent of her impending fortune, was absent from home.

And the millionaire's limousine purred over many an icy block of asphalt before the fugitive prize winner was overhauled.

The $10,000 check was the prize money for the best idea for the sequel to "The Diamond in the Sky" serial, offered jointly by THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE and the American Film company. Mrs. Helen O'Keefe of 3019 Eastwood avenue was the winner who was hard for luck to catch. Samuel Sneffield Hutchinson, president of the American Film company, was the hungry man who wanted to award the check and meet a steak face to face in some lonely grill.

Chosen Among 100,000.

Mrs. O'Keefe's idea was selected from 100,000 submitted. It was worked into a four chapter serial of eight reels and released, but the news that she was the winner was withheld from her. A detective agency, employed by THE TRIBUNE in fairness to the other competitors, investigated Mrs. O'Keefe to determine that she had not violated any of the conditions of the contest, and when their report showed that her offering was as represented, the judges made the final award. With Terry Ramsaye, advertising manager and director of the company, and a representative of THE TRIBUNE, Mr. Hutchinson climbed into his automobile to do his Santa Clausing early. Mrs. O'Keefe's home was dark. Repeated rings finally brought her elderly father to the door.

Gone to a Wake.

"Sure," said he, "she took the childer to her sister's and has gone to attind a wake."

"Where is the wake?"

"'Tis a Dunn of the south side, but I don't know the adriss. But wait a minute. She is taking dinner with her mother-in-law, and you may find her there. She lives at 5710 May street. They are going from there to the wake."

"Let 'er out a link, Roy," said Mr. Hutchinson, "we don't want to miss her a second time. I'm hours behind my dinner now."

Roy did so. But Roy got lost.

"May street," he said. "One of these here girl names. It's proba'ly moved, boss, 'jes' like a woman."

House Found at Last.

The street and house finally were produced through much questioning.

"Is this Mrs. Helen O'Keefe?" he asked of a pleasant faced woman who was sewing at a table. She glanced up in surprise.

"Here's a $10,000 check," said Mr. Hutchinson. "You are the winner of the prize for the best idea for the sequel to "The Diamond from the Sky."

Mrs. O'Keefe dropped her sewing in her lap and looked at the committee for a half minute to see if she and they were all quite sane. Mr. Hutchinson had to wiggle the check to attract her attention to it again. He was grimly determined to be rid of that check. There was a dark suspicion in his mind that maybe she wouldn't take it.

She Accepts It.

"Well!" said Mrs. O'Keefe finally. And having femininely summed up the situation thus she took the check.

She remained well possessed. Ten thousand dollar ideas don't spring from scatter brains. "I tell you frankly," she said in response to a query as to what she intended to use the money for, "I am so much surprised that I can't say. I've done all my Christmas shopping."

Mrs. O'Keefe looked up at her husband, who was chuckling at her from a nonchalantly draped position on the back of a chair.

"We have bought a home recently. This money will finish the payments and the remainder goes to bank for my little ones. I want to give them a good worth while education. We can now look ahead with confidence that they will have something to start with. I feel like crying."

Has Two Babies.

Mrs. O'Keefe's children are Andrew Jr., aged 4, and Eugene, aged 2.

"It was the first time I was out of the house after Eugene's birth that I saw the first instalment of the 'Diamond from the Sky,' she said. "It was half over before I thought of entering the contest. I began to take notes on each chapter. I never missed one.

"I did not write my version until within a week of the closing of the contest. When I began it did not take long. I had the house and the babies to look after, but when I get a few minutes off I would work at the 'sequel.' It was a big joke to my folks. I wrote 4,000 words at first. Then I cut it down within the stipulated 1,000 words and sent it in."

Mrs. O'Keefe glanced up at her husband and from his elegant position on the back of the chair he chuckled back at her.

ENGAGED

She Will Become Bride of Leo Richter.

Miss Ruth Andres
DE HAVEN PHOTO

The engagement of Miss Ruth Andres, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Andres of 10326 Avenue H, to Leo Richter, son of Mr. and Mrs. R. C. Richter of 7619 Saginaw avenue, was announced at a party given last night at the home of her parents.

1 DEAD, 2 HURT; CAR HITS AUTO

'Tom the Fried Cake Man's' Auto Truck and Trolley Collide.

HIT BOY AND SPEED ON.

One man was killed and two others seriously injured last night when a Madison street car and an auto truck collided at Madison and Union streets. John F. McCoy of 664 West Madison street died instantly. W. H. Tomlinson of 2900 West Lake street and Wilbur Johnson of 2918 Fulton street are in a serious condition at the Jefferson Park hospital.

"Tom, the Fried Cake Man."

Tomlinson, known as "Tom, the fried cake man," and the others were in Tomlinson's machine delivering cakes to downtown restaurants.

The light motor truck and the car met head on with terrific impact. The truck was hurtled to the sidewalk and Tomlinson's wares were scattered all over the street.

Injured Boy May Die.

If the "roadhog" who knocked down and ran over 4 year old Johnnie Raymond, and then left him to his fate while he drove away at breakneck speed, happens to read this he will know that Johnnie is at the point of death with a fractured hip and a probably fractured skull in the St. Joseph's hospital.

The boy was crossing the street in front of 620 Webster avenue with his father when run over. His father snatched up the body of his little son and rushed to the hospital. Police are searching for the driver.

REVOLUTION IN PORTUGAL PUT DOWN, LISBON REPORT.

Uprisings in Many Cities Said to Have Been Quelled—Corps Will Go to France.

PARIS, Dec. 16.—There have been revolutionary outbreaks in various parts of Portugal, according to a Havas agency dispatch from Lisbon, filed yesterday, but an official note declares that the uprising has been entirely quelled everywhere and that Lisbon is tranquil.

"Machado Santos, at the head of a small troop of rebels," the Lisbon dispatch reads, "tried to enter Abrantes (on the Tagus, eighty miles northeast of Lisbon, a town of about 8,000 population) yesterday morning, but the mutiny was quickly repressed.

"On Dec. 13 troubles broke out at different points of the country and part of the garrison of Castello Branco (in Beira district) also mutinied, while at Thomar, near Abrantes, the outbreak took on a more serious character."

Portuguese troops intended for service with the French troops in France will be called the Portuguese expeditionary corps.

HINT A COMBINE ENGINEERED RAID IN WALL STREET

Big Financiers Are Accused of "Putting Over" the Recent Slump in Conspiracy.

BY MARK S. WATSON.

New York, Dec. 16.—[Special.]—There is bitter complaint among the losers in the week's terrific bear raid in the stock market about a mysterious meeting held on Wednesday night at the Metropolitan club and attended by representatives of many of the large Wall street houses. The conference was called to discuss the recent overloading in industrial stocks. Theoretically it was a more or less formal and harmless affair. Actually it may have been entirely different.

According to a good authority, one of the houses represented at that meeting disposed of 400,000 shares of stock, and the others did their share in the heavy dumping of securities which took place on Thursday and Friday and was checked only in the latter part of yesterday afternoon.

Shift to Buying Side.

Many of these houses have participated in the buying movement which succeeded the dumping process, although on a much smaller scale.

The speculators who have suffered most in the collapse feel that the "insiders" who attended the Metropolitan club meeting took better care of their own customers than of the public. Even the current rally has had little encouraging effect on the losers.

The Russian duma's demand that the war continue, the new assault by the French before Verdun, and, most important, the fact that the recent bear raid had gone much too far, today spurred a swift recovery in the stock market. For the first half hour securities of every sort in the exchange and on the curb were soaring upward almost as quickly as they had slid downward at the opening of yesterday's disastrous session.

Market Rebounds from Slump.

Steel common opened almost 2 points up from last night's close. The other steel securities followed suit, Bethlehem showing a wide swing of 25 points. Coppers rose almost as sharply. Oils followed, and railroad shares, which, alone in the list, had stood fairly firm during the "peace panic," made admirable gains. With the exception of a few rather inactive stocks, the whole list rebounded.

During the later trading some of the gains were lost, but not enough to prevent good appreciations. The street is moderately hopeful.

GAINS BY FRENCH NORTH OF VERDUN ARE INCREASED

German Counter Attack on Pepper Hill Beaten Down by Machine Gun Fire.

emptying band after band of machine gun cartridges into the fugitives, of whom those remaining alive surrendered.

Making their way along the valley behind Pepper hill, the French approached and took Louvemont. This move was supported by another French wave that fought its way through the entanglements of strongly fortified field works in Carrieres wood.

In front of Douaumont the advance was equally rapid, but on the right flank the forward movement encountered strong opposition in Hardaumont wood, which was not overcome until late in the afternoon, when Beson Vaux redoubt was taken.

Height of Hills Great.

The difficulties opposing the French advance may be realized from the altitude of the hills which the troops captured. Pepper hill, which is double crested, is 1,122 feet high; Louvemont is 1,138 feet high, and another hill, unnamed, behind, is 1,180 feet.

The importance of the capture of these hills is considered by the French commanders enormous, as it compels the Germans to move back artillery which heretofore had annoyed the French supply depots and works on the other side of the Meuse, and also lays open the flanks of the German position on Le Mort Homme (Dead Man hill), directly opposite, on the west bank of the Meuse.

Snow and sleet fell thoroughout last evening, making difficult further operations, but the fighting was resumed today, resulting in further gains.

Credit Due to Mangin.

Gen. Mangin was the principal organizer of the victory, in which he followed his own example at Douaumont and Fort Vaux by delivering irresistible blows at the chief point in the German lines and hammering until his opponents were forced to give ground. Gens. Nivelle and Petain watched the engagement.

Thirty German deserters, who came in before the battle began, testify that the crown prince's army had knowledge that an attack was about to be made and were confident that they could hold the ground.

It is reported that several of the German divisions which took part in the fighting were hurried from Roumania to rejoin the crown prince's army.

Pierce British Lines.

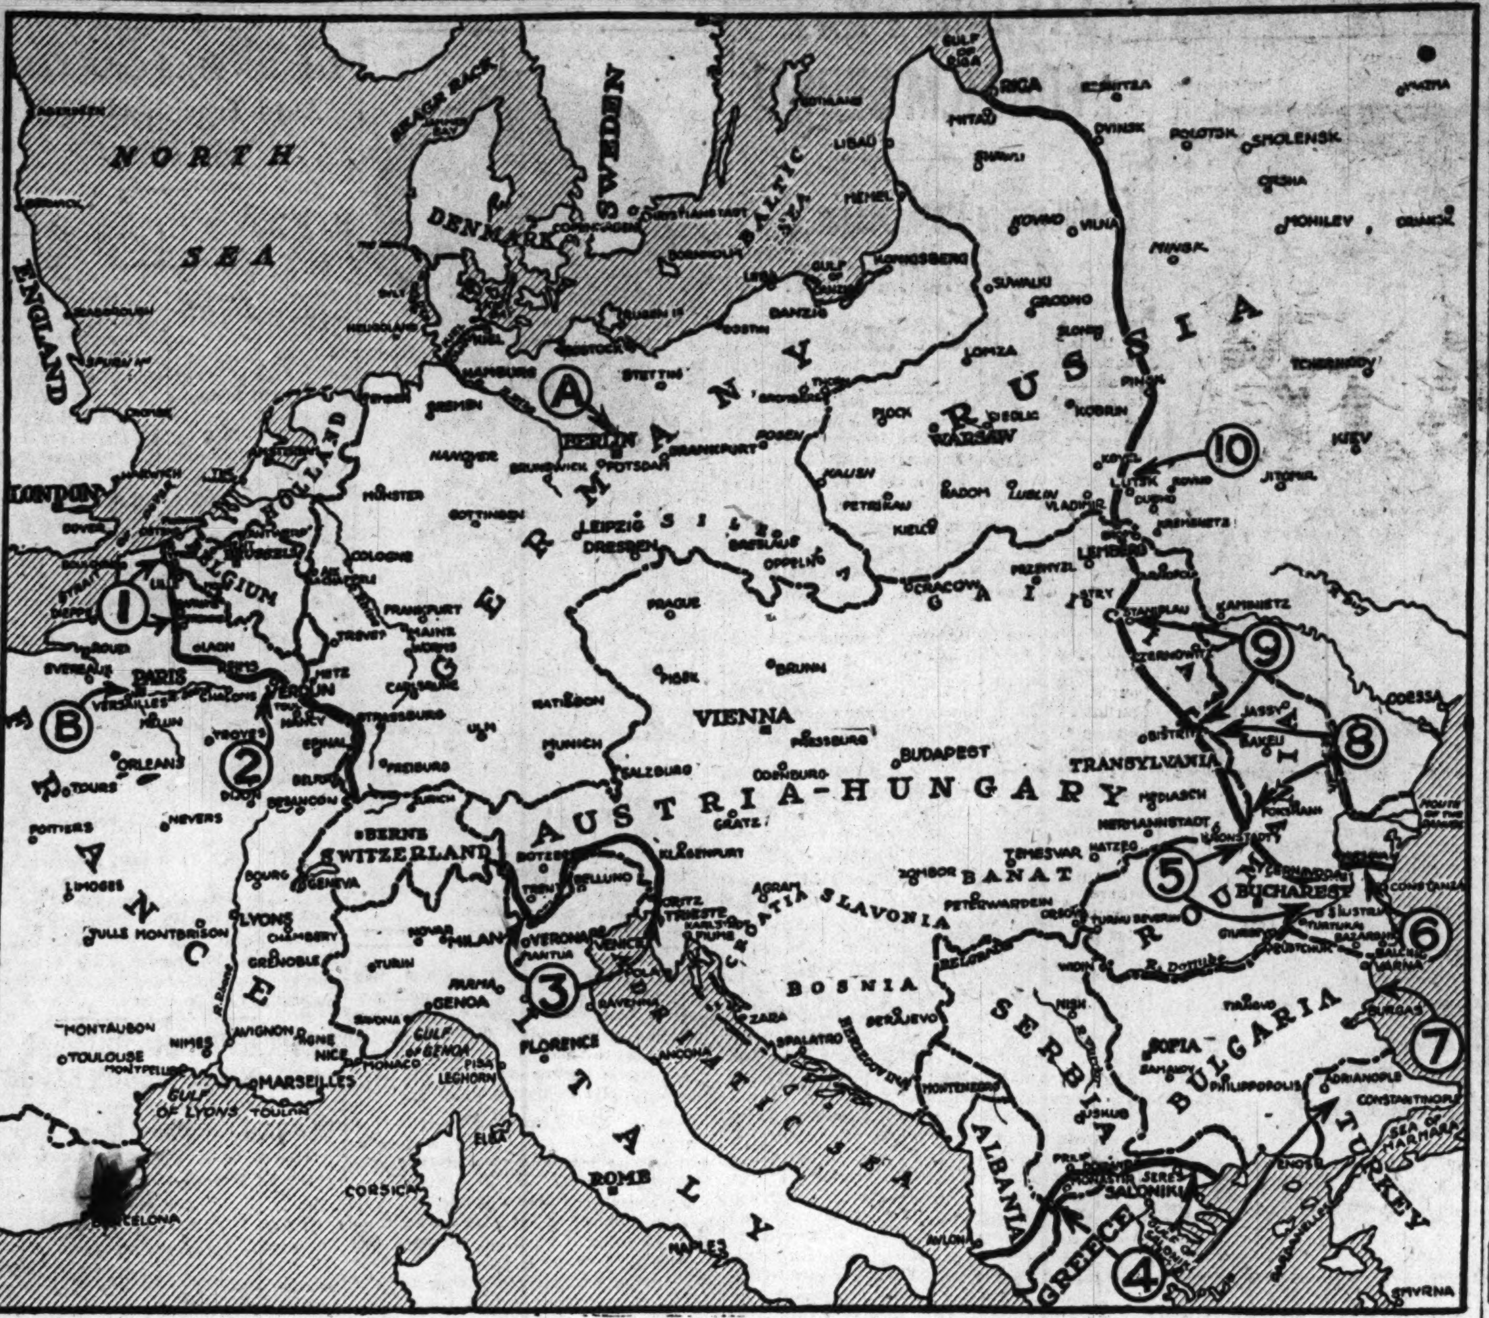
BERLIN, via Sayville wireless, Dec. 16.—A German thrust reached the second British line southeast of Zillebeke in Belgium, today's official statement announced.

"Our thrusting troops southeast of Zillebeke," the statement reported, "advanced into the second English line, from which the garrison had fled."

EDWARD B. M'LEAN AWARDED FULL INCOME ON ESTATE.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 16.—Edward Beale McLean will have the entire income from the estate left by his father, John R. McLean, and is recognized as the sole head of the Washington Post and the Cincinnati Enquirer by an agreement reached out of court today. The income, according to Wilton J. Lambert, McLean's attorney, will approximate $1,000,000 yearly.

DEVELOPMENTS OF WEEK IN EUROPEAN WAR



A—Berlin became the center of interest last Tuesday when Chancellor von Bethmann-Hollweg in the reichstag announced that Germany and its allies were ready to enter peace negotiations with the entente powers. During the week this proposal overshadowed all the news from the various fighting fronts.

London, Paris, Petrograd, and Rome received this move of the kaiser with varying degrees of disfavor. Russia, through the duma, rejected the proposal categorically.

The press of London and Paris denounced the German chancellor's announcement as a shrewd diplomatic move in an attempt to shift the blame for the war to the allies. No official announcement from the British cabinet is to be made until Tuesday, when Premier Lloyd-George is expected to address the house of commons. He has been confined to his bed by illness all week and may not be able to speak as expected.

As bearing on Britain's attitude the war office reported a supplementary estimate for an additional 1,000,000 men.

Premier Briand warned France to "beware of poison" in Germany's peace proposals.

As the week closed the prospect of any of the entente allies entering into peace negotiations with Germany at the present time became remote. All efforts of the United States and other neutrals to find encouragement for any move on their part to act as mediators failed.

Developments on the various battlefields also indicated that the entente powers were in no mind to consider peace terms. New offensives were opened by the French at Verdun on the west front and by the British at Kut-el-Amara in Mesopotamia. Both of these moves are taken to bear directly on the attitudes of these powers toward the German peace proposal.

B—France made an important change of commanders during the week, Gen. Joffre being succeeded as commander-in-chief on the west front by Gen. Nivelle. Joffre becomes head of the allies' war council. Admiral du Faurnet, commander-in-chief of the allied fleets in Greek waters, was succeeded by Admiral Gaucher.

1—There was increased activity in the Ypres sector by the Germans as the week closed. Though characterized by London as a large raid, in the region of Zillebeke the Germans claimed to have reached the second British line. The heavy artillery fire in the Ypres and Mytschaete bends may indicate an opening offensive.

2—Another decisive smash was made by the French against the lines of the crown prince north of Verdun. After two days of heavy artillery preparation, Gen. Nivelle threw his infantry forward on a front of six or seven miles east of the Meuse, taking the German positions by storm for a depth of two and a half miles. As the week closed the French were adding to this victory by organizing their new positions and pushing farther north. More than 9,000 prisoners and eighty-one guns were captured, taking the French lines back to where they were last February after the first big German rush on the Verdun fortifications.

3—The fighting on both the Trentino and Julian fronts was confined to artillery bombardments and patrol reconnaissances. Weather conditions are hampering operations.

4—No general action developed along the Macedonian front during the week. Heavy artillery firing followed by spirited infantry attacks took place in the region of Monastir, but neither side reported an important successes. Aviators of both sides were active, British naval airplanes making a successful raid on Lule Burgas bridge south of Adrianople.

5—Steady progress of the Teutonic forces in Wallachia during all of last week was reported. They are making a clean sweep of the Russian and Roumanian forces from the Transylvanian Alps to the Danube.

6—Further to the southeast in Dobrudja the Russians continued to retire to make their line conform with that of the retreating Roumanians north of the Danube.

7—On the Black sea coast the Russian fleet bombarded the Roumanian port of Balchik Wednesday in an attempt to destroy the flour mills supplying the armies of the central powers.

8—On the Moldavia front the battle for the mountain passes continued. No material successes were reported by either the Archduke Josef or the Russian commanders in this sector.

9—In the wooded Carpathians there were continued bombardments during the week. Advances attempted by the Teuton forces were driven back in the region of Jesupolia and Rafailov. Berlin reported the Russian attacks diminished in violence.

10—In spite of the winter conditions on the eastern [Russian] front, there were a number of small engagements by mine explosions and trench raids. West of Lutsk the Austro-Hungarians gained minor successes.

PEACE PROFFER ATTRIBUTED TO NEW AUSTRIAN MONARCH.

Dispatches from Swiss Sources Say Emperor Charles Desires to End War as Reign Begins.

PARIS, Dec. 16.—Emperor Charles of Austria-Hungary is credited with having taken the initiative in the peace move by the coalition of the central powers, according to the Berne correspondent of La Liberte, on the strength of information obtained from political circles in touch with officials of the central powers. The new emperor, it is said, desired to inaugurate his reign by an effort in favor of peace. This worried the Berlin government, which feared the young monarch might prove an uncertain ally.

The visit of Emperor William of Germany to Vienna, it is declared, was not to attend the funeral of the late emperor, but was for the purpose of having a personal interview with Emperor Charles. The interview could not be held on the day of the funeral, but at the second conference, at which King Ferdinand of Bulgaria also was present, Emperor Charles is supposed to have consented to a postponement of the offer of peace until after the capture of Bucharest.

OFFICIAL STATEMENTS ON RESULTS OF THE FIGHTING

FRENCH FRONT

FRENCH

PARIS, Dec. 16.—The official statement issued by the war office tonight reads:

On the right bank of the Meuse our troops continued their success. They progressed in the Caurieres wood and captured the village of Beson-Vaux yesterday. At the close of the day a violent German attack, directed against our positions on Cote du Poivre (Pepper hill), was brought up short by our fire.

We have maintained in its entirety our new front. Prisoners continue to be brought back, the number exceeding 9,000, of whom 250 are officers. The enumeration of the material which has fallen into our hands has not been completed, but the computation shows that up to the present eighty-one guns have been taken or destroyed.

It has been confirmed that four French divisions which yesterday conducted the attacks between the River Meuse and the Woevre district were victorious over at least five German divisions. All the regiments of these German divisions took part in the fighting, and prisoners from each one of them are now in our hands.

GERMAN

BERLIN, Dec. 16.—The official report issued by the army headquarters today said:

Western front.—Army of Field Marshal Duke Albrecht of Wurttemburg: In the Ypres and Wytschaete salients the artillery duel temporarily increased to considerable violence. Our attacking troops southeast of Zillebeke advanced into the second British line, of which the garrison had fled.

Army group of the German Crown Prince: The French, on December fifteenth, succeeded on the northeast front of Verdun in pushing us back from the most advanced position into the prepared second line of Talou Ridge, the heights north of Louvemont, Chambrettes and south of Bezon Vaux. The fighting was renewed today.

RUSSIAN FRONT

GERMAN

BERLIN, Dec. 16.—The official report by the general army headquarters in regard to the Russian front follows:

West of Lutsk, after a successful mine explosion, Austro-Hungarian troops issued forth, damaged hostile trenches, and returned, after further work of destruction, with booty and a number of prisoners.

RUSSIAN

PETROGRAD, Dec. 16.—The official report in regard to the western Russian) front follows:

In the region east of the village of Koniukhi the struggle continued yesterday until 7 o'clock in the evening for the possession of trenches of one of our ambuscades, which was occupied by the Germans. The trenches changed hands four times. The result was that the southern portion was left in the hands of the enemy. Small enemy detachments that attempted to approach our position in the region of Jezupolia were driven back to their trenches by our fire.

ROUMANIAN FRONT

GERMAN

BERLIN, Dec. 16.—The official report by the general army headquarters detailing operations in Roumania says:

Front of Archduke Joseph—South of the Uzul valley Russian attacks twice repeated were halted by our artillery fire.

Army group of Field Marshal von Mackensen—The left wing of the Ninth army, in indefatigible engagements, has reached the road from Buzeu to Rimiscul.

The Buzeu river sector, east of Buzeu, and on the right wing by a march across the Calmatucal lowland has been forced by fighting

An additional 2,000 prisoners has been brought in. The Danube army is irresistibly advancing northeast.

In Dobrudja the Russians gave up most of their southern positions. Bulgarian, Turkish, and German troops, in rapid pursuit, have crossed the line of Cogelac-Cartal-Hirsova.

The vanguards of the troops who crossed the Danube near Turtukai, Silistria, and Tchernavoda have crossed the Bucharest-Futesti railway.

RUSSIAN

PETROGRAD, Dec. 16.—The official report in regard to operations in Roumania says:

On the Moldavian frontier the enemy's advance in the Oitus valley was repulsed.

With a view to the destruction of mills supplying the Bulgarian army with flour our vessels successfully bombarded the port of Zaltchik (Balchik, on the Bulgarian Black sea coast,) on Wednesday. We were bombarded by shore batteries and attacked by sea planes and a submarine without result.

MESOPOTAMIA

BRITISH

LONDON, Dec. 16.—Reporting on operations in Mesopotamia, the war office today issued this statement:

During Thursday the initial advantage secured by the operations of the previous night were steadily improved, our forces advancing northward by both banks of the Hai river and the British outpost being established within three-quarters of a mile of the Tigris south of Kut.

ITALIAN FRONT

ITALIAN

ROME, Dec. 16.—The Italian war office today issued the following statement:

On the Trentino front military operations were checked by violent storms. On the Julian front there were desultory artillery actions east of Goritz and on the Carso. In spite of the bad weather our troops continue their work of consolidation.

RUSSIANS CALL GERMANY'S PLEA THEATRIC MOVE

Refuse to Submit to Foe's Ambitions—Branded 'Felon'—No Peace Step by London.

PETROGRAD, via London, Dec. 16.—A further exposition of the Russian government's attitude toward the German peace proposal is contained in the following statement obtained by the Associated Press from the Russian foreign office:

"A complete and emphatic rejection by Russia of Germany's offer can hardly have been necessary to convince America and other neutrals of the attitude which the allies will take toward Germany's insincere and theatric peace proposal.

"Germany's wish to impress the neutral nations must have failed through the very nature of the proposal and the transparency of the motives which inspired it.

Lever on Neutral Powers?

"The German declaration has the character of a sensational act of publicity calculated to prepossess the neutral powers. Beyond this it does not merit serious consideration.

"Russia cannot speak of peace with an opponent who has proclaimed himself a victor. The rejection of Germany's proposal in no sense places Russia in the position of a nation not desirous of a durable peace or insensible to the urgent necessity of rescuing Europe from the calamity which has cast its shadow over the entire world.

Will Not Submit to Berlin.

"But Russia will continue to suffer this calamity and add indefinitely to the sacrifices which she has already made rather than submit to the greater catastrophe threatened by German imperial ambitions.

"What Russia, in common with her allies, desires, is not a destroyed Germany, but the final defeat of these ambitions of German domination."

Explains Opposition to Plea.

In an address before the duma, Michael Rodzianko, president of that body gave the reasons why, in his opinion, the proposals should not be accepted. M. Rodzianko is quoted as follows:

"The enemy proposes peace in circumstances which are exceptionally advantageous to him. He claims to be the conqueror. We cannot trust our adversary. He is a worn out felon who seeks not lasting peace but a temporary armistice in order to recuperate before making a fresh onslaught on the allies with greater violence than ever.

"We say to all nations: 'The enemy in the midst of a clatter of arms is seeking an honorable issue from the struggle, foreseeing defeat in the near future.' We say to Germany: 'You began the war. You have brought unspeakable suffering upon humanity. When you have been brought to your knees you will be held responsible.'"

Henderson Speech Bellwether?

LONDON, Dec. 16.—The speech delivered last night by Arthur Henderson is being commented upon as more specific in regard to the peace proposal of the central powers than any other utterance from a responsible government source.

Mr. Henderson's statement that Great Britain entered the war "in defense of small nationalities" was taken as an indication that the defense of small nationalities would be one of the essentials of security for the future to which Mr. Bonar Law referred in general.

One of the foremost diplomatic authorities of England and America said today that the trend of public and governmental sentiment thus far had shown that three courses were open:

First, categorical refusal to negotiate, on lines similar to the position assumed by the Russian duma.

Second, refusal to negotiate and a statement of the essential aims and purposes of the allies, in order to place their position rightly before the world

Third, a request for Germany's terms which would be expected to disclose to the allies that these terms were impossible of acceptance.

Dispatches from Switzerland say that Count Tisza, the Hungarian premier, has gone to Berlin to use his influence for peace.

Hopes for Peace Acceptance.

Everything depends on England's attitude toward peace, Maximilian Harden, writing in his paper, Zukunft, declares today, discussing the German proposals. He declares that, unlike France and Russia, England has not been "dangerously wounded." None of the other powers could continue without England's support, he writes, but England could continue alone.

Seeks Effect of Note.

BERLIN, Dec. 15, by wireless to the Associated Press, via Sayville, Dec. 16 [Delayed.]—A military official, who is frankly and keenly hopeful that some way may be found to end the war, though he is none too optimistic, today called together representatives of the neutral press to inquire as to the probable effect of the German peace note in neutral countries. He laid great stress on this point, and particularly whether there probably would be any tendency to construe the German note as a sign of weakness.

Discussing the possibility that all peace propositions may be rejected at present, this officer declared Germany was aware the French and British would make another Herculean effort in the west next spring—an effort for which Germany would be fully prepared.

In the meantime, this officer continued, Germany would not give Russia time to recuperate, as happened a year ago.

LONELY HEARTS

A LONELY woman in Chicago wrote to THE TRIBUNE on Dec. 13, inquiring in an evidently sincere spirit if there is any possible way for people to get acquainted. In spite of a sunny disposition, there were times, she said, when she became terribly lonesome and blue. And then she described what she considered the proper relationship between a wife and husband. She signed the initials "L. H." THE TRIBUNE asked at the end of her published letter, "What is there to say to L. H.?"

The letter of L. H. brought many replies. There were other women who live as she does and get that same unspeakable loneliness. There were men who sought to solve the great problem. And others not ready to go so far but anxious to offer themselves to L. H. or some similar person willing to marry if she could meet the right man.

Host to Choose From.

L. H. herself may have a host to choose from. There is a principal of a school, there are attorneys, farmers, clerks, and business men in whom her appeal struck a responsive chord. Some of the letters were models of style and correctness. Some were woefully misspelled and illegible. But the big problem is:

How shall all of them meet the right man or the right woman?

This is what an attorney writes:

"Today's letter by L. H. not only has the ring of true sincerity but reveals the real pathos of what might seem a weakness in our present social fabric. There are in our city hundreds of worthy unmarried men and women who are not only willing but eager to assume the obligations of true homebuilding. But how are they to become acquainted?

"Our social life is so hemmed in and restricted by formality that it often proves an actual barrier to the meeting of strangers. I, too, am unmarried and lonesome and how often have I tramped the streets of this city, and among the thousands of handsome, attractive, and apparently good women wondered if there was not somewhere among them one for me. But how was I to meet her?

"A sort of social exchange might be instituted where matrimonial eligibles could be tabulated as to their leading characteristics and desires and enable so-called affinities to be properly introduced and given an opportunity for closer ties of relationship. There would seem to be no reasonable objection to a purely homeseekers' association if sanctioned by proper authority. Who will set the ball in motion?"

Another Lonely Girl.

One young woman is beginning to get cynical, but thinks there still may be a chance. She writes:

"If you are able to help L. H., you may be able to help me also, as I, too, am lonely and have few friends. I have always lived at home and have traveled quite a bit, but unfortunately have met only selfish men—the kind who tell a girl they love her, but in the next breath add they are in no position to marry and would like to continue their friendship. I am beginning to think men do not prefer the domesticated girl, although they rave about them in the papers. MARY."

And Mary adds in a postscript, "And I am not a fright, either."

Wants to Meet Her.

H. J. S. writes: "I wonder if L. H. is aware of the fact that it seems as hard for a man to meet a real woman nowadays. I am an office man, making $100 a month. The sentiments expressed by L. H. are an echo of my own. I wonder if you would be willing to give me her address and allow me to make her acquaintance?"

A farmer of 50 years, who is "not much schooled, but somewhat educated," writes from a small town in Iowa to L. H.:

"There is unison between your remarks and my own ideas," he writes. "Your ideas of the wife's and husband's relationship exactly fit mine. On the whole, I am a pretty decent fellow. I expect to start to Chicago on Monday with a load of cattle. There would be no harm in us meeting, if you are so minded."

For Matrimonial Ads.

Another man, living in a good Chicago neighborhood, writes:

"There are thousands of bachelors seeking wives and thousands of maids seeking husbands, but they do not meet. I have been seeking a mate many years, and although there are hundreds in this city whom I would suit and who would suit me, I have no way to meet them."

This writer said he would be the first to patronize a matrimonial personal column in which men might describe their attractions at so much a word.

Drive Away Blues.

W. E. L., a Chicago man, also is anxious to meet L. H. His letter says, in part:

"I have read the soulful and truthful letter of L. H. and I assure her that I agree that a man and his wife should be 'pals, chums, partners, companions,' always and everywhere. It is a tragedy—a social as well as an industrial tragedy—for a man or a woman to live alone, practically isolated in a great, bustling, pulsating city, passing hundreds of thousands of persons daily.

"I have felt this desolating isolation just as has L. H. And I live in a home, too, not in a hallroom, but with my kin. Often I have felt poignantly that condition which L. H. expressed. 'There are times when I get terribly lonesome and blue.' If L. H. will communicate with me perhaps we may find it possible to drive away the blues and that lonely feeling from each other and prove of mutual aid in getting from life more of the true happiness and content which God intended we two should have."

Another Willing to Marry.

There was something in the letter of "the young widow who was a nurse" that appealed to A. V. R., another wifeless man willing to marry. His letter follows:

"I wish to emphasize what the young woman said: How may women and men become acquainted? I am a young man from the west, where there are not many women. But I am in no respect better off by the contiguity of the many women in Chicago. I was reared on the farm and do not want to live in the city, and want to meet a young woman of similar desires. Especially I would like to get acquainted with the young widow who was a nurse."

A traveling man writes from Dayton that if he had a home of his own he could get to it for every week end. Not having a home, he spends every night in the year in more or less strange hotels.

"I have little opportunity to meet girls of the desirable class," he writes, "and I appreciate the feeling of L. H., for I realize how lonesome a large city is without friends." He will be in Chicago between Christmas and New Year's and would like to meet L. H.

"Let Me Know Her Address."

In a foreign looking script G. H. writes that it is "very hard in Chicago to get acquainted if you are a stranger." He continues: "The young lady has the right idea how married people should live. They should be chums, partners, and companions. I would be glad if I could get acquainted with a young lady like L. H.; I would be thankful to you to let me know her address."

Correspondent A. B. C. would give a great deal to meet such a young woman as L. H.

"Her views coincide with mine in every respect," he writes, "and I believe I would make such a woman as good a husband as she would a wife. If you should publish this and it should meet the eyes of L. H. it will at least let her know that there is one man who would gladly fall in with any suggestion whereby we could be brought together in a conventional and proper manner."

Men in Like Fix.

Then there is a mechanical engineer, who, in spite of his college education, never has been able to devise a means of acquiring a suitable wife. He writes:

"What is there to say to L. H. Tell her for me that there are those of the other sex in exactly in the same position. I am a college graduate and a member of the American Society of Mechanical Engineers."

"She is the kind of a girl I have been looking for for the last two years," writes E. J. M. "She is the first girl I have heard of that is not looking for a rich man for a husband. I am not rich, and am what you could call poor, but I lead a very simple life without any frills, and L. H. comes up to specifications."

One Chicago bachelor resents the nerve of the Dakota farmers who came to Chicago for wives. He believes they should stay at home and suggests an embargo on girls when so many Chicago men want wives and can't seem to get acquainted.

Here's a Real Plan.

C. C. Dodge of 53 West Erie street has been a Chicagoan for only a week, but his opportunities for marriage on his drug plant farm at Albany, Wis., were not much better than those of the lonely Dakotans. He has written to THE TRIBUNE for a wife and has unfolded a plan to make it easier for the lonely ones of a great city to cooperate on a four-room flat and live happily ever after.

"The desire of so many girls to accept even a mudhouse on a North Dakota prairie," wrote Dodge, "indicates that they aren't having the proper opportunities to meet young men right here in Chicago. They won't stay on the farm long, most of them, so they ought to get started right in their own home town.

"It is easy enough to pick up an acquaintance in Chicago, but that kind of an acquaintance usually doesn't lead to a happy marriage. Most men need help in selecting a life partner, and I guess most women do, too.

For Record Club.

"It ought to be possible to get a character rating on a man or women, just as Dun or Bradstreet will furnish a financial rating. My plan is to have the city, or perhaps a group of public spirited citizens, organize a club which would open its membership to all decent young men and women anxious to get married. The records of the club ought to indicate the physical characteristics of the members, give their home and previous homes, their work, their club and church affiliations, names of their friends, and their bank, as a man's bank affairs re often an indication of his character.

"There ought to be a few character experts in charge of investigating the persons who apply for membership, and there should be dances and dinners and lectures and programs and club rooms for the men and women to get acquainted. Coöperation with similar organizations in other cities would be valuable in looking up past records of people. The expense should be borne by the members of the club, who, if seriously looking for a mate, ought to be willing to spend something to prevent the disappointment and the disallusionment of getting the wrong partner."

Dodge has confidence that his own ability to read character will assist him in choosing the right girl—if he only knew how to get acquainted.

KING OF BAVARIA HOPEFUL PEACE OFFER IS ACCEPTED.

German Ruler Looks for Honorable Settlement, but Sees Sterner Struggle if Entente Refuses.

AMSTERDAM, Dec. 16.—The king of Bavaria, according to a Munich dispatch to the Lokal Anzeiger of Berlin, in an address to his troops on the peace proposal, said:

"Although I do not know yet whether the peace proposal will be accepted, I hope it will bring about an honorable peace corresponding to the sacrifices of two and a half years of war, a peace of which we can be proud and which will safeguard us for many years.

"If our enemies do not accept the magnanimous proposal then we must convince them through still greater might and greater successes that they cannot conquer us."

CONGRESS SPLIT OVER U. S. STAND ON PEACE NOTE

Some Members Say Wilson Should Have Suggested Parley—Others Demur.

[BY A STAFF CORRESPONDENT.]

Washington, D. C., Dec. 16.—[Special.]—President Wilson's decision not to suggest to the allies the desirability of discussing peace with Germany at this time was received with mixed feelings by congress.

A number of senators and congressmen felt that the president could have made such a suggestion in a manner that would not have been offensive to the allies. Just as many, however, expressed the view that the United States should not interfere in any way and that Mr. Wilson was entirely justified in deciding to act merely as Germany's messenger.

Mann Regrets Wilson Silence.

Minority Leader Mann said he regretted exceedingly that the president had decided to make no representations to the allies at this time.

"Of course," Mr. Mann said, "I assume, if Mr. Wilson has refrained from suggesting the desirability of a peace discussion, he had sufficient reason for doing so. But after two and a half years of war such as this has been I do think some way could be found for the United States to make a suggestion which would be given consideration. Surely there would be nothing wrong in attempting to bring the belligerents together."

Think Wilson Should Act.

Senators McCumber of North Dakota and Norris of Nebraska said they believed the president should use his influence with the allies to get them to discuss peace.

Senators William Alden Smith of Michigan and Watson of Indiana thought the president was right in refraining from asking any overtures at this time.

Congressman Cooper of Wisconsin, on the other hand, said the United States could make representations at this time which in no way could be identified with the German terms.

Representative Madden of Chicago expressed the hope that the president will find his way clear to intercede in behalf of peace at an early date if he does not feel the present time propitious.

ITALIAN STEAMSHIP ELUDES EIGHT GERMAN SUBMARINES.

New York, Dec. 16.—Eight enemy submarines, all of which were successfully eluded through warnings received from patrol boats of the entente powers, imperiled the voyage of the Italian steamship Giuseppe Verdi, which arrived here today from Genoa, Italy.

SAY BELGIANS USED TRICKERY

Germans Explain How Errors Were Made in Deportations.

POLITICS WERE PLAYED

BY CARL W. ACKERMAN.

[UNITED PRESS STAFF CORRESPONDENT.]

BERLIN, Dec. 16.—Germany has returned six or seven hundred Belgian workmen who had been transported out of Belgium because of mistakes in classification whereby they were incorrectly designated as unemployed. This information came to the United Press Bureau here tonight in a telegram from Brussels.

Behind this redress accorded by Germany lies an interesting story. The mistakes by which these workmen were transported were due to playing of politics by Belgian mayors of towns.

Blamed on Corruption.

"The newspapers in entente countries," the Brussels telegram says, "are making a great fuss because many persons not belonging to the working class or not dependent upon charity have been transported to Germany. It is doubtless true that mistakes have been made. Many Belgian mayors refused to issue the necessary lists of unemployed.

"If these mayors had given the German authorities the lists of all employed, so that the unemployed could have been chosen, either their protégés would have been transported or the fraud would have become known.

Sent Away Political Rivals.

"But instead these mayors gave information, not from the viewpoint of the unemployed, but from that of party politics. Many Liberal or Socialist mayors listed their clerical political opponents as unemployed, while the clerical mayors, in the same fashion, saw to listing as unemployed of their political opponents.

"This explains why it was that a great many intellectual people and not mere workmen were transported by error.

"Not only did mayors do this but in many cases they put on the list of unemployed many working people whom they suspected of being friendly to the Germans."

MARMON 34
THE STATELY MOTOR-COACH

BALANCE and aluminum are two prime factors in the new school of scientific motor car construction which the Marmon 34 established.

A year ago the public was quick to appreciate this long, light-weight, high-powered car and to reward it with recognition second to none in the world.

Now—with the Closed Car season under way—there has developed a surprising demand for the Marmon 34 chassis equipped with bodies designed by "Kimball," "Holbrook," "Thompson" and "New Haven Carriage Company."

Bird-like acceleration, extraordinary power, quick-acting brakes and short turning radius make the Marmon Town Car (illustrated) not only splendid for open boulevards but especially ideal for crowded traffic and emergencies requiring ease in handling and nimbleness and obedience in starting and stopping.

Marmon Closed Cars are 1100 pounds lighter, from 50 to 75 per cent more economical in fuel consumption, and far more sparing on tires, than any other motor-coach of equal size and power.

Nearly 350 Marmon 34 models are now owned in Chicago and vicinity. Ask any Marmon owner—man to man—the reasons for his enthusiasm.

ECONOMIC CRISIS AFTER WAR SEEN BY VANDERLIP

Head of Nation's Biggest Financial Institution Tells of His Rise from Clerk.

Frank A. Vanderlip, former reporter on THE TRIBUNE, touched upon the dramatic narrative of his business success last night at the banquet given by the Bankers' Club of Chicago in the gold room of the Congress hotel. His address in the main dealt with finance—America's financial strength and weaknesses.

Bankers not only from Chicago, but from all the larger cities in the middle west were there. About $3,000,000,000 money power was represented by the audience that faced the head of the National City Bank of New York as he arose to speak.

Tells of His Beginning.

Mr. Vanderlip looked down into the faces of his old friends and told how, just thirty years ago, he began his career as a stenographer in a La Salle street office in Chicago. He kept his eyes and ears open and then, just twenty years ago, he landed in New York. He was at first overwhelmed, he said, but he persevered. He did not need to say that now he is head of the largest banking institution on the continent.

He said that in all the thirty years the dearest things he held in his heart were the friendships he cemented back in La Salle street and the newspaper days. This human interest touch was applauded.

Frank G. Nelson of the Merchants Loan and Trust bank presided. He also got a hand when he introduced Mr. Vanderlip in the following speech:

"Gentlemen: Mr. Frank A. Vanderlip."

Face Economic Crisis.

Mr. Vanderlip told his hearers that at the close of the European war they would face the greatest economic crisis in America. They would meet, he said, an economic coöperation that would be something beyond the present vision of the American banker.

He pleaded for a higher standard of intelligence on the part of the bankers and for a sounder public opinion on the part of the people as a whole. He denounced the action of the federal reserve board in advising against investing in securities of the belligerent nations and arraigned the railway brotherhoods who backed the Adamson eight hour bill. He said that he listened recently to the statements of these labor leaders, and that while they spoke with smiles on their faces they uttered sentiments that to him were the "essence of anarchy."

He praised the federal trade commission and spoke an appreciation of Edward N. Hurley of Chicago, head of the commission.

Blame for Bankers.

He blamed the bankers in part for the growth of state socialism in America because, he said, they had failed to play the big part they should have done, which gave rise to the demand by the people for relief through state control.

He opposed the income tax, declaring rather for a tax on expenditures, and laid down the general proposition that great wealth should bear the greater burdens of government, but along scientific lines. Careless expenditure of wealth, he insisted, was a detriment to the nation. A tax on expenditures, he observed, would tend to eliminate the thoughtless wasting of money for mere show and pleasure that was not abiding.

Some Bad Laws Passed.

He said that while some bad laws had been passed and governmental agencies had not acted wisely at all times he still believed that in the last twenty years the average of human activity and government in the United States had steadily mounted to a higher plane.

He laid down the rule that if the bankers and the public would see to it that business was well conducted "government interference" would cease.

The ideal banker of the future, he said, will have a greater equipment of learning than bankers possess today. He will be schooled in economics, will know history and international law, will be familiar with the practices and personalities of the money centers of the world and thereby will escape provincialism and sectionalism and become "more nearly the ideal citizen."

"Sound thinking in economics," he said, "is one of the greatest needs of the nation."

Economic Illiteracy.

"We are a country of economic illiterates," said Mr. Vanderlip in the course of his address. "I know of no illiteracy more dangerous to the welfare of a commonwealth.

"Whatever need there has been in the past for the leaders of the country to think soundly, there is going to be a still greater need in the future. It requires no prophetic vision to see that we are coming into a time when it will be necessary to make vitally important national decisions. The effect of those decisions will be more far reaching, the difficulties involved in measuring forces and calculating effects will be immeasureably greater, than has been true at any time before in our lives.

"Today we cannot begin to measure the extent, even to guess at the character, of the problems that the world cataclysm is developing. Indeed, I think that our people as a whole have but slight conception of the nature of that cataclysm, and the inevitableness of our relation to its effect.

Dulled by Prosperity.

"A part of the country has been submerged in prosperity and its sense of proportions and relationships has certainly been dulled. Another, and a greater part, which has only experienced this prosperity in a reflected way and has viewed both the war and itself and its reflex action upon our industries in a somewhat far away and detached manner, has developed a point of view of aloofness from the world's tragedy. It has been a spectacle, but it has not gripped their souls.

"They look with horror on the carnage, with satisfaction on the profits, but with an unrelated sort of superiority to both, and feel that as a nation it is best for us to avoid being involved in any of the consequences. Indeed, no small number of the people look upon the interior of the United States as the only important section of the world that is still quite sane, and their chief wish is for us to proceed quietly on a course that will keep us out of trouble.

"To me, this seems an utter lack of imagination, a blindness of vision, a complete failure to understand the unity of the industrial, commercial, and financial world.

Grave Problems Ahead.

"Unless I utterly misjudge affairs, there are going to develop for this country problems of the gravest import—problems that will need for their correct solution the attention of the most enlightened minds. This country will need leaders with an apprehension of true principles of action—leaders who will have decision and force in formulating policies and putting them into execution, the like of which the country has not needed in our time.

"Those problems that will press on us for solution can neither be repelled nor postponed by the pacifist nor by the advocate of preparedness. Some of these questions that must be answered will come directly from the field of this terrible war, but others will develop within our own borders, among our own people, and out of our own characteristics.

"State socialism in Europe may develop problems, the like of which have never concerned our minds. We may have to meet collective buying, state aided industries, forms of governmental coöperation with business quite outside our range of thought. Governmental control of ocean borne commerce, and novel factors in international finance will be subjects for national consideration. Indeed, there may ultimately come out of the great war changes in forms of government that will have profound and worldwide influence.

Labor Situation Momentous.

"Such matters as those are among the things that one may see when he looks outward, but there are other matters quite as grave that are developing directly about us. At the present moment we are in the midst of a situation created by the autocratic power of great labor unions, the right or wrong solution of which will be followed by consequences which go to the very foundations of the government. Was there ever greater need in the world for just weighing of human rights and economic laws?

"Within this week I heard the representative of the four great railway unions state his views before the Economic club of New York. To my mind, while clothed with graceful language, while presented with a smile, they were views that contained the essence of anarchy. We were told we must not pass certain laws because they would not be obeyed; we were given clear intimations regarding the power of these organizations; but there was not one hint of their duty or responsibility to society.

Need National Awakening.

"For my part, I am hopeful that such utterances do not truly voice the attitude of any great part of the people of America, indeed, that they do not truly voice the attitude of any great part of organized labor, but they certainly emphasize the need for a national awakening to the necessity for fundamentally sound thinking on economic problems. The necessity for the discussion of these subjects is not academic, but most practical and most intimately and immediately related to our welfare and our lives.

"It is easy to see that the unsound, the unwise, the wrong solution of these problems that are pressing upon us will cost us an immeasurable sum of potential wealth, of individual happiness, of national progress; but if the cost of wrong decisions is immeasurably great, how immeasurably great also will be the reward of right decisions.

Vast Opportunities Here.

"Never since the beginning of time, was there such an opportunity. Never did a people have before them a choice of two roads that led to such different destinations. Never did a nation have flung at it so many gifts of opportunity, such inspiration for achievement. We have always known that nature had been lavish, that in a material way everything was ready at hand and needed but industry, thrift, and right living to bring material success to the country and to all of its people.

"But on top of that comes what seems almost a conspiracy of events to test our moral fiber. A floodtide of wealth, of opportunity, which, added to our resources, puts upon the people of this country a responsibility of trusteeship to the world. We are like the heir of an enormously wealthy father. None too well trained, none too experienced, with the pleasure loving qualities of youth, we have suddenly by a world tragedy been made heir to the greatest estate of opportunity that imagination ever pictured.

Five-Fold Development.

"The last twenty years has seen a five-fold development. I would hesitate to suggest what the next twenty years may see if we rightly manage this heritage. Will we look upon it as we surely should look upon it, as a great responsibility? Will it sober us, make us see that our national judgments and decisions are now of world-wide significance? Will we keep in mind that with this new wealth, this wealth in material things, and vastly greater wealth in potential opportunity, have come responsibilities?

"We will gain the esteem of the world and the satisfaction of the approval of our own national conscience in just the measure that we meet and rightly discharge these responsibilities."

ALBERT LARSON TO SUE ON FALSE ARREST CHARGE.

Lawyer Takes Exception to Comment of Judge Brothers on Maudlin Sentimentalism of Jury.

Attorney Morris G. Leonard announced his intention yesterday of starting suit against the Metropolitan Life Insurance company for the alleged false arrest and malicious prosecution of Albert O. Larson. Larson was tried by a jury and acquitted of the charge of embezzlement after he had previously been discharged in the Municipal court by Judge Dolan.

Attorney Leonard also takes exception to the comment made by Judge Brothers that the jury which acquitted Larson was actuated by "maudlin sentimentalism," which it had learned in the movies.

In a letter which the lawyer said he sent to the judge he says: "Even if any other verdict was justifiable, still that is not a just ground for the presiding judge to publicly reindict him and charge him with criminality in a way that leaves him utterly helpless to defend himself.

"In the state of Illinois the jurors are the judges of the law as well as of the facts, and the judge ought not and cannot condemn a jury, whatever their verdict may be."

GETS IT OFF HIS CHEST.

Edward H. Michaels, found guilty of bigamy last Friday and arrested on a $23,000 embezzlement charge as he left the courtroom under bonds, has a grievance against THE TRIBUNE. He came to THE TRIBUNE office yesterday to complain.

"THE TRIBUNE did me wrong," he announced. "It said I was guilty of bigamy."

"It said that a jury said you were," he was reminded.

"Ah," said Mr. Michaels, "the jury may have said so, that is true. But I know that I'm not. And I'm going right over now to complain to my lawyer, Mr. Robert Cantwell."

"How can I help it," observed Mr. Cantwell when seen later, "if a client of mine goes around acting that way?"

HE PROMISED A BUNGALOW; SHE WEDS; FINDS IT BOXCAR.

That and Discovery That Correspondence Wooer Is Greek Sends Detroit Girl Scurrying Home.

Grand Junction, Colo., Dec. 16.—Mrs. Peter Barbars, who until ten days ago was Miss Esther Wells of Detroit, Mich., is on her way home to her parents tonight, her dream of a romantic future in a pretty bungalow home shattered.

Using his sister for amanuensis, Barbars wooed Miss Wells by correspondence, painting glowing pictures of his wealth and the pretty bungalow home in which he would install his bride.

Ten days ago the girl arrived from Detroit and met her intended. The picture of a happy bungalow still persisted and despite misgivings she married him.

Following the wedding Barbars took his bride to his boxcar home on the railroad siding and resumed his labor as a section man on the railroad. After living ten days in the boxcar, the girl rebelled and as soon as her parents learned the truth they sent for her.

If You Want the Best It Must Be an APOLLO

What is it worth to you to be able to say that you own the finest player piano known in the world and know you speak the truth?

Every owner of an Apollo Player Piano can make that statement without fear of successful contradiction.

It is the finest player piano made—it's the best construction—the sweetest toned—the longest-lived—and—most important of all—the Apollo yields the finest music.

You'll understand WHY our claims are so broad—you'll wonder why they are not broader when you hear the Apollo accent the melody and omit it altogether—when you hear the accompaniment played in any desired key—when you see how the Apollo touches down on the keys like a human artist.

Three Exclusive Apollo Features—Do You Want a Player without Them?

Down Touch

No player piano besides the Apollo is permitted to play by touching down on the keys.

This is the natural way—the correct way. It is the way the piano is built to be played. The Apollo Player Piano is the only player piano in the world which plays by touching down on the keys.

Metronome Motor

The Metronome motor, which rewinds music rolls without pedaling, is so durably constructed that it will run even when completely immersed in water. Its adjustment and action are as accurate as a fine watch. Compare other motors with the watch-like Metronome of the Apollo. The Metronome spring motor is absolutely necessary for the rendition of a musical composition—it runs the roll at perfectly controlled speed at all times.

Dynaline Expression Indicator

In the Apollo you will find the DYNALINE DEVICE—a guide to musical expression which enables any one after a half hour or so of practice to secure exactly the same results in the way of expression as the finished artist. In this simple way we have enabled our owners at all times to pedal their instruments correctly, at the same time not interfering with their putting their own interpretation in the music when desired.

The Apollo Transposing Device

When any one wants to sing, using the Apollo Player Piano for accompaniment, transposing in the desired key is as simple and easy an accomplishment as asking for it in sheet music.

Just turning a small adjusting knob transposes the music of the Apollo into any key desired for accompanying either voice or instrument.

Come in and compare what you can make the Apollo do with what your favorite Pianist does. We make no reservation in favor of the Pianist and no excuses are needed for the Apollo.

Apollo Players from $625 to $2400

Our lines of pianos and player-pianos represent the finest, sweetest tone, most dependable makes in the world: Knabe, Mehlin, Wurlitzer, Kurtzmann, Farny, Strad, Kingston pianos and players and the celebrated Apollo, Knabe, Ampico and Welte Mignon player pianos.

ALLIES BLAMED FOR DEATH OF GERMAN CONSUL

Died from Treatment Received After Seizure on Isle of Syra, Berlin Declares.

BERLIN, Dec. 16, by wireless to Sayville.—The German, Austro-Hungarian, and Turkish residents of the Greek Island of Syra were arrested by an entente detachment that landed there, according to official reports that have reached Berlin, says an Overseas News Agency statement today.

"The German consul," the statement adds, "died twenty-four hours later from the effects of the abominable treatment he received. He was 60 years of age. He was a Greek citizen named Dallegao, who had been for thirty-three years in the German service.

"Entente detachments on a previous occasion had inflicted similar treatment upon Consul Ornstein on the Island of Chios, who is 73 years old. He was captured and carried off in the night time by entente forces."

Complete Compliance by Greece.

ATHENS, Dec. 16.—The Greek government's reply accepting the demands of the entente allies is a complete compliance with their ultimatum and an expression of the hope for resumption "of traditional relations with the entente nations, based on reciprocal confidence."

ATHENS CLASH REVIEW.

BERLIN, Dec. 13, by wireless to the Associated Press via Sayville, N. Y., Dec. 16—[Delayed.]—Advices received here from Athens give the following account of the recent clash there between Greek and entente troops:

The collision was provoked and started by the force of Vice Admiral Du Fournet, commander of the entente allied squadron in Greek waters. This force was landed at night and began at dawn a surprise march to Athens. This march was continued notwithstanding efforts of leaders on both sides to have it stopped.

The bombardment of the royal palace was opened without warning. The queen and the royal children were forced hastily to take refuge in the cellars of the palace during the firing, which continued for three hours.

Fighting between loyal troops and partisans of former Premier Venizelos, which began on the first day, developed on the second day into a street battle. Well armed Venizelists fired from houses upon the troops and even upon civilians, but the loyal forces eventually were able to suppress the uprising.

BIG LONDON BANKER DIES.

George H. Pownall, Who Had Large Part in Allies' Loan in United States Expires Suddenly.

LONDON, Dec. 16.—George H. Pownall, president of the Institute of Bankers, died suddenly here today at the age of 67 years. Mr. Pownall had been a member of the American dollar securities committee and had a large part in all the war financial adjustments between the entente allies and the United States.

CONTINUE GAIN IN BALKAN FIELD

Berlin Reports Armies Have Reached Road from Buzan to Rimiscul.

PERESTI IS CAPTURED.

BERLIN, via Sayville wireless, Dec. 16.—"After indefatigable engagements the left wing of the Ninth army in Roumania reached the road from Buzau to Rimiscul," today's official statement reported.

Occupation of Peresti was announced in the Bulgarian official statement today, issued in Sofia.

Russians Admit Losses.

PETROGRAD, Dec. 16.—Occupancy of a portion of southernmost Russian trenches east of the village of Koniukhi by the enemy following violent struggles was announced in today's official report. The fighting was for possession of one of the Russian ambuscade trenches.

RUSSIANS SHELL ROUMANIAN PORT HELD BY BULGARIANS.

Seek to Destroy Flour Mills at Ballchek on the Black Sea—Fleet Escapes in Safety.

PETROGRAD, Dec. 16.—Successful bombardment of Ballchek by Russian warships was announced in today's official statement. Despite attacks by enemy shore batteries, seaplanes and submarines, the Russian attacking squadron was unharmed.

The bombardment of Ballchek, the statement explained, was with a view to destruction of mills supplying the Bulgarians with flour. The Russian attempt occurred on Wednesday. The attacking vessels were fired at in turn, "but the enemy gained no result," according to the statement.

Ballchek, or Balcik, is a Roumanian seaport on the Black sea, about fifteen miles north of the important Bulgarian seaport of Varna.

Bombardment Kills Four.

BERLIN, Dec. 16.—The general staff says regarding the shelling of Ballchik:

> Russian ships have shelled Ballchik (on the Black sea coast of Dobrudja). Four inhabitants were killed and five wounded.

U-BOAT SINKS GREEK SHIP; TOWS CREW NEAR TO SHORE.

PARIS, Dec. 16.—The sinking of the 3,000 ton Greek steamship Salamis by a German submarine is reported in a Havas dispatch from Madrid. The crew embarked in eight of the ship's boats, which were towed by the submarine to a point near the coast.

Two Vessels Reported Sunk.

LONDON, Dec. 16.—The Norwegian steamer Brask of 905 tons net and the British ship Naiad have been sunk, says a Lloyd's shipping agency announcement today. Both crews were saved.

Swedish Steamer Destroyed.

CHRISTIANIA, Dec. 16.—The Swedish steamer Vala has been destroyed by a mine, and fourteen members of its crew are missing, according to the Aftenposten. Another report says the crew has been landed.

PAINTS GERMANY UNITED BEHIND ITS WAR CHIEFS

Former Chicago Editor, in Uncensored Story, Tells of People's Attitude.

In an endeavor to get further light on the sentiment in Germany regarding the war, and further information on the present-day social and political conditions in the empire, "The Tribune" asked Mr. Fritz Glogauer, for many years a German newspaper publisher in Chicago and the founder of the Abendpost, to write a series of letters on this subject. Mr. Glogauer recently returned from Germany and is at present residing in California.

BY FRITZ GLOGAUER.

When the war broke out I had taken residence at Munich and entered into engagements which it was not easy to break. I, therefore, remained until, by the acts of the British censor, I was completely cut off from the United States. I returned to this country on Sept. 20, 1916, having been a witness of events in Germany throughout the war.

At the outset let it be stated that the German nation has never been deluded by a military caste and is not deluded now. Every well educated German knows enough French to read and understand the French newspapers, and the number of those speaking English is large even among the less educated, such as waiters, clerks, etc.

Easy to Buy Foe's Papers.

Neither before the war nor since the outbreak of hostilities has there been the slightest governmental interference with the sale and circulation of French and English newspapers. They are to be had at every newsdealer's and to be found at every cafe.

In addition, Swiss, Dutch, Swedish, and other neutral papers find their way into Germany. Under these circumstances it would be folly for the German press to suppress or misrepresent facts.

The military authorities themselves publish every day the official reports of the British, French, and Russian staffs, and the German newspapers add to these the speeches of the leading hostile statesmen as well as the memorable outbursts of the best known foreign papers.

Better Informed than Americans.

I can truthfully say that I was just as well, if not better, informed about the actual occurrences of the war while I was in Germany as I have been kept informed since my return.

Whatsoever the talk about the despotic and tyrannical rule of a military caste may amount to—and I myself have not seen any evidence of such rule—it must certainly be acknowledged that the wool was not pulled over the German people's eyes.

Many critics thought, indeed, that German diplomacy could and should have averted the success of the machinations of Iswalski, Delcassé, Edward VII., and Grey, but not one of them doubted that it had been the endeavor of this gentry for many years past to entrap Germany.

No Protest to War Declaration.

Not a voice of protest was raised when the government, after fruitless efforts to cause the demobilization of Russia, declared war. On the contrary, complaint was to be heard frequently that the declaration of war had been delayed too long, giving Russia a chance to bring her enormous armies to the frontier before Germany could counteract her movements.

Such being the conviction of practically the entire German nation, it is not to be wondered at that it ever was and is resolved to defend the existence of the empire and the national unity, even with the loss of half its fighting strength.

Prussia Not Grinding Neighbors.

The idea that the smaller German states are "groaning under the iron heel of Prussia" and trying to regain their freedom is preposterous. As a matter of fact, every German appreciates what the nation has gained since the foundation of the empire, and not one would ever want to return to the old condition of things, when even the reigning nations had no respect for what was left of the holy Roman empire.

Americans who have fought almost five years for the maintenance of the union, although the northern states alone could have formed a respectable unit, should be able to understand the antagonism in Germany against reestablishing the ridiculous "rope of sand" known as the German confederation and despised by the whole world.

Threats Harden Determination.

It is the greatest mistake that the British jingo press especially can make to flaunt before the eyes of the German people the specter of disruption and disorganization. The more she indulges in such threats the more strengthened are the German people in their determination to resist to the utmost limit of their ability.

Equally as erroneous is the idea that the kaiser is hated as the originator of the war or as the head of the beforementioned mythical military caste.

While no well informed person in German believes the emperor is "running the war," he is generally given credit for his fidelity to duty and his untiring zeal. It is probably no exaggeration to say that the emperor is more popular and really beloved by his people than he ever was before. He treats the other German kings and potentates with the greatest consideration and is actually admired by them.

War Aimed Against Germany.

Imagine then the effect on the German mind of such threats as banishing the kaiser to St. Helena, driving the Hohenzollerns from the throne or reducing them again to the state of Margrave of Brandenburg! Nothing is better calculated to inflame the "furor Teutonicus" than such vaporings.

They seem to the Germans to be the best confirmation of their belief that the whole war was started for the purpose of humiliating Germany and destroying the foundation of her political and commercial strength. If anybody is "deluded" it is, in my opinion, the influential journalism of England and France.

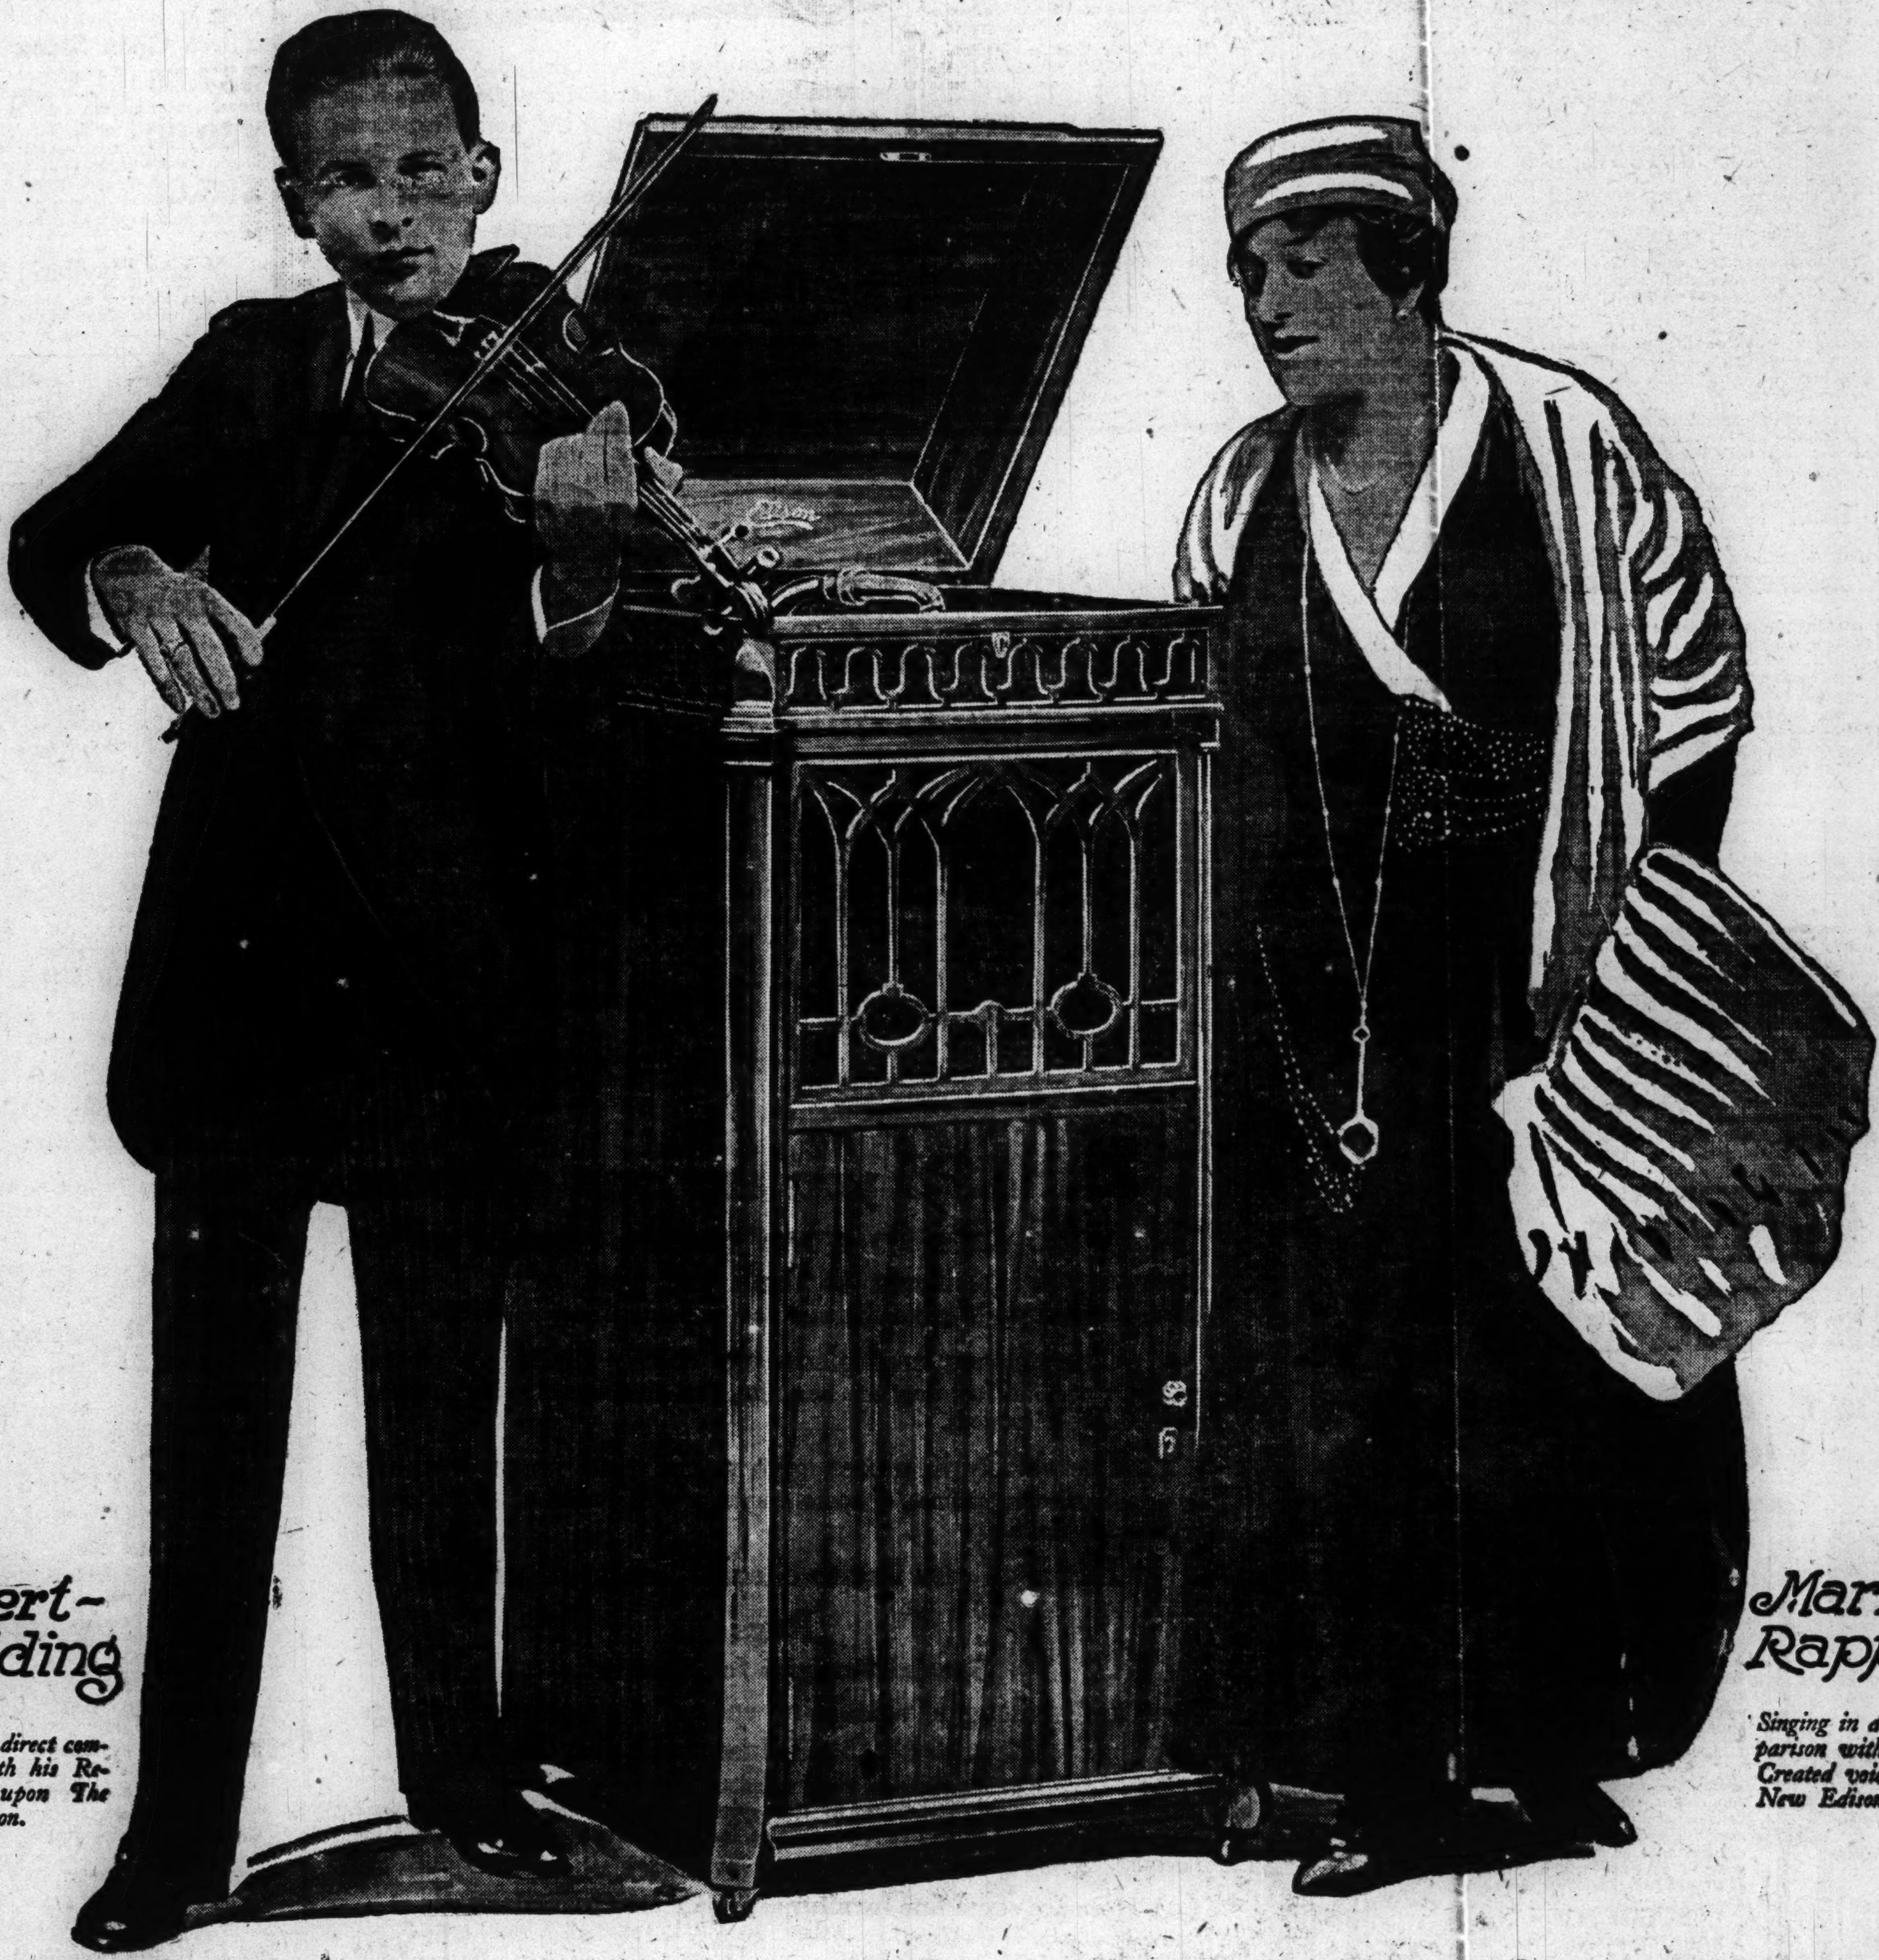
Music's Re-Creation A New Art



Albert-Spalding

Playing in direct comparison with his Re-Creation upon The New Edison.

Marie-Rappold

Singing in direct comparison with her Re-Created voice on The New Edison.

MUSIC just as music is—alive with that fleeting breath of reality—Re-Created!

This new art is Thomas A. Edison's sublime gift to mankind. It has made genuine music a universal possession.

Let it be your gift this year—your message of cheer and good will to the loved ones. It is a worthy, noble gift—a treasured possession that will spread its wholesome influence for years to come.

The New Edison

> "It is impossible to distinguish between the singer's living voice and its Re-Creation by the musical instrument which bears the stamp of Edison's genius."
> —The Boston Herald.

Thomas A. Edison

OVER 200 newspaper critics—men whose judgment is sharp and severe—have agreed substantially with the above in the columns of their newspapers.

Mr. Edison has proved the superiority of his new art. He alone has dared to submit the music of his instrument to the searching test of comparison with the living tone. 200,000 people have been held spellbound by this unique and convincing test.

In Choosing for Christmas,

you cannot afford to ignore the overwhelming indorsement of the New Edison by music critics and music lovers. Will you not go, at once, and judge for yourself. Wherever you live, one of Mr. Edison's representatives is near you. He will gladly acquaint you with this new art.

SELF-DEFENSE CARDINAL DUTY OF AMERICANS

Garrison Brands Lack of Interest Little Short of Treason—Foe of Alliances.

New York, Dec. 16.—To question the power and imperative necessity of the national government to make preparation for defense "is little short of treason," it was declared here today by former Secretary of War Lindley M. Garrison in an address on "Nationalism" before the Lawyers' club.

After reviewing the passing of many powers and duties from the state governments to the national government he said that in the matter of preparedness the central government "flinched and faltered and sought to pass its neglected duty to the states," the result being "a lamentable failure."

Nation's Welfare at Stake.

"From the viewpoint of the national entity," Mr. Garrison said, "nationalism is the possession of and the exercise by the national government of every power and function necessary to perform properly the collective duties and to fulfill completely the collective obligations of the nation from the viewpoint of the citizens.

Nationalism is the yielding, not in theory but in practice, of his mind, his heart, and his spirit to the welfare of the nation, the contribution of his material means and his physical force to its preservation and defense. It means service and sacrifice, devotion, and loyalty."

Takes Fling at Pacifists.

One of the most dangerous sentiments threatening the integrity of the nation, he said, is that which "utilizes the natural and universal abhorrence of war as a reason for not preparing for its possibilities."

"Self-defense is the cardinal duty of a nation," he said. "The national government is the only agency that can make proper preparation. To deny its power or to question the imperative necessity of its exerting that power is little short of treason.

"This is a duty which the national government has neglected. In this particular the modern tendency has been reversed. The national government flinched and faltered and sought to pass its neglected duty to the states. The result was, and was bound to be, a lamentable failure."

Would Avoid Alliances.

Mr. Garrison went on to speak for the avoidance by the United States of European entanglements, saying that any proposition which requires this country to enter an alliance with the other nations of the world "should be tested in the fiery furnace of fierce debate and discussion before it should be acted upon."

If the United States, he said, engaged as has been suggested in a universal alliance, "she is perforce a party to every quarrel the wide world over."

UNIVERSAL DRILL A NECESSITY

Compulsory Military Service Bound to Come Say Leaders of Move for Congress Action.

Universal military training as the best insurance of peace is bound to be adopted by the United States according to speakers who made known their views at a luncheon at the Union League club yesterday. Rush C. Butler, vice president of the club, presented Frank G. Logan, chairman of the executive committee of the Universal Military Training league, who in turn introduced the other speakers.

Mr. Logan said that marked progress in popularizing the idea of universal military training is being made. He said one of the most remarkable things about the movement so recently inaugurated is the strong, favorable stand taken by many of the most influential newspapers of the country.

He mentioned a "business man of large interests who has done business not in the millions but hundreds of millions," who recently asserted, "Our country is drifting into grave danger. The best safeguard is universal military training."

Address by Gross.

Howard H. Gross, president of the Universal Military Training league, and Dr. R. A. White, pastor of the People's Liberal church of Englewood, discussed military training from various standpoints.

"Having just returned from Washington and New York, it is possible for me to say something regarding the headway this movement is making in that part of the country," said Mr. Gross. "We find a general response in congress in favor of this plan. This applies to the senate and the house. Senator Chamberlain, chairman of the senate committee on military affairs, already has taken the initiative by naming a special subcommittee to whip into shape a military training measure. The senator plans public hearings at Washington, at which those best qualified to speak on the subject will be heard.

Training Is Democratic.

"The fact is that universal military training, if operated in this country in a conservative way, modeled probably after the Swiss system, is the most democratic of all defensive military plans. It puts to the fore the young man before he has reached the age at which he usually assumes the marriage relationship, and gives him a training that benefits him physically, mentally, and morally. My belief, based upon careful study, is that an American system of military training will give our nation a new backbone. It will stiffen the national character and steady the national will."

Mr. Gross asserted that the trained boy in case of actual warfare has chances three times better of getting back home alive than the untrained lad.

Dr. White Urges Action.

Dr. White said it would be criminally unwise not to prepare the nation against the possibility of war.

"A nation that permits its citizens to be murdered, its flag flouted, rather than fight, lacks the courage that makes a nation great and lacks the red blood that ran in the veins of our forefathers," he asserted. "If it submits to these indignities because it is afraid to fight it is cowardly. If it submits because it is unprepared and has to submit it is criminally unwise?"

Frank A. Vanderlip Declares He Would Have Every Man Able to Walk Trained for War.

Frank A. Vanderlip, president of the National City of Bank of New York, urged universal military training "for every man able to stand on his legs" and every industry in the United States at once before a meeting of the central department, junior division of the Military Training Camps association of the United States at a Midday club luncheon.

Others speakers were Maj. Gen. Thomas H. Barry, U. S. A.; Horace C. Stebbins, chairman of the junior division of the association, and President Edmund James of the University of Illinois. About 200 prominent Chicago men attended the luncheon and indorsed the movement for junior training camps in the middle west.

Old Ideas to Scrap Heap.

"All our old ideas of warfare," said Mr. Vanderlip, "have been tossed into the scraphead. It has been proved that in order to maintain its battle lines a nation must weigh to the last ounce its industrial, financial, and physical resources. If it fails in one of these particulars the knife edge will be turned.

"In forty-eight hours after the call was issued Switzerland mobilized an army of 400,000 out of a population no larger than the city of New York. But when Villa threatened us—I tell you the slowness of our mobilization certainly would wear out the most courteous enemy in the world.

"Even under the old rules of warfare this nation would be like an untrained college football team trying to compete with veterans of the gridiron.

"If universal military training meant nothing more than individual efficiency and organization that argument alone should be sufficient. It is morally right that the burden of military life should fall on all shoulders alike. The pacifists raise the cry that universal training would mean militarism and would make us bellicose. Does a man become a street brawler merely because he is physically fit and trained to defend himself?

Camps Just a Starter.

"The only danger with the Plattsburgh camp and the boys' camp is that we may allow ourselves to be satisfied with them. We may think that is the road to travel when it is only a sign post.

"Our industrial establishments need coördinating for this purpose. It would be well to give annual education orders to each plant capable of turning out war supplies.

"Take such a simple thing as exploding a mine under a trench. Why, we would have to send to Chile for the nitrate, to Spain for the pyrites, and then build up an organization to make the mines and another to transport them and others to set them off.

"I was told recently by a man in charge of the French aviation service that this country should own at least 5,000 airplanes and should have one-half of them in the air every day training men."

Barry Gives Assurances.

Gen. Barry said he is going to find a way to establish junior training camps in the central department next summer. He hopes to get sufficient noncommissioned officers back from the border to act as junior instructors.

President Edmund James said 60 per cent of the students entering the University of Illinois had never had any physical training.

NO MORE TROOPS WILL BE MOVED BACK TO HOMES

Mann Tells Governors Those on Border Are Likely to Be Kept for Some Time.

[BY A STAFF CORRESPONDENT.]

Washington, D. C., Dec. 16.—[Special.]—Gen. William A. Mann, chief of the militia division of the war department, today told the conference of governors that no more troops would be sent to the border and no more brought home in the near future. He gave two reasons for this decision of the department. In the first place, he said, there is no money available with which to make further troop movements to the border, and, in the second place, there has been a question whether the state troops still remaining at home would be able to turn out if called owing to a lack of the required strength.

Gen. Mann said there are fourteen national guard infantry regiments which have never been called out. "We had a preponderance of infantry in the national guard when the Mexican call was made, and that is the reason some regiments of infantry were left behind," he said. "What troops to send home rests with Gen. Funston. He designates them."

Appeal Made by Dunne.

Gov. Dunne of Illinois pointed out that his state still has on the border three regiments of infantry, while there are still in the state two regiments of infantry which have never been called out.

"The boys on the border," Gov. Dunne said, "are anxious to get home, and the boys at home who have not yet served on the border are anxious to go. Is there any way the war department could make such exchanges as this, for Illinois as well as for other national guard troops?"

Previously Mr. Dunne had called on Secretary of War Baker to request the immediate return of all Illinois troops remaining on the border. The secretary was noncommittal.

favorably. The secretary was noncommittal.

Urge Universal Service.

A declaration in favor of universal military service in the United States was made today by Gov. Elect Goodrich of Indiana before the conference.

He attacked the existing national guard system and was seconded by Govs. Manning, South Carolina; Stuart, Virginia; former Gov. Walsh of Massachusetts, and Gov. Dunne of Illinois. The attack on the system was centered around the six year clause as a hindrance to enlistment.

Gov. Goodrich based his appeal for universal service on "the great physical and disciplinary advantages" of such system. He was supported in this by Gov. Stuart, who said the guardsmen of his state had gained an average of fifteen pounds per man during their border duty.

An appropriation of $3,000,000 for support of families of national guardsmen serving on the border is asked in a bill introduced in the house today by Representative Edmonds of Pennsylvania.

It will take $8,500,000 additional to support the dependent families of militiamen on the Mexican border, Representative Fitzgerald of New York stated in the house this afternoon the war department had just informed him.

NATION'S LEADERS O. K. UNIVERSAL ARMY TRAINING

WASHINGTON, D. C., Dec. 16.—[Special.]—Indorsement of the principle of universal military training was given today by members of the senate, members of the house, and governors from many of the states at the nation-wide conference of the National Association for Military Training. The conference was called by the association's president, Gen. S. B. M. Young, to consider plans for the enactment of legislation for the application of the principle of universal training in the United States.

Gen. Young made known the results of the nation-wide referendum on the question which was started by THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE last May and taken up by the other leading papers of the country. This referendum proved that more than three-fourths of the people favor the principle.

The referendum proved conclusively, Gen. Young said, that the opposition to universal training is dying out rapidly.

At the conference today Gov. Whitman and Senator Wadsworth of New York took prominent parts.

Gen. Young pointed out that the chief danger of a democracy is not militarism, but the inability to defend itself against aggressive militarism. He suggested 18-21 years as the best age for military duty.

ROBBERS HAVE BUSY DAY.

Three bandits held up the saloon of James Cashion, 1317 South State street. They obtained between $600 and $700 which he had drawn from a bank to cash checks.

BIXBY INDORSES DUNNE PROJECT FOR WATERWAYS

Former Chief Engineer Says Eight Foot Channel Will Meet Commerce Needs.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 16.—[Special.]—Gov. E. F. Dunne played a trump card in his fight for a deep waterway today when he obtained an indorsement of his plan from Gen. W. H. Bixby, former chief of engineers of the United States army.

The governor addressed the conference of governors of all the states this morning on a practicable lakes to the gulf waterway.

Gen. Bixby was attending the session. When the governor concluded he asked permission to say a few words. This was granted him.

"I want to indorse what Gov. Dunne said," Gen. Bixby said. "The best engineers of the country believe an eight foot waterway will accommodate all of the commerce that will use the route."

BAKER ASSERTS WAR SHOWS MILITARY TRAINING NEEDED.

Claims Success Involves Enormous Forces and Industrial Mobilization—Speaks in Philadelphia.

Philadelphia, Pa., Dec. 16.—Secretary of War Baker, addressing the American Academy of Political and Social Science here tonight, declared America has learned from Europe that war is a new thing and that this country by experience has learned that it may get into it. He spoke on "the real significance of preparedness."

"We have realized by the European war that modern war is different from any kind of war which we have ever thought about or participated in, because of the intricate agencies employed in present day warfare," he said. "We've learned the necessity of military training; that modern war involves enormously larger forces in proportion to the population; that it means a complete abstraction of men of all classes from occupations and business.

"We've learned that much depends on the success with which the population can be mobilized industrially to support the life of the nation and its armies."

The Gift Supreme

THIS advertisement is addressed to those men and women of Chicago who may want to settle the whole Christmas gift problem in the biggest, finest and most substantial way in which it can be settled.

What gift to your family can possibly compare with a Jeffery touring car, or one of the luxurious Jeffery Demountable Sedan Combinations?

Here's a gift that is a gift—a gift that endures—a gift for all the days and months of the entire year—good for tens of thousands of miles—for years of service for you and yours.

The car pictured above is the beautiful Jeffery "Six" Sedan Combination. With the top in place, as shown, this is a perfect sedan, with the luxury and comfort appointments you have associated with fine closed cars. The winter body must not be compared with bad weather makeshifts. The broad windows are of fine plate, the upholstering is of fine whipcord fabrics, silk shades, electric dome lights, double wind shield, etc., all measure up to the most exacting requirements of fine motor coach building.

Next spring, in an hour, the winter top comes off and there you are—with the smartest touring car that ever rolled over Chicago's streets, the roll-edge Jeffery.

The same combination is yours also in the Jeffery "Four." Wouldn't you like to see this at your door Christmas morning?

As to the quality of Jeffery cars as motor vehicles, all Chicago knows that. For a matter of years now, Jeffery cars have been admittedly without serious rivals in any car selling at within several hundred dollars of their price. There are more than 2,000 Jeffery cars in daily use in this city—their record for performance is known to every one.

Special Note—On orders placed now, we will make definite guarantee of delivery Christmas Day or any date you wish prior to Christmas. If, because of the unusual financial burdens of the season, or for other reasons, you desire accommodations in the matter of partial payment, the matter can be arranged.

Why not make this Christmas the real Christmas—make it a Jeffery Christmas.

MRS. TRIMBLE SINGS TODAY AT "DIME CONCERT"

Third Program in American Symphony Series Is Unusually Attractive.

An exceptional attraction in the third of the "dime concert" series by the American Symphony orchestra which will be given this afternoon at the Harrison Technical High school will be the appearance of Mrs. Clara G. Trimble who will sing "Hail, Bright Abode," from "Tannhaeuser." Mrs. Trimble remained in Chicago for the week end especially for the concert.

Program for Today.

The program for the concert, which begins at 3:30 o'clock, is considered the best balanced of the three excellent performances thus far given. It follows:

Overture—"Euryanthe" .... Weber
Symphonic poem—"The River Moldau" .... Smetana
Hail, Bright Abode from "Tannhaeuser" .... Wagner
Mrs. Trimble.
Adagio from "The New World Symphony" .... Dvorak
Woodland Suite—In October—Summer Idyls .... MacDowell
Serenade for flute and horn .... Titl
Messrs. Linden and Kryl.
March from Sixth Symphony . . . Tschaikowski
"The Star Spangled Banner" .... Francis Scott Key

How to Get There.

The Harrison Technical High school is at West Twenty-fourth street and Marshall boulevard. It is most easily accessible by the following carriers: Metropolitan L (Douglas park branch) to Douglas Park station, walk four blocks south; Twenty-second street car to Marshall boulevard, two blocks south; Blue Island avenue and Twenty-sixth street car to Francisco avenue, two blocks north.

The concert series is given under the joint auspices of the Civic Music association, the board of education, and THE TRIBUNE with a view to spreading good music throughout the city.

RANCHER WEDS IN EVANSTON

Fergus, Mont., Man Marries Miss Harriet E. Foster—Honeymoon in Louisiana.

W. N. Landru, a young rancher of Fergus, Mont., halted long enough in Evanston last night to pick up a bride. Then he went on to Louisiana for a honeymoon.

Mr. Landru and Miss Harriet E. Foster were married at the home of Dr. Ernest Ford, 2009 Harrison street, Evanston. The couple started immediately for Jennings, La., which was Mr. Landru's boyhood home.

Miss Foster went to visit her brother in Fergus two years ago. That was the beginning of the romance. Mr. Landru persuaded her to stay and grow up with the country. She made Fergus her home for two years.

"She grew up with the country, all right," remarked the bridegroom. "Now she's going to grow old with it."

County School Superintendent Sees Problems Met by Vocational Training.

Vocational education begins with the spring term in the Cook county public schools. The success of the school field garden and the home projects, the innovation of County Superintendent Edward J. Tobin, resulted in his decision to make these courses compulsory. Hereafter all children of ten years and over who wish to graduate from the county schools must have obtained their yearly credits from one of the subjects taken from the achievement course.

The number of pupils who will take up the achievement courses total 3,289 and there are eight different courses to choose from. Following are the courses and the number of pupils who have signified their willingness to take them: Garden raising, 2,225; sewing, 764; poultry raising, 122; music, 78; canning, 26; cooking, 49; business, 19; and cow testing, 16.

Radical Changes Urged.

"Our system of rural education needs to be revolutionized," Mr. Tobin said yesterday. "There seems to be a universal demand for a change that will connect the school training more closely with the home life and work of the people, a change that will bring the school to the home and tie together the book learning of one with the doing of useful things by the other.

"Such a system would vitalize book education by putting into practice the principle, 'Study what you have need of, or soon will need, and learn by doing.' The introduction of this system will put real education within the reach of every country boy and girl, rich and poor, in the schools nearest at hand.

Protection Against Divorce.

"One seldom hears of divorces in the country and unhappy married life is rare among country people. It is because the boys and girls of the country have been brought up to do things as well as to study about them. They are trained for the real things in life; we teach them the value of money, and they learn to spend it sensibly.

"In many cases divorce is due to the inability of the wife to provide a real home for her husband, and the few city girls who turn out to be good housewives have no time to attend tango teas.

"I predict that in a few more years that old adage to the city man which advises to go 'back to the farm' will be amended to read 'go back to the farm and get a wife.'"

MRS. ALDIS ASKS AID FOR THEATER

Appeals to Public in Behalf of Maurice Browne's Enterprise.

HAS REACHED CRISIS.

The financial plight of the Little theater prompts Mrs. Arthur Aldis to send to THE TRIBUNE the following letter, urging that the people come to its aid. In the course of the letter Mrs. Aldis says:

"One of our wisest and most public spirited citizens, Mr. Charles L. Hutchinson, said a few days ago: 'Maurice Browne has made good with his Little Theater. It is a credit to the city and should be maintained.'

"The Little Theater has reached a crisis in its affairs. If it is to be maintained it must be by the financial assistance of serous minded and cultivated persons who are sympathetic to such efforts and take an interest in them. This assistance must be obtained and organized at once.

"Unlike our other efforts at an 'art theater,' Mr. Browne has kept the Little Theater going for nearly five consecutive years and for over thirty weeks in each year, without any subsidy. But he has come out at the end of this time with a debt of $15,000 or $20,000 and somewhat exhausted under the strain. He has fairly proven that a Little Theater can be maintained at a high standard of excellence at a small annual loss.

"But for five years he and his wife have worked with great energy and enthusiasm and have drawn out for themselves to live upon $30 a week, and have personally undertaken all risks and all losses. His principal subsidization was a wedding present of a check for $500 given to him and his wife by Mrs. Chauncey Blair. With this he 'founded' the Little Theater. His wife, his players, and his stage helpers have been equally devoted and have worked with little compensation—in several instances none.

"Now, in the middle of the fifth year, he has called together the subscribers to the Little Theater and laid his case before them. He reviews the accomplishments of the Little Theater. It has produced much that is new and highly interesting in stage decoration. He has given us poetical drama which we could not get elsewhere, and he has done it well. And during these five years, while some of the productions have not been technically as good as might be desired, all of them have invariably had the distinction of an intelligent production and a cultivated taste.

"The next fortnight must determine whether the Little Theater shall remain or whether the experience of the last five years, the accumulated good will of its followers, and the talent and enthusiasm of its directors shall all be lost to us, and the inevitable struggle begun over again from the beginning.

"I sincerely hope that each of the many readers of THE TRIBUNE who may see this letter will give some consideration to it and that many of them may feel, if only for the credit of our city, that it is worth while for them to join in this guarantee in some proportion to their means and to their sympathy, no matter whether the amount which can be afforded is only $5 a year or many times $5 a year. Letters of interest and letters of guarantee can be addressed to the Little Theater, Fine Arts building."

His Home Robbed.

Peter P. McLaughlin of 4116 Clarendon avenue reported to the Town Hall police yesterday that his home was robbed Friday night and jewelry and clothing valued at $100 stolen.

You Lovers of Good Candy

Order NOW for Xmas

Martha Washington Candies

Are in great demand at Christmas. They cannot be made and packed away weeks and months ahead as commercial candies are. Our problem is not "How much can we sell?" but "How much can we manufacture?"

In our kitchens we are working to capacity three times greater than last year, but still our output will be limited when measured by the increased demand.

Pure Cane and Maple Sugars, Rich Cream and Chocolate, Creamery Butter, Freshly Cracked Nut Meats, carefully cooked, flavored, moulded, dipped and served fresh from the kitchens.

A Suggestion: Stop in tomorrow at any of our six stores, leave your order to BE CALLED FOR, or delivered in the city or shipped by express or parcel post to any point, ON THE DAY YOU MAY SPECIFY, then you will not be disappointed.

Chocolates, Bon Bons, Caramels, 60c full pound

We will make free delivery to all parts of Chicago Dec. 18th to 26th inclusive.

Concord Pianos, $275 Up
Concord Players, $475 Up

Concord Pianos are essentially "home pianos," every energy being directed toward the production of an ideal instrument for home use. The tone is exceptionally sweet and satisfying. They are durably built to withstand constant practice and yet retain the original brilliancy of tone and responsiveness of action. Manufactured and guaranteed by the Geo. P. Bent Company.

Crown Pianos, $325 Up
Crown Combinolas, $600 Up

Value is what a piano is worth, measured by the quality of ideas and material, and the skill put into its making. Price is what you pay to get a piano. They are not always the same. The value of a piano—not the price—determines its qualities of tone and action. Value determines the life of these important qualities. And value determines the enjoyment you secure, and the price you can get for your piano after years of use. You see how important it is to secure the utmost piano value. That is why you ought to buy a Crown Piano. Manufactured and guaranteed by the Geo. P. Bent Company.

Bent Pianos, $345 Up
Bent Players, $700 Up

Many thousands of homes already know the Bent name. They are sold in twenty-eight countries. They represent all that it is possible to put into a piano, and have exclusive features of which no other piano can boast. Each year the great army of Bent enthusiasts grows larger as a greater number demand the best. Yet you can own one of them at a moderate cost and on convenient monthly payments. Manufactured and guaranteed by the Geo. P. Bent Company.

MERIT WINS FOR THE BERRY WINDOW VENTILATOR

40,000 Sold

Between Oct. 9 and Dec. 9

Of this number 29,000 went to Chicago homes, offices, factories, public and private institutions, while 11,000 were scattered in 465 cities in 33 states.

All these ventilators were returnable under our "satisfaction guarantee"; but instead of returns we have had an enormous proportion of repeat orders. Of the Chicago firms which bought, 90% repeated.

BERRY WINDOW VENTILATOR

18 E. Jackson Blvd. Harrison 915

DEALERS: Write for Terms of Our Exclusive Contract for Your City.

Opens and closes with window, admitting Fresh Air, but Preventing drafts and excluding dirt, rain, snow and burglars.

Foolproof	Indestructible
Sightly	Burglarproof
Cleanly	Easily Installed

Prices Advance Jan. 1

On account of the increased cost of steel and copper we are compelled to raise the price from 84 cents to 96 cents per lineal foot on all ventilators not contracted for by January 1, 1917.

How to Take Measurements

To determine size of ventilator needed, close your window and measure (with rule, not tape measure) from window stop to window stop on inside of sill close up to window. The "window stop" is the perpendicular strip that holds the window in place. Any size in this table will fit window openings any part of three inches wider than the length of the ventilator.

'COME SEE ME,' MAYOR WRITES TO MERRIAM

Thompson Welcomes Offer of Co-operation for Constructive Policies.

"Come see me any day at 12 o'clock." That is Mayor Thompson's invitation to Ald. Charles E. Merriam.

The invitation concluded a letter which the mayor sent yesterday to the alderman in reply to Merriam's recent communication offering to coöperate with the mayor along constructive lines. The mayor reviews his policies, welcomes Merriam's assistance, and proposes personal conferences to "get together" in detail.

The Mayor's Letter.

The mayor's letter read:

"Your letter of Dec. 13, released for publication simultaneously with its receipt by me, is herewith formally acknowledged and the topics discussed therein replied to as extensively as the limits of a formal communication will permit. For more detailed and freer discussion I concur in the proposal of a friendly conference, having for its object the stimulation of plans and activities for the betterment of the government of Chicago.

"My statement that I shall not under any circumstances take any part whatsoever in any contest in the primary or election in any ward for seats in the city council to be filled next spring means exactly what it says. I will not urge my friends to be for or against any candidate for a seat in the city council. I cannot request my friends to be for or against any candidate for alderman in any ward and in good faith maintain the position taken in my public statement previously issued.

Welcomes All Assistance.

"As mayor I welcome the advice and assistance of any person or persons interested in the city's welfare and doubly so when the proffer of coöperation comes from an official representative chosen at the same election as the mayor, upon the same municipal issues and bearing the same mandate of the people.

"You may remember the annual municipal dinner of the Chicago association of commerce, held on Tuesday, Nov. 9, 1915, which many aldermen attended and on which occasion I said:

> The sooner the city council and the mayor and his administration get together the sooner we will achieve things for the good of this community. We may go back again to fundamental principles; we may quarrel; we may fall out; we may attempt to injure or destroy each other, but when we do we are not performing our duty to the citizenship of Chicago. The time will come when we will co-operate. I am just as sure of that as I am that I am standing on my feet. Sooner or later we are bound to reach a common ground, and we are bound to all realize that our first duty is to the people who elected us and whom we represent.

Assumes Patriotic Impulse.

"I trust your move marks a response to my continued appeals, recently aided, perhaps, by widely circulated criticisms printed as to the city council. However, let us assume that there is a mutual sincerity for results beneficial to the public, and I am just as anxious for assistance and information and disinterested counsel as any one can possibly be to give it, and I am just as susceptible to patriotic impulse and appeal to civic loyalty as any other official or citizen.

His Legislative Policies.

"As to Chicago legislation needed at Springfield, I doubt if there will be any serious differences between our local officials and the general desires of the people. My position on home rule for Chicago is well known. I am in favor of as broad and representative a policy in this regard as can be obtained.

"I am heartily for an act to enable this city to take up an intelligent zoning plan to conserve neighborhoods, property, and the convenience of the people as outlined in my message of Oct. 2, 1916. I believe such a system should go hand in hand with the development of the Chicago plan, and that it is the key to the proper solution of the housing problem.

The Park Situation.

"The small park, bathing beach, municipal pier, and waste disposal matters are all items which calm, considerate negotiation between the several agencies of the city government will successfully work out. Chicago should have the very best in these things and build for the future.

"Our financial situation calls for serious reflection and the exercise of every constructive idea of economy and efficiency that can be brought to bear. Chicago is trying to meet pressing expanding needs for expenditures with a decreasing income. With the growth of the city and the continual tendency to take on more activities and the consequent accumulation of enterprises due thereto increased expenditures are not astonishing.

"I am having an expert investigation made as to our sources of income. Any plans involving the elimination of waste, whether affecting employment, materials, or methods, in which personal and political considerations are rigidly ignored, I shall be glad to know of, give consideration to, and act upon, if practicable.

Traction and Subway.

"The traction and subway problem calls for action. The city council cannot longer evade its responsibility for delays. Bear in mind that it is my position that the settlement of the transportation question, including subways, must be submitted to a referendum vote of the people.

"My position on gas is plain and unequivocal. I am for the lowest rates that will guarantee the best service. I appointed you on the committee to represent the city in securing the return of $10,000,000 in refunds to the consumers and obtain permanent price reductions.

"The terminal and lake front problems require energy, industry, and business acumen for their settlement to the exclusion of politics and personalities. The extensive plans just made public for the development of a greater Chicago should have the support and constructive aid of every member of the city council, and still newer and more extensive plans should be conceived for future expansion.

"I shall be glad to talk with you on city affairs and would suggest that you come to the mayor's office any day at 12 o'clock noon that you find it convenient."

THRASHER TELLS OF DEFIANT VICE AT SMITH TRIAL

Declares Old Levee Began to Open Up in Spring and Police Did Not Act.

Samuel P. Thrasher, superintendent for the committee of fifteen, yesterday took the stand before the city civil service commission as a witness against Capt. Joseph Smith, former commanding officer of the Twenty-second street district.

"The old levee began to open up in the spring of this year," he said. "Our investigators reported resorts over and over again that were not molested by the police. Practically our only means of getting results was to invoke the injunction and abatement law against the owners of disorderly houses which the police failed to close."

Ed Weiss Elusive.

Mr. Thrasher characterized Ed Weiss as the most "elusive" of the "vice lords."

"Even with the injunction law we found it difficult to 'get' Weiss, who is supposed to own the Capitol at Twenty-second and Dearborn streets," said Mr. Thrasher. "We started suit against Weiss and discovered that Lillie Weiss held the lease. Then she disappeared and the lease was transferred around to several persons. But we have the evidence that Weiss paid the gas and electric light bills and they were directed to him."

May Call Landis Witnesses.

President Coffin announced the commission reserved the right to call witnesses who testified before Judge Landis that there was gambling in the district. He also said he might call as a witness the mysterious person named by formed Ald. Shufelt as knowing the "inside of the vice syndicate."

Assistant Corporation Counsel Frank D. Ayers introduced into evidence Chief Healey's order holding the captains personally responsible for crime and vice in their precincts.

Drops Dead in Street.

A man believed to have been John C. Went dropped dead, supposedly of heart disease, yesterday while walking in Washtenaw avenue, near West Madison street. The body was taken to undertaking rooms at 136 South Western avenue.

PHILADELPHIA GOES "DRY" WHEN WATER MAIN BREAKS.

Supply Cut Off for Several Hours in Business District—Pumps Have to Be Shut Down.

Philadelphia, Pa., Dec. 16.—[Special.]—Through the breaking of a 48-inch water main in the northeastern section of the city this afternoon virtually all of the business section of the city, hotels, hospitals, restaurants, department stores, and other public places were without water service for several hours, or until they could make auxiliary arrangements, and almost one-fourth of the built up portion of the city was without protection in the event of a big fire.

The break affected that portion of the city extending from Frankford to League island, east of Broad street. Lights went out in hotels and stores, restaurants, cafés, and other dining places were forced to all kinds of makeshifts to get a water supply.

Hurried calls were made for bottled spring water and the available supply in all drug stores and other places dealing in bottled water was quickly exhausted.

In order to locate the trouble it was necessary to shut off eight big pumps, each with a capacity of 20,000,000 gallons a day. What caused the break has not been determined.

JEWS SEND OUT APPEAL FOR MAIMONIDES HOSPITAL.

Affairs of Institution Closed by Foreclosure Will Be Discussed at Open Meeting on Tuesday.

The Maimonides hospital, opened a number of years ago for orthodox Jews and closed some months ago by foreclosure proceedings, is the subject of an appeal to be sent to Jews of Chicago.

"Many thousands of dollars have been spent in the erection and equipment of this magnificent edifice," reads the appeal, "and, though this is so, the Jews of the great west side are in dire need of a hospital that conforms to their requirements, spiritual as well as physical."

The appeal urges attendance at an open meeting to be held Tuesday at 8 p. m. at the Chicago Hebrew institute. The speakers will be Dr. Jacob Frank, Dr. V. Schrager, Judge Joseph B. David, A. H. Messing of the Chicago Examiner, and Rabbi Saul Silber. Among the sponsors for the meeting are Dr. Emil G. Hirsch B. J. Rosenthal, Nathan Kaplan, and Rabbi Tobias Schanfarber.

Fire in New Building.

What will be the new twelve story home of the Monarch Refrigerating company at North Dearborn and West Kinzie streets was the scene of a small fire yesterday. An overheated salamander on the second floor was the cause. Firemen checked the blaze with hand extinguishers. The alarm was sounded from a box in front of the Casino theater, North Clark and West Kinzie streets.

JOSEPH LEITER'S EYE WOUND IS YIELDING TO TREATMENT.

Chicago Sportsman Will Return to New Orleans from Mississippi Hunting Lodge Tomorrow.

New Orleans, La., Dec. 16.—The eye wound sustained by Joseph Leiter, millionaire sportsman of Chicago, while hunting near his new hunting lodge at the mouth of the Mississippi river, was tonight reported as yielding to treatment.

Leiter, with Dr. F. A. Overbay, New Orleans eye specialist, will return to New Orleans Monday.

Leiter pierced his eye on a reed while lying in wait for game.

LANDIS SUSPENDS LAWYER AS OFFICER OF U. S. COURT.

LAUGH OVER ELECTION

Republican Chieftains Hold a Merry Post-Mortem at Dinner of Brethren of the Amen Corner in New York.

NEW YORK, Dec. 16.—After excluding one member because he didn't "eat enough, nor drink enough," the Brethren of the Amen Corner sat down to bubbles, braised beef, and laughter at the Waldorf-Astoria here tonight.

After dealing the Republican party a resounding whack by parading and hectoring a decrepit old man as the last living Republican the brethren went straight down the list from soup to Roosevelt.

"A wireless from Bill Taft," called the chairman. "He says it must get a fellow's goat not to find out he's beaten till three weeks after election; says he knew he was beaten three months before election."

Col. "Marse" Henry Watterson's long form and mustache appeared and commanded a boy to page Col. Harvey.

The boy paged: "Call for Col. George Brinton McClellan Harvey," and on objection from Marse Henry explained that that's his real name, but he uses George Harvey because it looks better in print.

What Marse Henry wanted to tell him was to "shut up and quit being sore, even if he did make Wilson president."

President Luther B. Little made his annual report. During the discussion he said Judge Hughes acted from the loftiest motives in answering the call of his party.

"It wasn't a call," cried a weak voice; "it was a raise."

Little again was interrupted by the arrival of an engineer, a fireman, a brakeman, and a conductor, who broke up the meeting of the electoral college by announcing that they had abolished congress and had come to take charge of the certificate of election, which they would confer on any one they decide they want for president.

Among the rose and old gold and the coffee cups were such lights as Dudley Field Malone, Charles F. Murphy, Ralph Pulitzer, William R. Willcox, William Barnes, William F. McCombs, John D. Rockefeller Jr., Bainbridge Colby, and William A. Brady.

MRS. PRINDIVILLE TO SING CHRISTMAS NIGHT AT OPERA.

Will Make Professional Debut in "Carmen" with Farrar in the Auditorium Company.

Mrs. Thomas J. Prindiville, the Chicago soprano whose marital affairs have been a matter of lively speculation since the announcement that she has taken up a legal residence in Reno, is to make at least one appearance with the opera company in the Auditorium. Mr. Campanini last spring scheduled her for a hearing this season as Micaela in "Carmen," but the stipulation then was that she should sing in a half price Saturday night performance of that work.

Since Mrs. Prindiville's return to Chicago last week the schedule has been so readjusted that she will in all likelihood make her professional debut on the big subscription night of next week Monday. As that will be Christmas day it is not likely that she will lack the attention of a packed house.

CITY'S FINANCE MACHINERY DUE FOR BIG SHAKEUP

Aldermen Recommend Treasurer and Clerk Be Made Appointive Jobs.

A radical reorganization of the city's financial machinery was recommended yesterday to the council finance committee by Ald. H. D. Capitain's subcommittee on consolidation.

The proposed program as worked out by the finance committee staff provides for creating the elective office of city auditor and making the offices of city treasurer and city clerk appointive instead of elective. Under this scheme the auditor would serve as a check on the treasurer, who would be appointed by the mayor and have charge of all financial departments, including the controller's office and the collector's office.

Ald. Capitain, who is pushing the scheme, says it will make for economy and a shorter ballot.

Merge Legal Departments.

The finance committee during the afternoon continued its program of pruning appropriations to square with the city's straitened financial condition. It was voted to merge the offices of city prosecutor and city attorney with that of the corporation counsel and to cut the entire appropriation for the law department to $340,000 as against $455,413 for the current year.

The proposed merger would abolish the positions of city prosecutor and city attorney, though the details have not yet been worked out. The committee directed Corporation Counsel Ettelson to prepare the necessary ordinances to accomplish the merger and also to draft legislation to place all employés of the law department with the exception of lawyers under civil service.

Some More Slashing.

Other slashes made by the committee were:

	1916 appropriation.	Proposed 1917 appropriation.
City clerk.....	$ 67,031	$ 57,811
Corporation counsel	262,660	193,937
City treasurer.	62,113	45,000
City collector.	88,855	66,680

The committee's estimates are in all these cases considerably lower than the figure arrived at by applying a 13.76 horizontal reduction which the staff estimated would be necessary.

The appropriation for the Chicago Plan commission, which was eliminated by Controller Pike, was fixed at $10,000, which is $9,500 less than the commission received for the current year. It was decided to cut $44,000 out of the appropriation for all committes and commissions.

No Raise for Aldermen.

No appropriation was made to increase the salaries of aldermen from $3,000 to [illegible], although the latter is the amount fixed by the ordinance passed last June. Ald. Doyle moved to include the necessary sum, but the motion was tabled.

Ald. John Richert, chairman of the committee, declared it would be necessary to make employés take enforced vacations of one or two months in order to make both ends meet. The committee is now proceeding on the principle of withholding appropriations for positions at present unfilled and for most of the jobs held by temporary appointees.

SENATE VOTES TO CONSIDER PROHIBITION FOR CAPITAL.

Bill to Prohibit Manufacture and Sale of Liquor First Measure Up This Week.

Washington, D. FIVE PACKING HOUSES PAY $62,500 FINES IN MISSOURI.

Reach Agreement by Which They Settle for One-Half of Assessments and Continue Business.

Jefferson City, Mo., Dec. 16.—Five packing companies, fined by the Missouri Supreme court Feb. 9, 1915, for violations of the anti-trust laws, paid $62,500 into the state treasury today.

The companies are Armour & Co., Hammond Packing company, Swift & Co., Nelson Morris & Co., and the St. Louis Dressed Beef and Provision company. Each was fined $25,000.

They appealed to the United States Supreme court. Under a stipulation with the attorney general which was approved by the Missouri Supreme court the companies dismissed their appeal and will be allowed to continue business in this state by the payment of half the fines and written agreements that they will henceforth obey the laws of the state and the orders of the courts.

BOSTON STORE BUYS FARM FOR EMPLOYES' VACATIONS.

Mrs. Neuberger Purchases Ten Acre Tract at Lake Beulah—Charges Will Be Nominal.

Believing that her employés can get the most good from their vacations if they obtain a complete change of environment, Mrs. Mollie Netcher Neuberger, proprietor of the Boston Store, has purchased a ten acre tract at Lake Beulah, Wis. Lake Beulah is ninety miles from the city.

Employés, she announces, will be charged nominal sums, probably in proportion to their salaries. It is planned to permit them to entertain their families at the farm.

Mrs. Neuberger intends to build additional cottages, a dancing pavilion, and billiard rooms, tennis courts, and a baseball diamond. She will provide a launch and rowboats, also.

DIVORCE PROVES HARD TO OBTAIN IN SOME CASES

Immigrant Refused Decree—Wife Refused to Come to America.

BY AUDRIE ALSPAUGH CHASE

> Sighting a snag in time saves a lot of wasted divorce effort.

That it isn't always wholly smooth sailing for divorce navigators was demonstrated yesterday when some of them struck snags charted by law but unobserved by litigants till pointed out by Chief Pilot Judge Gridley.

Andrew Westfal's bark was one of these. Long ago Andrew married Cecelia yonder in Inowroclaw, in Posen. Then, times being hard, he came to this country. He wanted Cecelia to come, and for the purpose sent her a steamship ticket, cherishing his receipt therefor as exhibit A. For Cecelia declined to sail on the ticket. She refused flatly to come across. So as the next best thing Andrew sought a divorce on the grounds of desertion. There were with him two witnesses. None of them could speak a word of English, and they sat silently wondering while the judge and the lawyer tussled with the snag.

Had He Mistreated Her?

Nobody here knew how in the place unpronounceable Andrew had treated Cecelia, the witnesses present being for the purpose of showing that there had been no wife about for two years' time. The lawyer's opinion held that "a husband's domicile is that of a wife and a wife should follow him," advancing the explanation that when Andrew left they were on good terms.

But the judge's opinion didn't coincide. Said he:

"That isn't sufficient under the statute to get a divorce. About every Saturday I have this coming up, and I have to deny the decree. The case must be proved by witnesses—not a witness—in open court. The words in the statute, 'deserted without reasonable cause,' are the essential point.

"If that meaning hadn't been intended the statute would have been written to read, 'willfully deserted or absented for two years.' Maybe the reason she wouldn't come was because of his treatment of her. I can't grant a divorce unless it is proved by two witnesses in open court that she wouldn't follow because she didn't want to come and not because of his treatment of her. Go ahead."

"I can't see how I can go ahead," signaled the stranded lawyer.

"I can't either, but this statute has got to be followed," flashed back the judge. "All that you know or I know about them being on good terms when he left is what he says. Now, I don't doubt but that is so, but the law says 'two witnesses' showing the treatment of the defendant.

Reason Behind Law.

"In this state to prove desertion in a foreign state it is not sufficient for the complainant to say, 'I treated her well.' That applies to all cases. If a free interpretation of the statute were allowed people would come here from all states, Iowa, Michigan, Missouri, everywhere, and establish a year's residence for the express purpose of getting a divorce, basing it on his or her say-so.

"I realise it is a difficult problem for foreigners and I don't want to construe the statute so as to make it impossible for foreigners coming here to get divorces, but it is my business to construe it as it is, not as some one thinks it ought to be.

"Do you want to go ahead and make a record, or postpone? I have had several cases where some one was found who used to live with the couple or in the same neighborhood." The judge was very friendly, but he was mighty firm.

The lawyer said he'd look around and somebody who knew might be scraped up. And Andrew Westfal and his Polish comrades shuffled wonderingly out of the courtroom.

HUSBAND MADE HER SIT UNCLAD IN COLD, SHE SAYS.

Mrs. Rubena Bautsch Tells How He Punished Her—Open Window, December Blasts.

This is the story of love, frozen to death.

Antone Bautsch, the bill for divorce filed yesterday relates, struck her on many different occasions. Mrs. Rubena Bautsch says she really loved her husband nevertheless until Dec. 4, when she, her husband, and two children attended a party at the home of a friend.

Mr. Bautsch proved to be the lion of the evening, and his wife, disapproving, brought him home. To punish him she compelled him to sleep with their son, while she slept with the daughter.

In the still of the morning, when a raw breeze direct from the lake flickered the curtains, the cave man crept forth. Mrs. Bautsch alleges he entered the room and, hurling the covers from her bed, ordered her to stand. She did so, and he tore off her night robe and compelled her to remain seated on the window sill, shivering and without protection, for half an hour.

It was then that love was frozen to death, for the next morning Mrs. Bautsch called on Edward Hess, her attorney, and instructed him to sue for divorce. Mr. Bautsch, who is a foreman in the Illinois Central electrical shops, packed a suit case and left the same morning. Deputy sheriffs are now seeking him to serve summons for his appearance in court.

Mrs. Bautsch lives at 6219 Dorchester avenue.

LOEB DEFINES HIS ATTITUDE ON CHRISTMAS

on-Sectarian Celebrations All Right, He Reiterates in Statement.

M. Loeb, president of the board ucation, replied yesterday to the that he sent instructions to principals prohibiting Christmas ations. He said he believed the reports were circulated by his . He said he not only believed others should celebrate the holiday always done so himself.

Many teachers have been uncertain as to whether or not Christmas exercises should be held. Supt. John D. Shoop sent a bulletin to the principals quoting the state law and the board rules regarding religious instruction, but refused to state specifically what might and what might not be done. He said that the interpretation of the law was left to the principals.

Loeb's Statement.

Mr. Loeb's statement follows:

"During the past few days I have repeatedly heard, through what would seem to be reliable sources, that these charges emanated from and were circulated by the same insidious forces which have opposed and maligned me for the last two years.

"I am loath to believe that they can so far have forgotten the message of peace and good will which the great teacher brought to the world and which this, the Christmas season, emphasizes. Whatever be the source of these charges they are unqualifiedly untrue and without foundation in fact.

"The instruction of the superintendent of schools that teachers should avoid the introduction of questions of a sectarian or partisan character into the schools is in accordance with the decisions of the courts of our state and the rules of the board of education. I must be bound by those decisions and rules and so must the superintendent of schools.

His Own Position.

"All with whom I come in contact during the Christmas season know my attitude at this gladsome time. To the many others I have this to say:

"I am a Jew. As a Jew, Christmas has for me no theological significance. It has, however, the highest ethical significance. I not only believe in celebrating the holiday but I always have done so. It has been for me the day of light and joy, of giving and of serving.

"I do not know how better to express my attitude toward the day than by quoting the greatest Jew of our time, and the foremost thinker in America today, my beloved teacher, Emil G. Hirsch:

"'Christmas has come to be the symbol and expression of the tenderest sympathies to which the heart of man may throb in responsive rhythm. Its song of brotherhood outruns the halting meters of sect and sept, of clan and class. Sweeping with the stars' flight through the zones, its proclamation of good will awakens answering echoes under every sky.'"

Dr. Stokes Heads Merit List.

Dr. Albert J. Stokes stands at the top of the eligible list for chief of the bureau of food inspection of the health department, which was posted yesterday by the city civil service commission. Dr. Stokes is now holding the place as a temporary appointee. His mark was 83.15. Next on the list are Dr. William F. Reasner, Albert E. Armstrong, and James P. Kilcourse. The Rev. John P. Brushingham was certified to the position of secretary of the morals commission during the day.

Wife of Author Reported After Reno Divorce

Mrs. Owen Johnson

Reno, Nev., Dec. 16.—It is reported that Mrs. Owen Johnson has taken up residence here in order to get a divorce. Mr. Johnson is a son of Robert Underwood Johnson, and well known as a writer of popular fiction. Mrs. Johnson was a singer when she married Mr. Johnson. She is his second wife.

LYDSTON LOSES SUIT AGAINST MEDICAL SOCIETY.

Judge Heard Rules American Association Can Hold Meetings in Any State of Union.

Judge Oscar Heard yesterday sustained the demurrer of the American Medical association to the mandamus proceedings brought by Dr. G. Frank Lydston seeking to compel the American association to hold its annual meetings in the state of Illinois.

Under the decision the association is permitted to elect its officers and hold its meetings in any state.

The proceedings of Dr. Lydston have been pending in the courts for years and the decision of Judge Heard is of importance to other national associations, some of which, it is said, refrained from incorporating under state laws so that they could hold their meetings in any part of the country.

JOY MORTON GIVES $25,000.

Chicagoan Announces Donation to Brownell School for Memorial Building to Wife.

Omaha, Neb., Dec. 16.—Joy Morton of Chicago today telegraphed a $25,000 donation to Brownell, an Episcopalian church school of this city. The money is to be used to construct a girls' building as a memorial to his wife, who attended Brownell when she was a girl. The donation was made through Mrs. S. F. Barkalow of Omaha, his wife's roommate during her student days at school.

DEATH NOTICES.

IN MEMORIAM.

MASTROFSKY—David Mastrofsky. In a sad but loving remembrance of our dearly beloved son and brother, that departed one year ago today, Dec. 17, 1915, at the age of 17 years.

The month of December again is here,
For us the saddest of the year.
Dear son and brother, you bade no one a last farewell; you said good-by to none.
Your loving heart had ceased to beat, and before we knew it you were gone.
You are gone but not forgotten; your memory shall never fade;
Our lonely hearts will always linger around the grave where you are laid.
A better son there could not be,
A son more true and kind.
All is dark and lonely without you, our son;
Lonely are our hearts each day,
For our son we loved so dearly
Had so suddenly passed away.
FROM YOUR LOVING MOTHER, FATHER, SISTERS, AND INFANT BROTHER.

OBITUARY.

NELLIE EBERLY, TEACHER OF CRIPPLES, BURIED.

Miss Nellie Eberly, the crippled children's teacher was buried from Lanyon's chapel at 415 West Sixty-third street yesterday.

A large floral piece of poinsettias and carnations, her favorite flowers, was the gift of the Home for Destitute Crippled Children.

The services were conducted by the Rev. Clarence E. Paulus. Burial was at Mount Hope cemetery.

DEATH OPENS WAY TO MOTOR

Patrick McCullough, coachman for Mrs. William G. Hibbard of 1701 Prairie avenue, is dead, and now the coupe and "pair" is to be displaced by motors, Mrs. Hibbard having kept up the stables in honor of McCullough's thirty-eight years' service in the family. McCullough had served three generations of Hibbards. He had driven coaches to the marriages of six children of the family, to the christening of sixteen grandchildren, and to the weddings of three granddaughters.

CHARLES EDWARD HART, professor emeritus of ethics at Rutgers college, died in New Brunswick, N. J., yesterday, aged 69 years. He had been connected with Rutgers since 1880, when he was made professor of English. He was a graduate of Princeton and was formerly a Presbyterian minister.

ROBERT TREAT PERINE of Doon, Ont., died yesterday at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Verne Ray of Oak Park, after a brief illness. Mr. Perine was 57 years old. While a resident of Waukegan several years ago he conducted a wholesale hardware business in Chicago.

JEREMIAH M. COLLINS, senior detective sergeant of the Grand Crossing station, died yesterday at his residence, 7416 South Michigan avenue. Sergt. Collins joined the department twenty-four years ago and served nineteen years in all.

SUFFRAGE CHIEFS DEDICATE ROOM TO SUSAN B. ANTHONY

Memory of Author of Original Declaration of Sentiments Honored at Washington.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 16.—Dr. Anna Howard Shaw, Mrs. Carrie Chapman Catt, and other suffrage leaders gathered here today in the new home of the National American Woman Suffrage association to dedicate a room in the building to the memory of Susan B. Anthony.

The table on which Miss Anthony wrote the original declaration of sentiments, adopted by the first suffrage convention, held at Seneca Falls, N. Y., in 1848, was presented to the association.

A memorial tablet to the distinguished pioneer in the fight for votes for women also was unveiled. Many state suffrage organizations were represented at the ceremonies.

Cars For Winter Service

YOUR car is an indispensable part of your efficiency—and you cannot AFFORD to impair your efficiency merely because of the changing of the seasons.

You NEED a car which will operate dependably, unfailingly under any and all conditions—one which will carry you without halt or hesitation wherever you need to go. Such cars are the light weight, eight-cylinder, Model 44, Oldsmobiles—two winter styles of which are here shown.

Built of the finest materials and according to the most advanced theories of construction, it will render you honest, unflagging service under every condition.

Its eight-cylinder motor, coupled with light weight, will pull you through heavy snowdrifts easily and with minimum shifting of gears. It defies mud and slush.

In the coldest of weather it starts by a mere pressure of the foot on the starting button. Its integrally cast intake and exhaust manifolds warm the fuel so that you drive it as well in winter as in summer.

It will be well worth your while to investigate this car, as it will show you something new in cold weather performance.

May we ask the opportunity to demonstrate? Call or write us.

"The Biggest. Brightest. Best Magazine for Boys in All the World"
Norman Rockwell
In This Issue: William Howard Taft. Dan Beard. James Willard Schultz. Clarence B. Kelland. C. H. Claudy. Harold Titus. W. K. Towers.

WILL he be a success—magnetic, resourceful, an original thinker, popular among his fellow men? Or will he be dull and backward, with thoughts and conversation that are "flat, stale and unprofitable?"

Which are you raising him to be? You have it in your power to make him either. His success hangs in the balance.

The whole secret of a powerful, attractive personality lies in ability to imagine, to visualize what the man-in-a-rut never sees. Imagination has given us electricity, railroads, wireless, telephones, cables, sanitation, good schools, good government—in short, civilization. Edison, Bell, Carnegie, Schwab, Wanamaker, Burbank, Roosevelt, are men who imagine. Their imagination was developed by the habit of reading good literature, formed early in youth. Reading is recognized as the greatest stimulant to imagination.

What are you doing to instill in your boy this love for reading? There is one publication that furnishes the right kind of literature to help mold your boy into the right kind of man. Let The American Boy help you to guard and guide his reading. Place one copy in his hand and it will diminish his desire for harmful novels and morbid stories. Left to himself, he is likely to choose evil literature which warps his easily impressed mind like evil companions.

You don't have to urge him to read The American Boy. He will want to. It appeals to all that is square and clean and manly in him.

THE AMERICAN BOY

"the biggest, brightest, best magazine for boys in all the world"

If you could see the hundreds of voluntary letters we get from boys 8 to 18 years old, you would realize what a great service we are performing for our 500,000 readers and their parents. Many grown men tell us that American Boy influence has been their chief help to success.

The American Boy is just the magazine that any live, normal, spirited, inquisitive, fun-loving boy wants.

It is edited by men who are grown-up boys. It provides thrills without being sensational; it teaches without preaching; it amuses without being coarse; it is lively, interesting, inspiring, constructive.

It contains fiction that needs no censoring; that not only entertains, but instructs—stories that stand for manliness in mind, muscles and morals; that build character.

Everything under the sun that interests and inspires, that amazes and amuses a real boy is in The American Boy in the course of a year. There's a series about Mark Tidd, Clarence B. Kelland's funny fat boy; Indian stories by a member of the Blackfoot tribe; athletic stories and articles after a boy's own heart; adventures of the Canadian Mounted Police; stories of business life and practice; of the army and navy; of the movies; of adventures at sea, in the woods and in the air; articles for the outdoor boy by Dan Beard; up-to-date biographies of boys who used their brains and are now leaders in the nation's business; thrilling historical tales; articles telling how to get strong, how to make money, how to do things, how to make things; departments devoted to electricity, novel inventions, and natural wonders, humor, puzzles, stamp collecting; contests for the boy photographer and the boy writer, and so on, covering the whole range of boyish interests and activities, in a practical, helpful way.

The American Boy makes the dandiest kind of Christmas present. That son, or brother, or nephew, or grandson, or cousin, or the little fellow down the street or next door, will have 12 months of Christmas joy if you send $1.50 and tell us to send him The American Boy for a year—12 big, bright, inspiring numbers—bigger, brighter than ever.

KIDS PREPARE FOR 'TRIBUNE' SKATE TOURNEY

Fifty-eight Parks Lined Up This Season—First Trials on Jan. 1.

BY WALTER H. ECKERSALL.

With ice assured at all playgrounds and parks within the next few days and skating already allowed on some of the flooded parks, the kids are getting ready for the second annual skating tournament under the auspices of THE TRIBUNE, in coöperation with the committee in charge of the common parks, playgrounds and beaches, of which Ald. Eugene R. Block of the Ninth ward is chairman.

THE TRIBUNE'S tournament was so successful last year that many kids have been telephoning to ask when it will be staged this season. Directors of the fifty-eight playgrounds, twenty-four more than a year ago, also want to know, because they are pestered every day by some youngster who has hopes of winning a gold, silver, or bronze button in the competition.

Tourney Starts Jan. 1.

According to present plans, the tournament will start on Jan. 1. Directors of playgrounds will be instructed to hold their respective tournaments whenever they have ice. The winners in each event will meet in the grand final, to be staged either at Garfield or Grant park as soon as the preliminary trials at the fifty-eight playgrounds have been held. Winners of first, second and third places will be awarded gold, silver, and bronze buttons, but only the winners of first places will qualify for the finals. Winners of the first three places in the final events will be given gold, silver, and bronze medals, and the team winning the greatest number of points will be given THE TRIBUNE shield, emblematic of the team championship.

Compete in Two Groups.

In the figure skating the committee has not decided upon the figures the boys will have to cut. These will be announced later. The contestants will be divided in two groups, under 16 years and over, and will compete in these groups in the finals.

The number of events in the speed skating contests have not been announced, but the committee so far has decided on three age groups, two divisions. The contestants will be placed in the speed and common skate sections. There will be one group for contestants of 12, 13 and 14 years, another for those 15, 16 and 17 years old, and another for those 18 years and over.

Some Parks Ready Now.

Because of the cold weather of the last few days directors at some of the parks got an early start and already have flooded their grounds, with the result the kids are hard at work getting in shape for the tests. These will be held whenever the director sets the date, and as soon as his report reaches the main office the prizes will be sent to the instructor for distribution.

Ald. Block thinks it would be a great thing for Chicago's sport loving public to have the finals decided at a place where all could see the kids perform. Therefore Grant park is favored for the finals.

The west park commissioners last year coöperated with THE TRIBUNE and the playground system to help make the event a success. Fifteen thousand persons surrounded the course and applauded the efforts of the youngsters in the finals. So Garfield park has many supporters and may be awarded the honor.

W. S. A. Supports Tourney.

Officials of the Western Skating association at their annual meeting last Monday pledged their support. Julian T. Fitzgerald, the outgoing president, and Henry H. Erland of the Illinois A. C., new president, said they would do everything possible to help make this tournament an even greater success than it was a year ago. President Ryerson of the Illinois-Indiana Hockey association also said his organization would do anything called upon to help the skating game among the kids.

"THE TRIBUNE should be commended for its effort to get the youngster out in the fresh air," Ald. Block said. "As chairman of the common parks, playgrounds, and beaches, I heartily indorse the scheme and I intend to do everything in my power to help make the tourney a success because THE TRIBUNE is doing something worth while.

"I hope we can stage the finals in Grant park, but, of course, this will depend upon the weather. If the playground instructors are fortunate enough to stage their preliminary trials before the end of January, then I am sure Grant park can be flooded in weather cold enough to assure ice on some Saturday, which will enable the Chicago public to see the boys in action."

Firemen Will Flood Lots.

Assistant Chief Buckley of the fire department, who for years has been an advocate of sports for youngsters, asserted he wanted to use his influence to have lots flooded in neighborhoods where the parents of the kids will not allow them to use the playground pools.

More definite plans will be announced in THE TRIBUNE as soon as Supt. Theodore A. Gross of the playgrounds and his assistant, Mr. Fisher, get together with the writer to select the different events.

STAGG OBJECTS TO GRID NUMBERS

Football fans will have to go through another year of watching the big teams in important games with the players not wearing numbers. Coach Stagg of the University of Chicago team sees little chance of a rule being passed making it necessary for every player to be numbered.

The Midway mentor is a member of the rules committee, which meets in New York next Friday to draw up 1917 regulations. The National Intercollegiate Athletic association will also be in session in Gotham on Thursday.

Coach Stagg said: "The rules committee discussed the question at some length last winter, but did not pass a rule because Dr. Harry Williams of Minnesota and Percy Haughton of Harvard objected so strenuously. A committee only added a recommendation to the rules on the question and will probably make no change next week because the personnel of the board is unchanged."

"The subject of proselyting will be discussed," said Director Stagg, "and there is much work to be done on that question."

In the Wake of the News

By RING W. LARDNER

THE DIARY OF A SIREN.

DEC. 13.

I have been busy this evening makeing out my xmas list for tomorrow morning I expect to do my shopping so as to avoid the crowds that will crowd the stores later on. There are 9 people to whom I intend to give them presents and I have saved $25 to buy gifts with which will allow me nearly $3 apiece. I only wish it was more so that I could spend my money with a lavish hand in makeing my friends and relatives happy, as there is nothing that makes me happier myself than making my friends happy. How true the poet spoke when he said it is more blessed to give than to recieve.

My list is as follows and I have written down some suggestions for gifts opposite the name of each person:

My brother Harry, silk hose, neckties.
My sister-in-law, silk hose, a waist.
Aunt Clara, hankercheifs.
Aunt Lillian, hankercheifs.
Emily Cochrane, a waist.
Uncle Charley, hankercheifs, neckties.
Uncle Clyde, hankercheifs, neckties.
Marie Keller, hankercheifs, a waist.
Marjorie Bear, handkerchiefs.

At first I unconsciously wrote Mr. Cooley's name down on the list and then I thought to myself that it would seem like I was running after him for me to give him a present though he has told me he is going to give me one but though the relations between us is only pure friendship and can be nothing more on account of his engagement to Miss Walters I am afraid my motives would be misunderstood and I will only wish him a merry xmas face to face or perhaps send him a card.

DEC. 14.

I am all through with my xmas shopping with one exception. I have decided to after all give Mr. Cooley some small gift as I do not think it fair for him to spend his money on me with nothing in return on my part and besides a girl has a right to remember her friends with gifts even though they be of the opposite sex. Instead of the suggestions I wrote out on my list last night I have boughten very pretty xmas cards for all my friends and relatives except my brother Harry and for him I bought a pair of silk hose. Poor boy he does not often indulge himself in those luxuries, but the rest I know will like the cards as well as some more expensive gifts I might of boughten them especially as it is hard for a girl to pick out hankercheifs, waists, etc. for somebody else whose tastes may be entirely different than her own. And besides I am sure my sister-in-law and my aunts and my girl friends are well supplied with hankercheifs and waists and my two uncles are not the kind of men that dress up much and it would be a waste of money to spend money on silk hankercheifs or handsome neckties for either of them. They will all be tickled to death with the cards I have picked out for them as the cards are beautiful and have beautiful xmas thoughts written on them and not at all the common kind of xmas cards one so often sees.

I have not decided what to buy for Mr. Cooley but perhaps it will be a watch fob or something. I have $6 left to spend on him and surely I can find something at that price which will be worthy of our friendship. The hose for my brother and the cards I bought came to $3 all told and with the $16 left from my savings I bought me the dearest hat I ever saw and the most becoming and I can hardly wait for xmas morning to come so I can wear it. $16 seems like a whole lot to pay for a hat and I would not of thought of buying it only for haveing spent so much of my money on other people for their holiday happiness and felt like I could spend something on myself with a clear conscience.

I bet Mr. Cooley will be surprised to recieve a gift from me and I wonder what he will say and also what he will say when he sees me in my new hat. Perhaps nothing at all Hilary, that is in words. But he will compliment me with his eyes which after all is the sweetest and most sincere of flattery.

TEXAS SOLDIERS TAKE GRID TITLE

SAN ANTONIO, Tex., Dec. 16.—The Second Texas infantry successfully defended its claim to the national guard football championship of the country here this afternoon by drubbing the Virginia field artillery, 33 to 0.

Virginia threatened only in the second quarter when Hume, all-southern half back of the University of Virginia, intercepted a forward pass and ran fifty yards before being downed. The Texas eleven comprised several former Texas university and Texas Aggie stars. Kendrick, Ogden, Clark and Collins scintillated for Texas and Hume and Webb for Virginia.

WEST FOOTBALL JUST ONE UPSET, PATTERSON SAYS

BY E. C. PATTERSON.
[In Collier's Weekly, Dec. 23.]

The 1916 football season in the middle west was one of the most uncertain in many years. It was a season of upsets and reverses of form as well as flashes of the best football that could be asked for.

Although not the champion, on account of its defeat by Illinois, the grand and mighty eleven representing the University of Minnesota was unquestionably the best all-around team that has been developed in the west for several years. This in nowise takes away the credit to the team from Ohio State, which went through the schedule without a defeat. The championship must of necessity therefore be awarded to Ohio State. It is unfortunate that Ohio State and Minnesota did not meet.

Pail of Dope Upset.

Before the start of the season mediocre teams were looked for in many colleges. Nothing much was expected from Northwestern or Ohio State, and dope never got a harder knock when these two came together for the championship of the conference colleges. The fact that Ohio is now champion of the so-called "Big Nine" colleges will take a long time to live down.

The University of Michigan, after a couple of years of building up, was expected to go through the season with a clean slate. Then came the unexpected, at least to the west—the victory of Cornell over the Wolverines. Just to top off, the University of Pennsylvania completed the rout of Yost's team in the final game of the year. Notre Dame was early figured as one of the strongest elevens in the country, but went down to an overwhelming defeat at the hands and feet of West Point. Farther west, Nebraska was defeated by Kansas, and the upsets were complete.

Western Teams Weaker.

On the whole, the western teams were not as strong as in several other seasons, powerful as they were in spots. Minnesota, rated before the start of the season as one of the most formidable squads that ever stepped on a gridiron, became demoralized before the University of Illinois' erratic eleven and went down to a 14 to 9 defeat. In the west this was the biggest upset of the year, and critics have no means of accounting for the disaster, as later the Gophers massacred the University of Wisconsin team 54 to 0, and probably would have made the score still more topheavy but for their fumbling at various times.

It might be well here to consider the strength and weakness of Minnesota, one of the phenomenons of the western gridirons. Being heralded far and wide as the greatest in the land, critics from all sections of the country journeyed to Minneapolis in order to see how many touchdowns Dr. Williams' men could run up on Coach Zuppke's squad. Everything up to that time foreshadowed an overwhelming victory for Minnesota.

Expected Easy Victory.

Illinois had already been defeated by Ohio and Colgate, while the Gophers had run themselves out of breath piling up touchdown after touchdown on other teams. It is true that Minnesota had met nothing which could be placed in the class with herself, yet everybody knew that she had a powerful scoring

SHECKARD TO RETURN TO CUBS AS COACH; WILL TRAIN FIELDERS

New York, Dec. 16.—Jimmy Sheckard, former star outfielder of the Cubs, will be with the Chicagoans again next year. He is not coming back as a star outfielder, but as a coach, having closed terms today with Fred Mitchell, newly elected manager of the Chicago team. Sheckard is to hold practically the same position with the Cubs that Mitchell has held with the Boston Braves.

Mitchell said that in his opinion the Cubs, especially some of the outfielders, needed an advisor and he believes that in Sheckard he has the smartest man who ever played in the outer garden. Cy Williams, for instance, would be one of the greatest stars in the game if he could improve his base running. Leslie Mann and Max Flack need some advice on playing their positions and Sheckard is to be the advisor.

Sheckard joined the Cubs in the spring of 1906 and was a great help in winning the pennants of 1906, 1907, and 1910. His last year with the Cubs was 1912. He played in the big league the following year with St. Louis and in 1914 managed the Cleveland team of the American association. Since that season he has been engaged in private business at his home in Columbia, Pa.

Manager Mitchell said Sheckard would be on hand to make the spring training trip with the team and would find plenty of work to do right from the start. During the season he may be used at times as scout to pass final judgment on the ability of live minor leaguers.

CHANCE TO MANAGE ANGELS.

Los Angeles, Cal., Dec. 17.—Frank Chance, manager of the Los Angeles baseball team of the Pacific coast league, announced today he will manage the team next year.

OLD TROT DRIVER IS DYING.

Kalamazoo, Mich., Dec. 16.—The oldest living trotting horse driver, John Mullen, 76 years old, is dying at the county poor farm. In October, 1859, he drove Flora Temple around the Kalamazoo mile oval in 2:19¾, the first mile ever trotted by a mare in less than 2:20. Mullen this afternoon slipped and fell while walking at the poor farm, breaking his right hip and sustaining internal injuries.

JOIE RAY FIRST HOME, BUT MIDWAY TEAM WINS

Tenney of College Squad Second to I. A. C. Star in A. A. U. Race.

BRAVE SNOW AND COLD

BY KEENE GARDINER.

Represented by a team of husky, strong athletes, coached by Tom Eck, veteran trainer of bicycle riders, the University of Chicago yesterday captured the senior cross country run of the Central A. A. U., held at Douglas park under the auspices of the Illinois A. C., with the minimum total of 28 points.

The I. A. C. was second with 32 points. The Greek Olympic A. C., the only other contestant, entered only four men, and only one finished, thereby giving that team a total of 12 points. According to the rulings, each team should be represented by five runners, so the total of the Greek organization does not count in the prize list.

Although the Maroons romped away with team honors, Joie Ray, the crack little runner of the Illinois A. C., breasted the tape first. Glen Tenney of the University of Chicago, who won the conference cross country run at Lafayette, was second, and M. Nott of the Illinois A. C. was third. Ray covered the distance, supposed to be six miles, in 28:26 4-5, but the route was announced to be short after the race.

Ray Leads Almost from Start.

The runners, clad in heavy underwear, wearing fur mittens and stocking caps, were sent away on their long journey by Roy Davis. Tenney was the first to go into the lead, closely followed by Ray. At the half way station of the first lap Ray jumped the Maroon, and at the end of the first lap or mile was twenty-five yards in advance of Tenney. French of the Illinois A. C. was in third position and Otis of the University of Chicago fourth. Jones of the Midway team was fifth. The time for the first mile was 4:33.

Ray gradually increased his lead in the second lap. Despite the hard and slippery going Ray kept plugging and at the end of the third mile was a good 100 yards in advance of Tenney. The time for three miles was 14:00. At the end of the fourth circuit Ray was 150 yards in the lead. The time was 18:47 3-5.

The order remained the same at the completion of the fifth lap. Ray crossed the line fully 200 yards in advance of Tenney. The remaining trio of the quintet of point winners were well bunched. The time at the end of the fifth mile was 23:42 3-5.

Joie Finishes in Summer Togs.

After he had crossed the line at the end of the fifth mile Ray discarded his sweater, cap, and gloves and negotiated the last mile in practically summer running togs. Half the distance from home Ray let out a notch, and when he crossed the line he was nearly as fresh as when he started. Tenney of Chicago was second, Nott third, French fourth, and Otis of Chicago fifth.

The race, which previously had been awarded to the St. Paul Business Men's club, was taken over by the local organization after the Gopher institution had notified the championship committee of the Central A. A. U. it would be impossible to stage it in the Twin Cities because of the cold weather and snow.

Conditions were anything but favorable, despite the work of the west park commissioners and officials of the Tri-Color club to get the course in shape. The harriers were compelled to run over a hard and slippery snow packed course. Some elected to run in tennis shoes, and they had all kinds of trouble holding their footing. The more fortunate wore indoor shoes with short spikes.

Eighteen Start; Fifteen Finish.

Eighteen runners started, and fifteen finished. Fred Cameron of the Illinois A. C., considered a contender for premier honors at the start, pulled a tendon at the end of the second mile and was forced to withdraw. The other runners to give up the grind found the going too hard and quit at different times.

The race was watched by at least 5,000 persons. The kids who took advantage of the toboggan slide were continually in the way, and if it had not been for hard work on the part of the police and inspectors the runners would have been compelled to run out of their course.

MITCHELL FACES DIFFICULT TASK WITH CUB TEAM

BY JAMES CRUSINBERRY.

Probably no baseball manager ever stepped into a harder job than the position as manager of the Cubs handed Fred Mitchell Thursday, when President Weeghman of the north side team signed the former Boston Braves' coach as leader for the next two years. At the same time no manager ever stepped into a more interesting and attractive job, because the situation demands almost a complete rebuilding and the fans do not expect immediate results.

When Mr. Mitchell begins his task next spring he will find only the remnants of a once strong team, with scarcely a single cog wheel remaining of the old time machine which won pennants for Chicago under the direction of Frank Chance. Mr. Mitchell will find about half a dozen men of undisputed major league ability, and he will find about thirty others, some of more or less experience and some unknown.

Stars All Past Their Zenith.

Of the men who have proven their worth one can name Larry Doyle and Vic Saier on the infield, Cy Williams in the outfield, Jim Archer and Art Wilson as catchers, and Jim Vaughn and Jim Lavender as pitchers. In the opinion of many experts every one of those seven players has seen his best days, so the whole isn't the best sort of material to be used in building a new machine.

Of the others who worked for Joe Tinker last season, some showed signs of improvement, while others seemed to be declining in athletic prowess. Leslie Mann in the outfield was a better player last year than the previous year as a Federal leaguer. Max Flack, also in the outfield, didn't develop as expected, but still has a chance, as he is young. Chuck Wortman at short proved efficient in the fielding end but failed badly as a sticker. After the departure of Heine Zimmerman, Rollie Zeider seemed the only reliable man on third base, but Rollie never acquired much of a batting stride and is past the age to develop.

Dope on Other Pitchers.

On the pitching staff Gene Packard was the greatest help outside of Vaughn and Lavender, and undoubtedly Gene will continue to pitch big league ball, but he also is past the age of development. Claude Hendrix, still a youngster, didn't pitch as good ball as he had four years previous. Mike Prendergast showed signs of splendid ability in spite of his light weight. Big George McConnell never struck a winning stride after June. So on the whole the fellows who did the pitching for the Cubs last year do not stack up well with the pitching staffs of rival teams.

There is some hope of improvement by several of those named after they have been given the expert advice suppose to be possessed by Mr. Mitchell. Also there were two sturdy recruits added to the staff in Nick Carter and Hubert Scott Perry, both of whom may do wonders under expert teaching. Then George Zabel, Pete Standridge, and Russell Robbins, former Cub hurlers, are to be brought back for another trial, and one of them may earn a regular place on the staff this time.

Four Catchers on List.

No one doubts that Jim Archer has been one of the greatest catchers in the game, but he wasn't able to work much last season because of battered fingers. Art Wilson, always steady and true, has been up for a good many years and probably never can be better than he has been. Rowdy Elliott did some good work last year, and it looks as if a live youngster has been found in Pickles Dilhoffer, with Milwaukee last year.

One of the biggest problems for the new boss will be to build an infield. Right now it looks as if the best combination would be Saier at first, Doyle at second, Wortman at short, and Deal at third, but it isn't a strong batting quartet though Doyle and Saier are good hitters. Aspiring infielders who will be after jobs are Fred Mollwitz, Charley Pechous, young Hunter, obtained with Doyle in exchange for Zimmerman, and three or four unknowns drafted and purchased from the minor leagues.

Outfielders who will be trying to take jobs away from the veterans are Jacobson, also obtained in the Zimmerman trade; Earl Smith, who came from Omaha last fall, and Harry Wolter, the old time big leaguer, who aspires to come back.

EIGHT STAR PREP GRIDDERS TO JOIN MAROON FORCES.

St. Paul, Minn., Dec. 16.—[Special.]—Eight members of the Mechanic Arts High school championship football team, five of whom were honored with positions on the all star St. Paul high school team this fall, will matriculate at the University of Chicago next fall.

The group includes the greatest all around athletes that ever played in a St. Paul high school at one time.

O'Neill and La Bissoniere, football center, both are pitchers. Capt. Goette is a basketball star. The other men who will go to Chicago university are: Swanson, quarterback and baseball player; Gatterson, football, track, and basketball star; O'Brien, hockey, baseball, football; Lytle, track, football, hockey; Fisher, giant tackle, and also a basketball star.

KNOCKED OUT BECAUSE HEAD DOESN'T MOVE

Travers Sees It Coming, but Can't Get Away—Now He's Through.

BY RAY C. PEARSON.

There's one boxer in Chicago who has sufficient noodle to know that he never could "get anywhere" in the game of pugilism. His name is Jimmy Travers, and, although it took several years to convince him that he could achieve greater success in some other line of endeavor, he now is throwing away the padded mitts and working on a regular job for which he draws down a regular stipend every week.

Travers is still a kid, and he never was more than a fair performer in the ring. But as a gymnasium boxer Jimmy was a marvel. He could perform in the gymnasium like a champion when nothing depended on it, but when it came to battling for the money he seemed, like many other boxers, to forget how to employ the tactics he used in the gym. Travers probably is a bit above some of the other scrappers in the game when it comes to using the gray matter. He's an intelligent kid and is inclined to the humorous. While he hasn't made much of a hit in the game of swapping wallops, he takes things philosophically and can laugh when things are going against him.

Kayo Ends His Career.

Travers' last fight, and the one at which he sung his swan song took place at New Orleans not long ago, and there was a bit of aftermath to that bout which is interesting. His opponent was Phil Virgets, a Crescent City boxer of fair caliber, and Virgets knocked out Jimmy in the ninth round. Here's the way Travers described the battle and what happened afterward:

"I went along with Virgets for eight rounds and was holding my own in great shape, and it looked to me as if I had a good chance to win, for we were scrapping twenty rounds. But you can never tell what will happen, for in the next round Virgets copped me a hard one on the point of the chin. The punch didn't hurt me much, but it didn't do me any good. So the next time Phil let go with his right I was determined to shift my head and escape any further damage. A second later, when he tried again with his right, I tried to shift, but it seemed I couldn't even move my head out of the way of his punch, and it landed squarely.

"Virgets copped me with another right and I certainly grew disgusted, because I couldn't get my head out of the way, although I saw it coming every time. I got so peeved that every time he landed I said out loud, 'D—n you,' and believe me, I said a lot of 'D—n you's' before he finally popped me so hard that I was a goner and the bout was over."

His Conqueror Apologizes.

"After the contest was over, Virgets, who seems to be somewhat of a sensitive fellow, came to my dressing room. 'I'm sorry I had to knock you out,' he said, extending his hand for me to shake.

"'O that's all right, Phil,' I answered. 'If I had to be knocked out I would just as soon have the job done by you as any one else.'

"But Virgets had something else on his mind he wanted to get off. "Say, Jimmy, I'm really sorry that I had to knock you out, but what did you want to swear at me for all the time when I was hitting you? I didn't like that."

"I wasn't swearing at you at all, Phil," answered Travers. "I was swearing at myself, because I couldn't get my head out of the way of your punches, for I didn't have any trouble in seeing them coming."

Then the pair shook hands again and parted.

No Sample for Germany.

Wee Joe Thomas, now manager of Frankie Whitney, the Cedar Rapids carpenter-boxer, not very long ago was trainer for Charley White, the Chicago left hook artist. When Thomas was putting White into condition for battles he aspired to a job as trainer of a big league baseball club. Herman, perhaps better known as "Germany" or "Middles," Schaeffer, with the Washington American league club at that time, heard of Joe's ambition. So Schaeffer and some friends appeared one day at the gymnasium where Thomas was exercising his craft. Schaeffer tackled Wee Joe thusly:

"I hear you want a job with a big league club," he began. "Now you know I'm with Washington, and whatever I say just about goes. We're thinking of getting a new trainer next year. I'm going to play handball with my friends here this afternoon, and after I'm through I'd like to have you give me a good rubdown. Just a sample of your work, you know."

"That sounds all right," said Thomas. "But have you got any sample money in your clothes?"

Germany paid for his rubdown.

On with the Count!

In a recent bout in a Kenosha ring a couple of sluggers got together and neither knew how to do anything but wallop. Near the finish of the first round the bout came to a close, one of the chaps being on the canvas. He wasn't knocked out, but had been knocked down three times and was just about ripe for a real nap. The referee, bending over him, started to count and had reached seven when he said to the fellow in an aside:

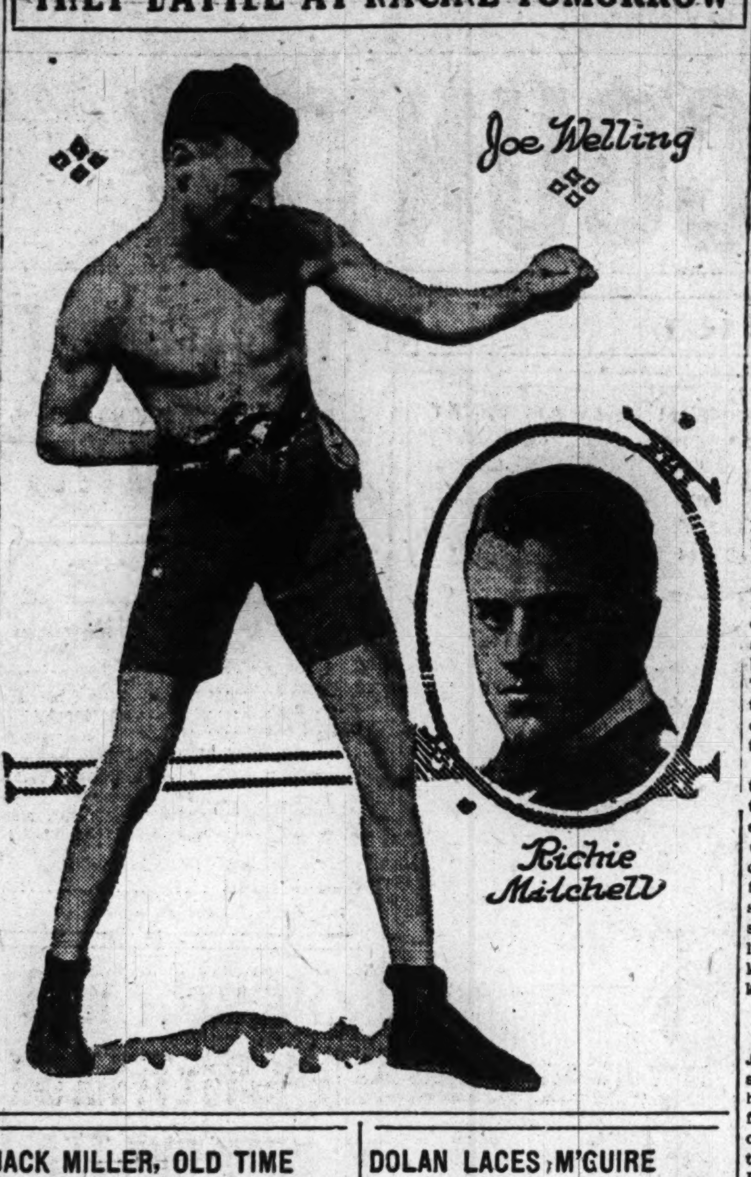
"You'd better get up quickly. I just said seven."

"O go on and count. Count a million if you want to. I can stay here as long as you can count," answered the gent on the canvas, and he stayed there until he was certain that ten seconds had passed.

PENN TAKES SOCCER HONORS

Philadelphia, Pa., Dec. 16.—The University of Pennsylvania soccer team today defeated Princeton, 3 to 2, winning the intercollegiate championship. The game was played on a snow covered field.

THEY BATTLE AT RACINE TOMORROW



JACK MILLER, OLD TIME BARE KNUCKLE BOXER, DIES.

John Miller was buried yesterday in Mount Olivet. To most of those who knew him at the end he was merely a saloonkeeper at Thirty-sixth street and Wentworth avenue. But to his intimates he was Jack Miller of Manchester, England, a ring gladiator of the first class back in the bare knuckle days of pugilism. Among Miller's battles was a terrific encounter with the famous Jem Mace of England, fought on French soil. Miller lost an eye in that encounter. Miller was 85 years old. For more than forty years he was a saloonkeeper in Chicago. Years back, when his business was near the loop, his place was a favorite resort for the sporting fraternity. He is survived by a widow, Sarah.

LATZO VICTOR OVER CROSS.

Philadelphia, Pa., Dec. 16.—[Special.]—Forcing the pace and doing the bulk of the leading and fighting in four of the six rounds, Steve Latzo of Hazelton, Pa., won a cleancut verdict over Marty Cross of New York in the main bout of the bill at the National Athletic club tonight.

DOLAN LACES M'GUIRE IN GO AT PITTSBURGH.

Pittsburgh, Pa., Dec. 16.—[Special.]—Sunburst Dolan of Chicago looked like the best featherweight who has appeared here for some time, when he easily defeated Barney McGuire of Johnstown in a six round bout before the Penn A. C. tonight. Both men fought warily in the first round, which was even, but in the second Dolan opened up, using a short left jab to McGuire's ribs and stomach that had him like the side of a raw beef before the bout was half over. Just before the final bell Dolan shot a hard right to McGuire's jaw for the only knockdown of the bout, but the Johnstown boy got to his feet as the bell rang.

NATIONAL BASKET TOURNEY TO BE HELD IN CHICAGO.

Word was received yesterday by Charley Dean of the Central A. A. U. championship committee that the National A. A. U. had awarded the basketball championship to the Central association. The event was held in the First Regiment armory last season and the final contests were seen by at least 3,000 persons.

WELLING READY FOR MITCHELL IN RACINE BOUT

Rival Battlers Fit for What Appears to Be Best Contest of the Season.

BY KNOCKOUT.

Fight fans of this vicinity are anticipating the treat of the season tomorrow night. Joe Welling, the "wonderfully willing" product of Chicago, and Richie Mitchell, Milwaukee candidate for the lightweight championship, are expected to furnish the said treat. They are billed for ten rounds at 135 pounds before John Wagner's Racine club. Those who are credited with knowing the wherefore of things pugilistic are confident the battle will take rank with the greatest of no-decision contests.

Welling and Mitchell carry practically the same guns as their chief stock in trade. Joe is credited with a highly educated left jab, which is supplemented with a right cross that is more than dangerous. That description just about fits Mitchell, too. Richie is rated as slightly the faster of the pair. To offset that, Welling's right cross is believed to be just a little closer to the kayo variety than that of the Milwaukee fighter.

Mitchell Shows Progress.

Mitchell's recent decisive triumph over Joe Rivers at Milwaukee boosted his stock far above par. For several years he has been an idol with Milwaukee ring followers, and the Brewery City is counted on to send a goodly delegation to the ringside. Welling's victory over Ever Hammer and his knockout of Frankie Whitney have reinstated him in the affections of Chicago fans, and this city undoubtedly will send a big crowd to the scene of warfare. It looks like a profitable house.

Considerable interest is being shown in the semi-windup. Joe Dory, the Racine destroyer who has been knocking 'em all loose from their bearings, is carded to tackle Mike Hirsch, the Chicago middleweight, in an eight round setto. In a previous encounter Dory stopped Hirsch in a couple of rounds, which is considered some feat in these parts.

Adams to Meet Graham.

Georgie Adams of Chicago and Johnny Graham, a fast stepping Racine bantam, will furnish the six round opener. A special leaving over the Northwestern at 6:50 will carry most of the Chicago spectators to the ringside.

Frankie Burns, a Kansas City bantam, was in town yesterday. He worked at the Arcade gym before resuming a journey to Windsor, Can., there he is to mingle with Benny McNeil in a ten round bout Wednesday night. Before leaving Burns whispered he would like to get Johnny Coulon to meet before a Kansas City club some time in January.

"LITTLE 5" AWARDS TRACK AND TENNIS MEETS TO BELOIT

Beloit college was awarded the annual outdoor track and field meet and the tennis championships of the Little Five conference at the annual meeting yesterday in the Illinois club. Both title meets will be held on May 19. Championships for the last year were officially bestowed and work of framing schedules for another year progressed to an advanced stage.

A resolution also was passed requesting Beloit to curtail its outside competition so as to book more contests with Little Five teams.

Championships for the last year were allotted as follows:

Basketball, Lake Forest and Armour, tie; baseball, Lake Forest; track, Monmouth; tennis, singles, Lake Forest; doubles, Monmouth; football, tie, Knox and Monmouth.

FOR PLAYERS OF WHIST

By A. R. Metcalfe

EIGHTY players engaged in a duplicate auction game at a prominent downtown club Wednesday evening and developed at least one remarkable deal.

The scores varied from 416 north and south to 300 east and west. No two tables had the same score and the correct final bid was not played at any table. The hands were as follows:

THE HANDS.

S—2.
H—10, 8, 4, 3.
C—Q, J, 10, 8, 2.
D—Q, J, 9.

North dealt and at most tables the first round of bidding was as follows: Passed by north, one spade by east, one no-trump by south, two spades by west, three clubs by north.

In a number of cases west made a very bad bid of two hearts, instead of two spades. Instead of supporting clubs south continued bidding no-trump and the deal was played at three or four spades, three or four no-trump, or three or four hearts, but never at clubs. At some tables the final bid was doubled and in some cases redoubled.

In one instance south actually made four no-trump because west opened the heart suit. But at every table the 100 aces seemed to obscure the big hand at clubs. North would have made a small slam at clubs, and in many cases bids of three or four clubs were doubled by the opponents.

ANSWERS TO QUERIES.

Chicago.—[To the Editor.]—In duplicate whist, is it correct for the leader to lead a Singleton of trumps? Is it correct for the leader to lead from a suit holding only jack and king of that suit? Who is considered the authority in duplicate whist?

A READER.

Ans.—It is sometimes correct to lead a Singleton trump, but never to open a suit of king, jack only.

Macomb, Ill.—[To the Editor.]—(1) What is the meaning of the statement: "There is no misdeal in bridge." (2) Suppose a mistake is made in dealing so that one person has fourteen cards and one of the others but twelve. If this is discovered before the hand is played or any bids have been made, what is done? (3) Suppose it is not discovered until the hand is nearly played out, what is done?

I sometimes play with people who insist that the meaning of the expression "there is no misdeal in bridge" means that a mistake, if found before play starts, is corrected by the person who is short a card or so drawing from the hand of some one who has more than thirteen. Is this right? G. B. K.

Ans.—I have often wondered why your first question has not come to me before this. The statement, "There is no misdeal in bridge," was simply a blunder by the committee which framed the laws. They simply meant that when there was a misdeal the same player dealt a second time. When a player has more than thirteen cards it is always a misdeal.

NEW STARS ENLIST WITH LOCAL SKIERS FOR BIG TOURNEYS

BY JACK PROCTOR.

Although snow has not bothered Chicago much so far, local ski enthusiasts are scanning the sky eagerly, and polishing up the old runners in expectation of a great season. New additions to the Chicago colony include experts with reputations gained outside of America, and they are expected to make the Chicago representation even stronger than usual in the annual series of big meets at Cary, St. Paul, Duluth, Ironwood and Mount Horeb. Alex Olsen, who captured most of the ski honors to be obtained in Canada last year, receiving a cup from King George for his prowess, is now making his home in this city and probably will compete for the Chicago Norge club. Axel Henricksen, hero of somersaults on skis, will essay his hair raising stunts again, as a spill which resulted in his breaking a leg last winter has not dissipated his ardor for the sport.

Norge club members made several changes in their slide at Cary during the summer, with the purpose of giving greater impetus for the contestants as they take off. The ground was leveled to eight feet, one hundred feet below the takeoff, and this is expected to make a jump, which last year cleared a distance of 140 feet, worth about 150 feet this winter.

Ragnar Omtvedt, national champion at various times, will again represent the local club, although the champion and several club officials were on the outs at the end of the season last year.

Norge club skiers made haste to take advantage of the snowy weather of the last week. Many performers made several pilgrimages to Cary and [illegible]

Two Notable Models
On Exhibit Now—A Hundred New Attractions

Never before, in a single season, has the Mitchell advanced so far. And this at a time when new models are scarce. See the great upward steps the Mitchell is taking for the season of 1917.

The Show Models

We have here now the Mitchell models which will make their debut at the coming Shows.

Most makers say, "No new models for spring." They feel they have reached the limit. But John W. Bate has brought out in these Mitchells a hundred new attractions. Come and see them at this opening exhibit.

A New Standard

The greatest new feature is a new standard—100 per cent over-strength. That is, twice the strength required in every Mitchell part.

This is not a sudden change. John W. Bate, our efficiency engineer, started three years ago to attain this. Part by part he has doubled our margins of safety. But this is the first time we have claimed for the Mitchell more than 50 per cent over-strength.

Now over 440 parts are built of toughened steel. The parts which meet the major strains are built of Chrome-Vanadium. The most important parts are vastly oversize.

Every common weakness seems to be overcome. Even our springs seem unbreakable under any shock. In two years' constant service, on thousands of cars, not one Bate cantilever spring has ever yet been broken.

The New Things
24% Added Luxury
100% Over-Strength
8 New-Style Bodies
31 Extra Features
A New Mitchell Junior

So Mr. Bate's ambition to build a lifetime car seems realized in this model.

24% Added Luxury

And now we make a new factory saving—an enormous saving. All Mitchell bodies, open and enclosed, will hereafter be built in our new body plant. And built, like our chassis, under Bate efficiency methods.

Out of this new saving we add 24 per cent to the cost of our finish, upholstery and trimming.

Our finish coats are now fixed by heat, in enormous ovens. This gives the Mitchell a deep, lustrous finish, with a gloss that endures like enamel.

An extra-grade leather is being used, costing 50 per cent more than usual grades. Also costly cushion springs.

Every detail of finish and trimming shows the master's touch. You never saw a modest-priced car so exquisite.

Now 31 Free Extras

These Mitchells also have 31 extra features which most other cars omit. They will cost us next year about $4,000,000. Things like a power tire pump, reversible headlights, a new-type gear-shift, a ball-bearing steering gear, an extra-cost carburetor. These are all paid for by factory savings. They are part of the 20 per cent extra value which efficiency gives to the Mitchell.

It Belongs to You

This extra value belongs to you. It means more endurance, more safety, less upkeep. It means the pinnacle of luxury. It means many a comfort and convenience which other cars omit.

They are all due to Mitchell efficiency. This model plant, covering 45 acres, was built and equipped by John W. Bate. Nowhere else in the world can a car like the Mitchell be built at the Mitchell cost.

Come see the results—the hundred results which give unique value to the Mitchell cars. Here is more for your money—a great deal more—than in any other high grade car.

Never was this fact made so clear as in these Mitchell models.

Northwest side bowlers made a bid for the team championship in the Chicago Bowling association tournament last night which looks strong enough to ride to the finish, now only two days away. The No. 1 team of the L. Millers shot 2,888. The new total beats the Robert I. Joyces' mark by four points.

The other leaders were undisturbed, although there was some brilliant shooting in singles. Ben Hellman led twelve men across the 600 line and landed in seventh place. Fred Thoma and Harry Steers crowded into tenth place in doubles with 1,211.

The Millers carried three men with better than 600 marks, Fred Sieloff leading with 647, while Bill Elke got 616 and Ed Berndt 608. Frank Behnke was dragged along with 523. Stanley Barik had 494.

One of 'Em Late.

A curious feature of the new leaders' game was the fact that Behnke arrived ten minutes late and the team was using a substitute who had not shot. Behnke showed little desire to roll, but was forced in.

Fred Thoma gave Harry Steers a little ride in doubles by counting 625 to Steers' 586. Hank Poggensee and Paul Block ran second highest of the day with 1,199, with the former showing a 700 series, the best three games rolled in the last two weeks, to his partner's 499.

Ben Hellman's 645 was a steady performance, opening with 191 and getting better. Bill Mrosek showed 634 with three even games, while Fred Meyers also got a steady series with 633, although opening with 633.

BASKETBALL GAMES ON LOCAL FLOORS

M. McCARTNEY and Frisbie made a two man battle of the basket ball clash between Hinsdale and Batavia High schools at Hinsdale last night, and the former won a 17 to 7 decision for the home five. McCartney shot six ringers and five free throws for all the Hinsdale points, while Frisbie tossed three baskets and one free throw for the Batavia total. At half time the count stood 9 to 5 in McCartney's favor. Lawton, center for the winners, was banished for violating the four foul rule, and the victors shuffled their makeup after injecting Dorstewitz into the proceedings. Lineup:

ILLINOIS A. C. SQUAD TAKES 54 TO 8 GAME FROM PARK TOSSERS

BY OTTO A. ENGEL.

Illinois Athletic club sharpshooters scored their fourth triumph of the season, smothering the Hamilton Park quintet under an avalanche of baskets, 54 to 8, in the I. A. C. gymnasium last night. From the start there was little opposition, as the club players opened a bombardment on the basket. Greisel featured the offensive play with eleven ringers, while Feeney ran second with five. For the losers, Manning did all the scoring with three ringers and two free throws

I. A. C. seconds had almost as easy a time, upsetting the White Eagles, 44 to 15, in the curtain raiser. At the intermission the score was 18 to 6. Clegg caged the ball eleven times and Manager "Papa" Williams hit the mark five times. Lineups:

2,000 MILE TRIP FOR LOCAL FIVE

A jaunt of 2,000 miles, one of the longest basketball trips ever scheduled by a bunch of collegians, will be taken by the Chicago Y. M. C. A. college squad from Dec. 22 to Jan. 6. The local quintet will start at the close of the fall term at the "Y" training school, and play strong athletic club and varsity fives as far east as Springfield, Mass., and return.

Nine players will make the trip. The men hail from six states, and gained their original experience at the sport at widely separated institutions. They will play almost every day, and may pick up more contests on the road, in addition to the twelve already booked. The men will be under the direction of Dr. J. W. Paige, athletic head of the Y. M. C. A. college. The itinerary follows:

Dec. 22—Grand Rapids Y. M. C. A.
Dec. 23—Detroit Y. M. C. A.
Dec. 25—Hardin Co. A. C., Canton, O.
Dec. 27—Cleveland, O., Pioneers.
Dec. 28—Buffalo, N. Y., Germans.
Dec. 30—Rochester, N. Y., Kodak club.
Jan. 1 and 2—Springfield, Mass., Y. M. C. A. college.
Jan. 3—Yale Normal, New Haven, Conn.
Jan. 4—Brooklyn Y. M. C. A.
Jan. 5—Marietta, O., college.
Jan. 6—Wabash college, Crawfordsville, Ind.

YOKEL THROWS JACK CARROLL IN MAT FEATURE

Salt Lake Boy Shows Variety of Holds at C. A. A. Show—Meyers and Beel Draw.

BY HAMMERLOCK.

Mike Yokel, one of the best wrestling pieces of machinery seen around the Chicago Athletic association since Frank Gotch discarded his shoes and made the positive announcement he was through with the mat game, defeated Jack Carroll of Duluth, Minn., in the feature match of the final show of the year at the Cherry Circle gymnasium.

Using a combination of holds, including the body scissors used by Stecher, Yokel won the first fall in 12:21 with a reverse body lock after the body scissors made his opponent fall into the deadly trap. Just to show those seated around the ringside that he did not have to depend upon the toe hold or body scissors, Yokel won the second fall and the match with a standing crotch in 2:00. The Salt Lake wrestler looks like a comer and may be a worthy opponent for some of the best in the game.

Welters Grapple to Draw.

Although the Yokel-Carroll match was billed as the best match on the card, the contest between Johnny Meyers, claimant of the world's welterweight championship, and Young Beel was the match which attracted most attention. In the first bout the referee called the bout a draw after they had been on the mat for 40:00. They then were called back and after they had grappled for 1:10 the arbiter called off the contest and declared it a draw.

William Demetral, known in wrestling circles as the Greek Demon, defeated Joe Taylor of Boston in straight falls. The Greek won the first in 14:10 with a reverse body lock and the second bout in 4:51 with a body and scissors and arm lock.

Katausky Awarded Bout.

Pete Katausky, known as the Lithuanian champion, won from Tom Rolewicz in the opening contest. The Pole was compelled to quit at the end of 8:42 after he had received a fracture of the ribs. The bout then was called off.

OTTER WINS SHOOT TROPHY.

After five shooters got perfect totals in the fifty target event for the Judge Carpenter trophy yesterday, H. Otter won the prize by topping the field with twenty-four "kills" in a twenty-five bird shoot off at Lincoln park. R. H. Combs, H. C. Stuts, O. Kausche and G. W. Peck were the other shooters without any misses at fifty targets. Prizes for all will be given at a Christmas tree shoot on Saturday. Leading scores:

50 targets, added bird handicap—Otter, 50; Comus, 50; Stuts, 50; Kausche, 50; Peck, 50; C. W. Regester, 49; L. B. Clarke, 48; Dr. Belknap, 47; A. S. Peabody, 47; J. Pedgrift, 47; C. H. Stross, 47.

GREAT RUN OF NINE WINS CUE CONTEST FOR CHICAGO STAR

Coming from behind after a bad start, John Moore, playing for Chicago, defeated Jerome Keogh of Rochester in the interstate Three Cushion league billiard match last night at Flenner's. Until the twentieth inning, when Moore made a remarkable run of nine, his opponent was well in the lead. That high run put Moore one to the good and from then on he led until the finish, which came in sixty-five innings. Keogh's high run was three. When eighteen innings had been played he was leading the Chicago representative by a count of 16 to 7 and seemed to have the match won. Score:

TRIANGLES, BY SPURT, BEAT MYSTIC A. C. TEAM, 39 TO 31.

Hamlin Triangles staged a desperate spurt in the second half and by totaling 28 points to 6 for the Mystic A. C. won out in their own gymnasium, 39 to 31. At the start of the second half the Mystic five led, 25 to 11, but in the latter period Left Forward Churchill was removed after four personal fouls, breaking up the Mystic team's combination. Des Remeaux, who played center for Hamlin, was hurt and left the game. In a lightweight battle the Triangle juniors won from Doremus church juniors, 43 to 20, making their fifth straight victory. SINAI SWIMMER LOWERS RECORD IN A. A. F. MEET

Raphael Sets Junior Mark of :22 for Forty—Searle of New Trier Is Star.

M. Raphael of the Sinai Social Center natators, broke the forty yard swim record in the junior event last night in the second annual Amateur Athletic federation meet, at the Chicago Hebrew institute. Raphael went the distance in :22, breaking the former mark of :22 2-5 made last year by Fitgerald of the same institution.

Raphael was among the big point getters for his team, gaining second place in the 100 yard swim, which was won by Jack Searle of New Trier High school in 1:09 2-5. Searle tied Raphael for the lead in individual point getters by taking second in the forty yard swim.

S. Moss of Sinai was the leading point maker in the senior event, capturing the forty yard event in :21 and taking second in the 100 yard free style, which was won by L. Scherer of the Central Y. M. C. A. Orrian Smith of Sinai won the 200 foot breaststroke in great style in 3:04 2-5. Summaries:

SENIORS.

40 yard swim—Won by S. Moss, Sinai S. C.; Stifler, Evanston High, second; J. Norton, Central Y. M. C. A., third. Time, :21.

100 yard swim—Won by L. Scherer, Central Y. M. C. A.; S. Moss, Sinai S. C., second; Searle, New Trier H. S., third. Time, 1:08 3-5.

BRICKIES MEET JOLIET IN SOCCER CLASH TODAY.

Local soccer fans welcomed yesterday's rise in temperature and a big crowd is expected to see the Bricklayers and Joliet team play their match in the second round of the national championship series at Bricklayers' field at 2:30 o'clock. This will be the only game played, as the match between the McDuffs and Pullman was postponed yesterday. Referee Dempsey inspected the Pullman field and decided it was unfit for play.

Next Saturday the biggest match of the local season will be staged, a picked team from the Chicago league meeting the Bethlehem team, holder of the United States championship and the American cup, emblematic of the eastern championship, at Brickies' field.

This season Bethlehem has played seventeen games and won every one, its record being seventy goals to eleven by opponents. With one game to play at Chicago and two at St. Louis, the Pennsylvanians are bringing fifteen men for their western trip.

SAXON "SIX"
A BIG TOURING CAR FOR FIVE PEOPLE

You Can Save $50
If You Buy Before Jan. 1

There will be no change in the model. The Saxon "Six" you can buy today—and until January 1st—for $815 is the same car that will cost you $865 after January 1st.

There's scarcely need for explanation. You know how prices of other commodities have gone up. So have prices of automobile materials.

You know the high quality standard the Saxon Motor Car Corporation has adhered to in the past. You know that will not be lowered.

So—to cover the increased cost of labor and materials—the price must be raised $50.

And we say to you—act quick—come in today, place your order for Saxon "Six," and it will be the same as having placed $50 to your credit in the bank.

Suppose Fatimas were NOT Sensible

It isn't possible to fool men for long. Lincoln said that better than we could. ¶ Surely, if Fatimas were not as comfortable to the throat and tongue as we say they are—if they did not leave a man feeling keen and "fit" after a long-smoking day—do you suppose that more Fatimas would be sold every day than any other high-grade cigarette? ¶ Remember these facts as you try Fatimas and observe how comfortable, how sensible they really are.

RAISE $30,000 FOR GOLF CLUB IN 10 MINUTES

Ridgemoor to Have New Home from Amount of Bond Issue.

BY J. G. DAVIS.

With characteristic Chicago energy, members of the Ridgemoor Country club took less than ten minutes to subscribe for $30,000 worth of bonds which will be issued to provide funds for the erection of a new clubhouse.

Shortly after Henry E. Strassheim had been elected president at the annual meeting he outlined a plan for financing a new clubhouse by issuing bonds in denominations of from $100 to $2,000, and these went like the proverbial hot cakes.

Soon the brick farm house which has been utilized as a clubhouse since the inception of the club will be razed, or possibly used for other purposes, and before July 1 next year the Ridgemoor members will be inviting their friends to "see our new clubhouse."

Fine View Over Course.

The new house, designed by Frederick G. Walker, will be located several hundred feet south of the present house, and the driveway from the road will be through a heavily wooded section. The point selected is one of the most picturesque on the ridge, containing some of the finest oaks on the property and affording a view over the entire course.

Construction will be of hollow tile and stucco exterior, making it a fireproof structure. With a membership limited to 209, the idea of the architect has been to aim for coziness.

At the south end of the building there will be a screened porch 26 by 56, which can be utilized as a dining room in warm weather. The dining room proper is on the west side, being 30 by 40. A special feature has been made of the "nineteenth hole," located on the east side. Part of the ridge will be excavated so that this cooling retreat will have a half-basement effect. A spacious lobby and a women's room occupy the main floor in the center.

Two Big Locker Rooms.

Provision has been made in the basement for 225 lockers, the men's department being 22x36 and the women's 15x22. A vapor bath is included in the plan. The other basement space will be used for storeroom, kitchen, boiler room, and coalroom. Sleeping accommodation has been provided only for the help, but later a small dormitory for members may be added.

Ridgemoor has made rapid strides in the last few years and since it purchased its property the membership is of a most substantial character. Memberships now cost $375 and annual dues are $75. The list is filling rapidly.

Easy to Get There.

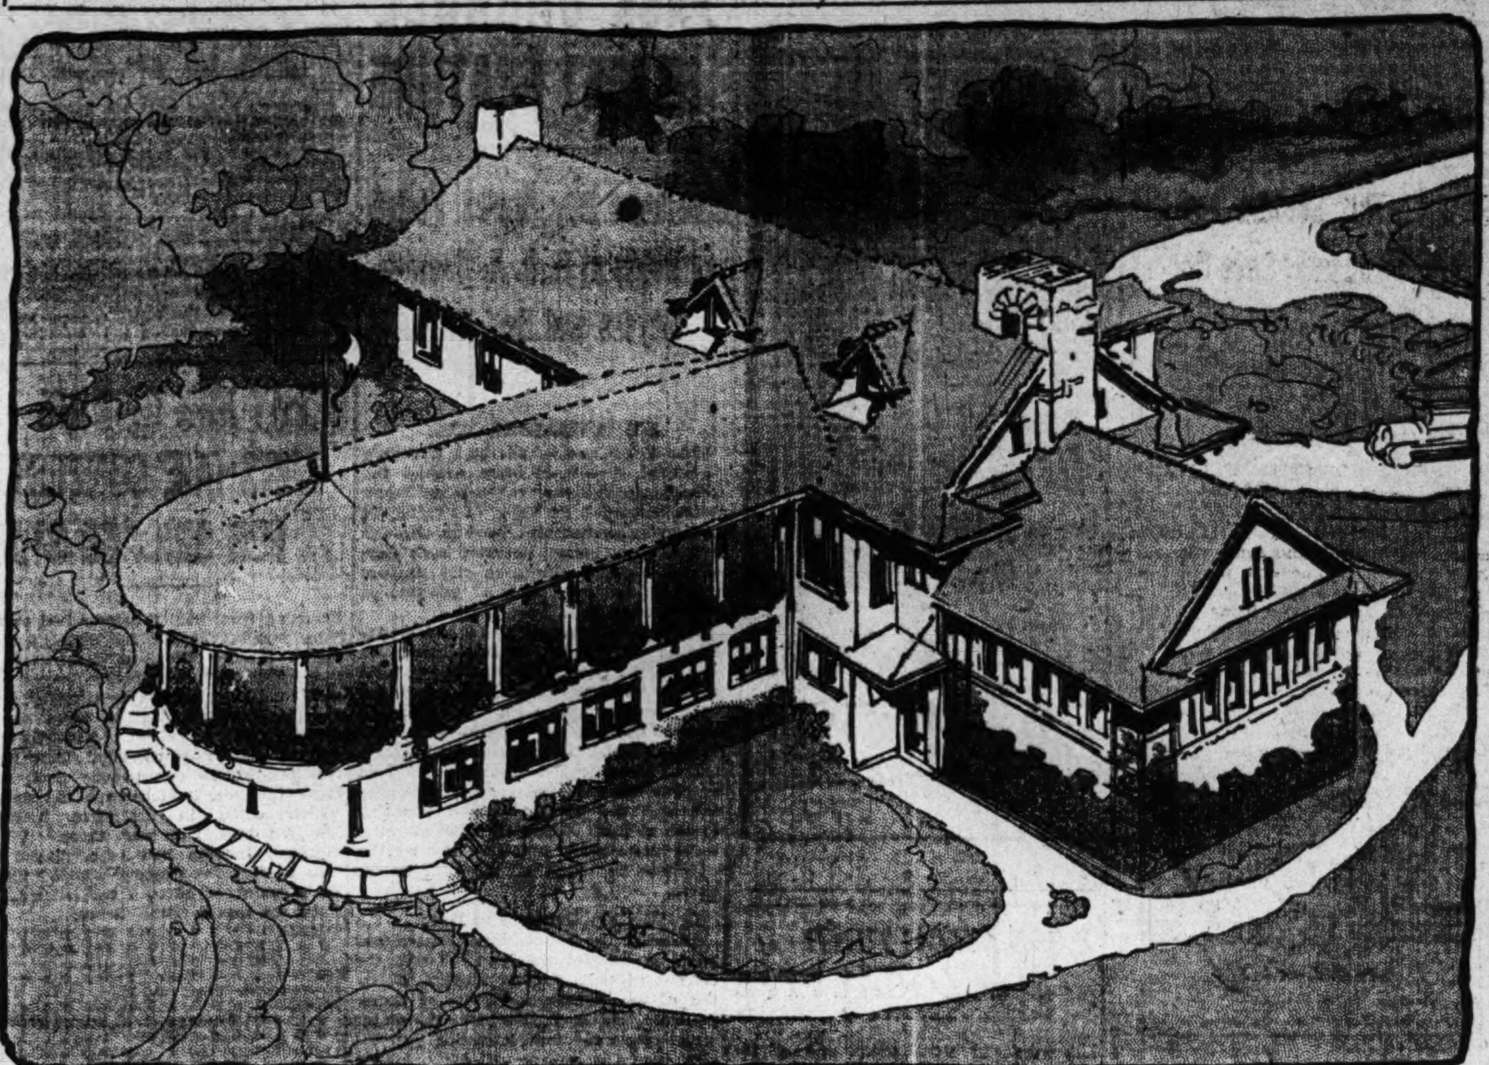
The club is one of the most accessible in Chicago. It is located ten miles northwest of the city hall and one mile west of Jefferson Park. The Lawrence avenue car line is being extended and will be in operation by the first of the year within four blocks of the grounds. Higgins road, running west from Milwaukee avenue, in Jefferson Park to a point near the club grounds is being reconstructed and will afford an excellent route for automobiles.

The course is in the best shape it ever has been, several thousand dollars having been expended on the grounds during the last two years. Bill Barrett, the club professional, has done a lot of good work and is enthusiastic over prospects.

The officers elected at the annual meeting were:

President—Henry E. Strassheim.
Vice president—James B. Day.
Secretary—J. H. Bartleme.
Treasurer—Jesse M. Coen.
Directors—W. G. Wise, F. J. L. Kolb, C. C. Secrist, F. B. Woltz, E. D. Birdsell.

ARCHITECT'S DRAWING OF NEW RIDGEMOOR C. C. HOUSE



MICHIGAN SIGNS TO MEET CORNELL NEXT TWO YEARS

Ann Arbor, Mich., Dec. 16.—It was officially announced here tonight that the University of Michigan has signed contracts with Cornell university for football games in 1917 and 1918. The next contest will be played here and the 1918 game will be at Ithaca.

Agitation to have Michigan return to the western conference is still active. It was pointed out tonight that the Cornell contracts do not prevent Michigan's return to the "Big Nine." It is generally believed that the Wolverines will continue to have athletic relations with Pennsylvania and Cornell even if they do return to the western fold.

CORNELLS ADD A COPPER TO THEIR GRID SQUAD.

Cornell-Hamburgs added Alman Specht of the mounted police to their ranks of football players yesterday and will have the law with them when they play an indoor game against Roseland Tornadoes next Sunday in Dexter Park pavilion. The men will practice at the Seventh Infantry armory today to accustom themselves to indoor football, and Specht will have a chance to show the paces which made him an old time Chicago all-star. Walter Eckersall of THE TRIBUNE will referee the game, which will start at 2:30 o'clock.

INDIANAPOLIS AUTO RACES MAY BE MOVED TO CINCY.

Indianapolis, Ind., Dec. 16.—That the Indianapolis speedway races will be abandoned next spring and the automobile classic staged at Cincinnati was indicated today. The proposition is now under consideration by Indianapolis speedway officials, Clark G. Fisher, president of the company, admitted. Fisher declared that the main reason for changing the place of the races was that the Indianapolis hotel men charged "hold-up" prices when the races were held here.

Tiger Five Beats Cornell.

Ithaca, N. Y., Dec. 16.—Princeton defeated Cornell in an intercollegiate basketball game here tonight, 22 to 19.

GOLF EXPERT TELLS HOW TO REDUCE COST OF COURSE'S UPKEEP

BY JEROME BARLOW.

[Golf Starter South Parks.]

Much needless waste is now caused on golf links because of the reluctance of expert groundkeepers to freely give up valuable knowledge which they have gleaned from their daily work in relation to problems of course maintenance. The time has come when such bars of secrecy should be withdrawn. When this wide publication of ideas and methods takes place we shall have a development of uniform golf course advancement and the systematization of course standards.

Recently we have heard much concerning golf links laid out on soil not encouraging to fine turf development. These links invariably possess soil which cracks easily during dry weather and holds water after severe rains. The solution of the first problem is easy. It is only the matter of cost in putting in a sprinkling system. When we take up the second proposition we have a problem which calls into play many difficult obstructions.

Clay Soil Has Peculiarities.

Clay soil acts peculiarly under different atmospheric conditions. Dry sunshine will bake and crack it into irregular cakes. Frosty, sharp air will pulverize it. Water will make a seemingly porous mass an absolute sticky, impervious mass which sticks to everything. Thus the first thing in treating such soil is to make provision for eliminating water before planning to spread it on. Tiling would under certain conditions draw off some of the surface water until the pores became clogged. When this happens further drainage goes on with increasing difficulty.

Tiling on clay soil farms should not be confused with tiling on golf links, because in one case the soil is continually being turned over and aired, while on the other the soil, once it is leveled, remains a compact mass unless the heat cracks it. The system of using surface drain ditches, which expose a large surface to the action of the sun's rays and result in the water being drawn by a resistless capillary action to the ditch from surrounding ground, is good. A small ditch will drain twenty-five to fifty feet from it. While ditches are effective for surface draining, they do not always produce a perfect lie for the ball unless they are shallowed out and partially covered with grass.

Water Should Run Off.

One defect of surface draining is the possibity of water running out of a depression with such force that all loosely held soil will be carried away, leaving hard nobs of grass covered clay, which interferes with the lie of the ball or seriously handicaps the sole of the club during its glide on the surface. Right here some players contend that these depressions should be filled with sand. It is far better to permit this water to run out as quickly as possible, because where water lies the ground will become sour and what grass has already grown is killed. Grass will not grow in sour ground or pools of water. The rapidity of the flow will decrease as the soil becomes fresher, for such soil does not remain barren long without some kind of grass taking possession.

The best treatment of clay soil is the prodigious spreading on of lime. The alkaline reaction which takes place causes the clay to be transformed into a better grade of soil, which is porous and sweet. Lime will not injure the grass, for it acts as a fertilizer. This method enables the preservation of grass and prepares the soil for further intensive grass cultivation.

Should Have Lime Kiln.

Lime for use on such a large scale should be made on the premises. The cost of constructing a lime kiln and the making of lime from limestone would be negligible in proportion to the results achieved. In comparison with other methods it seems to be the only plan, especially since the delay does not seriously interfere with play. It could be spread on during early winter when there is very little golf. After the ground is sweetened sections of the soil should be marked off and experiments made with different fertilizers so as to ascertain whether a nitrate, sulphate, or phosphate fertilizer should be used. Fertilizer used in any other way is wasteful as well as inefficient.

Another vital phase in grass cultivation on clay soil is rolling. This is particularly necessary during early spring when the soil freezes and thaws. Each change will loosen the soil and force the roots out of the ground. While its place is taken by other grass, such grass is at most a surface variety which does not bear hard play, which a mashie shot requires. Divots taken by this club are mostly bits of fine soil. When turf flies off in bits, leaving nothing to replace, the player should use extreme care in pressing down the edges so as to facilitate the egress of a ball out of the depression. Under such conditions a ball will roll out with amazing regularity.

Grass Should Be Cut.

The cutting of grass on clay soil requires much care. During the early growth it should not be permitted to grow high, for much of its strength is loss above the surface. When grass is kept closely cut the healthy growth of weeds is prevented. Dandelions and clover will quickly die when the first dry period comes, leaving parched grass which will immediately revive on being sprinkled. Water will cause the weeds' roots to decay.

I have mentioned sprinkling, which in my opinion is one of the most valued adjuncts on a golf links, for not only the very life of the grass depends upon water but many difficult shots as well. If the fairways are watered too much the grass has a tendency to grow on the surface. The roots, having abundant moisture, will not reach down in the soil for it. Too much water on the greens will keep the soil cold, thereby preventing luxuriant growth and ultimately turn the soil sour, which encourages the growth of weeds. A dash of lime will freshen up the greens and prevent fungus growth, particularly on greens having a clay subsoil. Unless the surface black dirt is very thick, water, giving an acid reaction, will seep up and retard healthy growth.

How to Dispose of Weeds.

The question often arises how weeds should be taken from a green. Should they be pulled out, leaving bare spots, or should they be eliminated so as to permit the growth of grass while they are being destroyed? Holes on a green are made larger each time a ball rolls into them because the sole of the club widens them on being stroked out.

The best plan is to cut the grass very short and withhold sprinkling for a time. The grass turns brown and to all appearances is dead. When water is applied green grass results without aiding the growth of weeds. This drying out process should be done early in the season, before the weeds' roots become thick and firmly grounded. Before cutting, the leaves should be raised by means of a steel rake, but in so doing the teeth should not be allowed to grip too deep in the roots of the grass or the sun's rays will do much damage to the grass. In no case should a rake be placed in the hands of a novice.

Suggests Experimental Course.

In a city like Chicago, where so much money is invested in golf links, a testing out golf links should be maintained, where studies of all problems could be made. Experimentation of all ideas and methods could be reasonably and inexpensively done and much of the waste which now results could be reduced. Such an institution would bring into contact experts of wide experience and training. Golf course maintenance has ceased to be something which any one can handle.

Woods and Waters by LARRY ST. JOHN

SHORT FOOT: CHICAGO CITIZEN.

This tale has to do with Short Foot. Short Foot is a friend of ours although he doesn't know it, as we have never met except in a very indirect and impersonal sort of way. In fact, should Fate throw Short Foot and the writer face to face the former would no doubt beat a hasty, not to say precipitous, retreat.

Short Foot is a mink who lives on a stream a few miles from our home and he's a big fellow, too, and very very wise. We doubt not that the little white patch on the chin, the badge of age and wisdom in the mink, is larger than that of other minks, and the coarser hairs on his sleek coat are beginning to gray at the ends, for Short Foot is not as young and spry as he used to be, it being true of minks, as well as of men, that each year finds one older than the year before.

It was three years ago last fall that we first became acquainted with Short Foot. We were hiking along the stream when in the mud, right before our eyes, was the track of a mink. We will not say how far apart the front and hind feet were, but, take our word for it, it was some far apart. One of the hind feet left a peculiar track and examination showed that the toes of one foot had been clipped off—steel trap. Right away we knew we were up against a hard problem, for a mink, especially an old one, that has been nipped by a trap has the cunning of the Old Nick himself and avoids iron and steel and human scent like a healthy man avoids a hospital.

Just the same we set some traps. One, a nice barricade or pen of stones, with a trap at the entrance and a chicken head on a stick at the rear, didn't do the trick, as the next morning the trap was unsprung and the head was gone. The next time we used a fish head and impaled it on a stick driven in the water and right alongside we built a nice landing of flat stones on which we placed a trap, neatly covered with a wet leaf. A fool muskrat blundered into the trap and later Short Foot came along and had a fish dinner at our expense. Ho, ho. We'll show you a trick, Mr. Short Foot.

So we tried a set that nearly always works with trap shy mink and coon, a set of diabolical cunning, one we learned from a noble red man except that he wasn't very noble and his skin was the hue of oversmoked bacon rather than red. Here is how we went about it; We handled the traps only with gloved hands, of course, with plenty of "medicine" on the gloves. All but one trap was covered with chicken blood. Then we built a pen of rocks, leaving an opening in a few inches of water, just large enough for a trap. We put a bright, new trap in this opening. Then on the end of a stick we put a chicken head. A very ordinary set, you say. But wait a minute.

This stick, with the bait, was placed far enough in the rear of the pen so that it could be reached from behind and two traps were set here. Let my noble bacon colored friend explain the philosophy of it: "Mink him come in front and see trap. Mink him say, 'Ha, ha. Trap set by town feller with short pants' (somehow Pete never did have much respect for men who wore knickerbockers), so mink go behind to pull bait off stick and step in trap—dead mink."

Did this work with Short Foot? Not by a long shot. He simply pushed a rock on to the traps, stood on the rock, took the bait, and went on his way. These were only a few of the attempts we made to get Short Foot. We made all kinds of bait sets with blind sets and were rewarded with a number of bank rats, muskrats, tomcats, lady cats, one miscellaneous dog, one squirrel, and a 'possum.

The rats were drowned, but the others were uninjured by the high gripping jump traps and we let 'em go because they were all caught within the city limits and Chicago is none too rich in wildlings anyway and the dog and cats no doubt were somebody's darlings—even if they didn't look it.

After we quit trapping that year for Short Foot we saw his tracks often, and one day we saw the tracks of a smaller mink and later we saw the tracks of both side by side. Short Foot simply went up stream and wooed a little lady mink and brought her home with him and those tracks were made as they wandered in the moonlight and the sly old rascal, we will wager, told her that she was the only girlie mink in the wide, wide world and that she was the only one who ever touched his flint-like heart and, of course, the gentle reader knows, from experience, that he "got away with it."

The following year we devoted less time to Short Foot, but ran onto his tracks now and then and set a few traps, but with no results. That spring his lady's track was smaller than before and as minks do not grow smaller we suspect the old rascal of trifling, but that is his affair and as his next friend we will tell you its none of our business anyway.

This year we are handicapped because we cannot use a steel trap on the old duffer, as even a jump trap may break his old and brittle bones. But we are going to get him and get him alive and unhurt and then—and then we are going to let him go, as is due his venerable age and sagacity.

PURPLE SEEKS MEANS TO STOP GRID SCALPERS

Student Paper Backs Omer in Fight — Coupon Books Cause Trouble.

BY EVAN STONE.

Director Lewis Omer of Northwestern university, working in conjunction with the student council, is trying to evolve a plan to prevent ticket scalping at football games. At several of the games during the recent season scalpers were in evidence. In previous seasons the Purple director had little trouble, because there were always plenty of seats for the crowds, but with the success of Murphy's team good seats became a premium and the speculators got busy.

The Evanston police gave what aid they could in apprehending the scalpers and were able in a few cases to make arrests, but Omer desires to make scalping so dangerous that the speculators will avoid the Purple domains.

Some Sell Coupon Books.

Another phase of scalping which has existed for several years, but became more grievous this season, is the practice of students selling their coupon books to outsiders. Northwestern students purchase coupon books at the beginning of the scholastic year which cover entrance to all the athletic contests at a rate of less than 20 cents the game. A few students have sold their privileges, while others have loaned their books to friends.

In asking the student council to take action on this problem Director Omer said:

"When a student transfers his or her coupon book to an outsider the athletic association loses doubly. We lose $1 or $1.50 on the ticket which that person would have bought, and in addition we lose the 25 cents that we must pay the visiting team on each coupon. At just one game this fall eight books in the hands of outsiders were collected by the gatemen."

Student Paper Lends Aid.

The student council decided that pitiless publicity would deter the coupon book scalping practice and passed the folowing motion:

"In the future all student coupon books found in the hands of others than the owners will be confiscated and the names of the owners will be published in the Daily Northwestern."

FEW HIT GAMES MORE FREQUENT THAN LAST YEAR

Records Prove Pitchers Are Gaining in War with Batsmen.

BY I. E. SANBORN.

Major league pitchers are slowly subduing the batsmen, as the dope of this season shows by comparison with that of 1915. Part of this is due to the increasing tendency of managers to yank a slabman, even if he be a star, at the first sign that the other fellows are beginning to get to him. Still individual performances in holding teams to few hits demonstrate that the hurlers are becoming more effective.

In four games this year a pitcher blanked his antagonists without a safe hit. There was three no-hit games in the American league and one in the National. Last year there were only two no-hit shutouts, both of them in the National.

Two Red Sox Qualify.

George Foster and Dutch Leonard of the Red Sox and Joe Bush of the Athletics were the American league pitchers who added their names to the tablet of no-hit games. Tom Hughes of the Braves was the only National leaguer to attain that lasting fame this year.

More pitchers held their opponents to one or two hits in the major leagues last year than in 1916, but the number of three-hit games that were delivered this season outnumbered those of the previous campaign by considerable.

All together there have been only thirteen no-hit games pitched since 1909 in both major leagues and four of those were registered in the 1916 campaign, leaving only nine for the previous six years. The teams which were blanked without a swat in 1916 were New York, Cleveland, and St. Louis in the American and Pittsburgh in the National.

Victims of Star Hurlers.

The chronological list of hitless hurling feats follows:

June 16—Hughes [Boston] vs. Pittsburgh.
June 21—Foster [Boston]] vs. New York.
Aug. 26—Bush [Philadelphia] vs. Cleveland.
Aug. 30—Leonard [Boston] vs. St. Louis.

Only four American league slabmen held their opponents to one hit in nine innings this year, by comparison with twelve such performances in 1915. Three of this season's feats were credited to St. Louis Brown pitchers—Groom, Davenport, and Plank—the other was achieved by Cicotte of the White Sox.

In the National league there were eight one-hit games this season and nine in 1915. Half the 1916 games in which only a single swat was allowed were pitched by Cubs. McConnell, Lavender, Packard, and Hendrix qualified in this class. At the same time Hendrix qualified as champion hard luck flinger of the decade. He held the Phillies to one base hit in nine innings on Aug. 1, but was beaten, 3 to 2. That one swat came with the bases full. It scored two runs and put the other where it came in on the next out.

Adams Hurls One-Hit Game.

Babe Adams of Pittsburgh, whose wing gave out completely before the season was over, held St. Louis to one hit the first game he pitched this year. Coombs of Brooklyn and Schupp and Benton of New York were the other slabmen to register in this season's list of one-hit games.

AMERICAN LEAGUE.

April 21, Groom [St. Louis] vs. Cleveland.
June 8, Davenport [St. Louis] vs. Philadelphia.
July 28, Cicotte [Chicago] vs. New York.
Aug. 8, Plank [St. Louis] vs. Washington.

NATIONAL LEAGUE.

April 13, Adams [Pittsburgh] vs. St. Louis.
April 23, McConnell [Chicago] vs. Pittsburgh.
June 14, Lavender [Chicago] vs. New York.
July 7, Packard [Chicago] vs. Boston.
Aug. 1, Hendrix [Chicago] vs. Philadelphia.
Aug. 20, Coombs [Brooklyn] vs. Chicago.
Sept. 28, Schupp [New York] vs. Boston.
Sept. 30, Benton [New York] vs. Boston.

Forty Two-Hit Contests.

There were forty games this year in which a team made only two hits in nine innings. Twenty-three of these occurred in the National league and seventeen in the American. In seven of the forty battles the team that made only two hits was victorious.

Tex Russell of the White Sox hurled two games in which he allowed only a pair of hits. St. Louis and Boston were his victims. Cicotte also held St. Louis to two hits. Of the Cub hurlers, Hendrix and Vaughn qualified in the two hit list. Hippo did it twice, but lost one of the games. The Cubs were held to a pair of hits six times. The White Sox met that fate twice.

NATIONAL AIMS TO DROP 25 CENT BLEACHER SEATS.

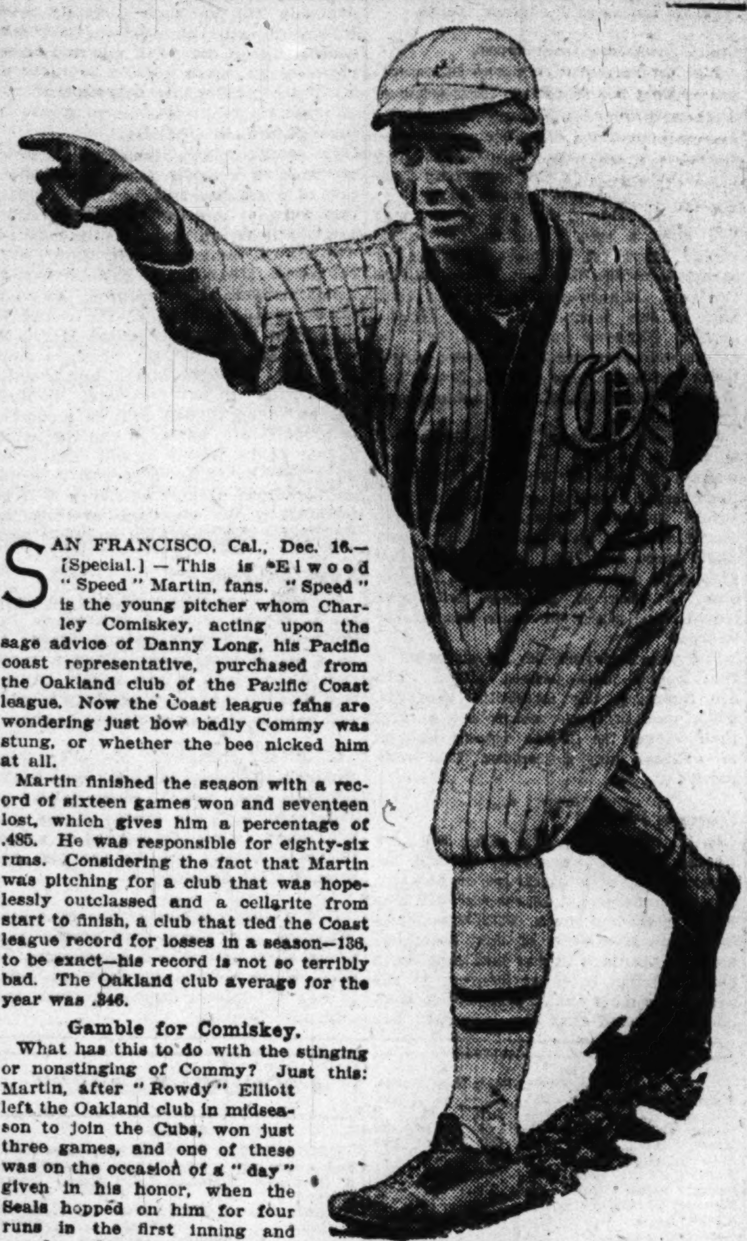
New York, Dec. 16.—Permanent abolition of the bleacher seat—the 25 cent seat—is foreseen in the action of the National league favoring a reduction of these popular seats to a minimum.

The club owners are desirous of doing away entirely with the 25 cent seats, it is explained, but in the cities where they have been a fixture for years the proposed change will have to be made gradually. In the New York and Brooklyn stands the 25 cent seats have already been reduced to a comparatively small number.

In cities like Philadelphia, St. Louis, and Cincinnati, where there are more than 5,000 of the cheaper seats, the price for the majority next season will be raised to 50 cents, it is stated, and several of the club owners assert that in another year the 25 cent seat will be abolished.

President Ebbets of the Brooklyn club is father of the movement to reduce the cheap seats to a minimum, and it is strongly favored by all the club owners. He claimed that if something was not done to increase the revenue and cut down expenses, the business of operating baseball clubs would become a losing proposition.

SOX BOSS PAYS REAL MONEY TO TEST MARTIN'S PITCHING



Elwood "Speed" Martin

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal., Dec. 16.—[Special.]—This is Elwood "Speed" Martin, fans. "Speed" is the young pitcher whom Charley Comiskey, acting upon the sage advice of Danny Long, his Pacific coast representative, purchased from the Oakland club of the Pacific Coast league. Now the Coast league fans are wondering just how badly Commy was stung, or whether the bee nicked him at all.

Martin finished the season with a record of sixteen games won and seventeen lost, which gives him a percentage of .485. He was responsible for eighty-six runs. Considering the fact that Martin was pitching for a club that was hopelessly outclassed and a cellarite from start to finish, a club that tied the Coast league record for losses in a season—136, to be exact—his record is not so terribly bad. The Oakland club average for the year was .346.

Gamble for Comiskey.

What has this to do with the stinging or nonstinging of Commy? Just this: Martin, after "Rowdy" Elliott left the Oakland club in midseason to join the Cubs, won just three games, and one of these was on the occasion of a "day" given in his honor, when the Seals hopped on him for four runs in the first inning and eased up for fear that the kid pitcher would not get a time at the bat for the presentation business. Consequently there is lots of room for an argument as to whether Commy was bunked or not.

Martin started off the year like a whirlwind, winning ten or eleven games straight. He was fresh from the bushes, having served only a part of a season two years previously in the Twilight league.

Martin's retirement from professional baseball was brought about through the disbanding of the league in which he was playing and a subsequent tangle with Dugdale of Seattle, who claimed to have purchased Martin before the league blew. Rather than argue the point, and being determined not to report to Seattle, Martin returned to the semi-pro circles.

Mack Goes After Martin.

Jimmy Byrnes, acting for Connie Mack, attempted last spring to sign the youngster on three occasions, but was shooed off by the Dugdale bugbear, Connie not wanting to do business with Seattle or Dugdale.

"Rowdy" Elliott, now with the Cubs, but at that time manager of the Oakland club, straightened out the tangle and secured Martin's name to a contract.

Martin, who is barely of voting age, has a remarkably cool head and is one of the rare birds who can pitch himself out of a tight place without casting longing eyes at the "bull pen" to see who is coming out to help him.

Martin, when he joined the Oaks, might have been regarded as a finished pitcher. He had everything that two or three years' schooling in a minor league might give him.

Can't Account for Slump.

At the close of the season he was booming along, pitching with the same style, always cool and unruffled, but getting bumped more often than he escaped unscathed. "Speed" may have eased up after the Fourth of July, figuring that pitching top notch ball for a tail-ender was wasted effort. Or, again, he may be only a flash in the pan.

At all events, Charley Comiskey is going to find out. But it will cost him something for the knowledge.

STAR GRIDDERS OF WEST PICKED BY PATTERSON

machine, and the spectators lay back to watch the slaughter.

With the game fairly going, Minnesota tried line and ends and could not gain. Illinois tried the line and was unable to do much better. Then the Illinois men opened up and, benefitting by some lucky turns, smothered the Northmen. Everything went against Minnesota mainly because she had expected a runaway race, and the unexpected stiffness of both line and secondary defense soon put her players completely in the air. Illinois took advantage of every opportunity, rushed the ball when it counted for the most, and eventually scored the needed points to win.

Defeat Still a Mystery.

No one had looked for anything like that, least of all Coach Williams of Minnesota. He could not account for it, and it will probably remain one of the mysteries of the game. Now, as for Minnesota's strength—regardless of that defeat, the Gophers at the end of the season presented one of the most powerful machines ever seen in the west, and, with due respect to the east, it is doubtful if any Atlantic coast team could have made headway against this eleven when at its best. It had wonderful material from end to end, and every man in the back field was a star. The final game with Chicago was a walkover from beginning to end.

Then there was Illinois, conqueror of the Northmen. Never at any time showing signs of greatness except in the lone Minnesota contest, this team finished in the race probably where it belonged. There were a few good men on the team, but that was all.

Poor Season for Maroons.

Before the season opened it looked as if Chicago would make trouble for all except Minnesota, but the finish saw one of the most disastrous seasons which Coach Stagg ever had. Chicago's players were defeated in the first game by the Carleton eleven, a team almost unheard of except in its own immediate vicinity. They defeated Indiana, unusually weak this year; then they were blanked by Northwestern, and Wisconsin ran up a score of 30 to 7 against them. That they came back and wiped Illinois off the football map was another of those upsets which characterized the season.

The University of Wisconsin changed its coaching system before the season opened by engaging Dr. Paul Withington of Harvard. Withington found a wealth of material on hand, but the team could not adapt itself to the Crimson style of play in time to become formidable to the rest and finished in the ruck.

With Northwestern and Ohio it was different. At the former institution Coach Fred Murphy, the former great Yale linesman, a pupil of Walter Camp and other Eli strategists, entered upon his third year after two unsuccessful seasons. Here the Yale method was given full swing, with some individual strategy of Murphy's own, together with the best which had been picked up from purely western methods.

No one seemed to fear this team at the start, but Mr. Murphy tended strictly to business, winning as he went along, until he had the satisfaction of competing for the conference honors with Ohio.

Coach Wilce, at the Buckeye institution, had also been given time to introduce a system of his own, so he came up to the final game without a defeat registered against him, two of his victims having been Illinois and Wisconsin. Other conference teams were weak and cut but little figure in the championship race.

Other Teams Also Beaten.

Outside of the conference, Notre Dame, Michigan, and Nebraska were regarded as head and shoulders over any of the rest. All three were defeated, which fact seems to strengthen the opinion of A. A. Stagg that the days of the so-called "big" teams are over.

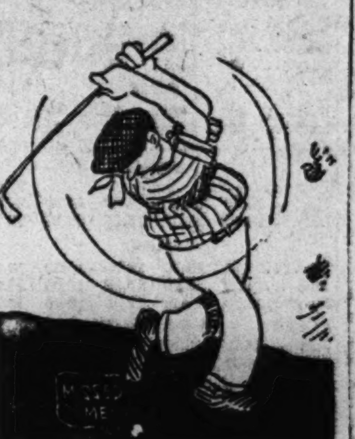
As a whole, the game played this year was more open than usual, and this means a great deal in the west, where the open game was first brought to perfection. Forward passes shot across the sky in practically every game, and a number of formations were perfected which had for their aim gaining ground by a diversified attack outside the line.

Gophers an Exception.

This style of play naturally brought to the front a great number of exceptional stars back of the line, but, as usual, really good forwards were scarce. This seems to be the only weakness in the west, Minnesota being an exception.

The critic finds it harder than formerly—and that is saying a good deal—to separate the back field men or enumerate those whose activities were always in the eyes of the spectators. It would be comparatively easy to pick a dozen back field star men, one as good as the other, but in the selection made for the all-western honor eleven the fine points of each man will have to decide.

SCHAEFER BUNTS ON GOLF COURSE



"GERMANY" SCHAEFER, former major leaguer and later baseball coach and comedian, was inveigled into a game of golf over a Philadelphia course. Occasionally he connected with the pill, but in the main his play was like that of the average beginner. When asked what score he had made Schaefer said: "I don't remember the total, but I got a five on the seventeenth hole, making two triples, a double, and a couple of bunts."

Schaefer also is fairly clever with the cue, and while visiting New York engaged in a game of balkline with John McGraw. At a critical stage in the play "Germany" had some one call John to the desk. He then substituted a painted celluloid ball for the red ivory sphere. When McGraw shot the ball bounced off the table. McGraw joined in the general laugh, remarking: "That ball is like my game—flighty."

PURPLE DENTS TO PUT HOCKEY TEAM IN FIELD

At a meeting of the faculty of the Northwestern Dental school plans for a hockey team to represent the college were heartily approved, although the venture into outside athletics is an innovation. A committee of the faculty, consisting of Drs. A. D. Black, Freeman, Sellery, and Kennedy, was formed to support the players. Layng, who played on a team organized toward the end of last season, was chosen captain, Bartow manager, and White secretary and treasurer. The players are experienced men of northwestern states and Canada, who plan a schedule of games in inclosed rinks this year. Some of the veteran players on the squad are Layng, Wright, Gunnerson, Ballard, Rooks, and Kuslow.

O'LEARY, OLD TIME TIGER, TO MANAGE SAN ANTONIO.

Charley O'Leary, one time shortstop for the Detroit Tigers, signed a contract yesterday to manage the San Antonio team of the Texas league next season. Mr. H. J. Benson, president of the club, was in Chicago in search of a leader and, after passing upon numerous applicants, chose O'Leary for the job. Charley preceded Ownie Bush as shortstop for the Tigers and was with them when they played the Cubs for the world's championship in 1907 and 1908. For the last few years O'Leary has been playing in the minors, part of the time with St. Paul and part with San Francisco. He was born and raised in Chicago and always aspired to be a baseball manager, but this is his first job as a leader.

Reo

The Most Suitable Gift Possible Would be That New Reo the Fifth She Has Wished For So Long

FOR SEVERAL REASONS this will not only be the ideal Christmas gift, but this is the ideal time to buy a Reo.

FOR ONE THING—though you need not let on to her!—you will derive just as much pleasure from it as she will. Not more—that would be impossible.

ANOTHER REASON IS that you have been promising for a long time to sell the "old boat" and get her a new car—one that will be more in keeping with her social position, her needs and her tastes.

AND YOU KNOW that of all the cars that are made, she prefers Reo the Fifth—for she can drive it herself.

MANY OF HER WOMAN FRIENDS drive Reos—and they've told her, of course, of its wonderful simplicity of control ("just like an electric," and of its dependability.

THAT ABSOLUTE FREEDOM from the "pesky little troubles" that vex most motorists, and which are so distasteful—so unthinkable—to a woman driver, makes Reo the Fifth the first choice of the most discriminating buyer.

THE THIRD REASON has to do with the second—that is, the selling of the "old boat," to advantage.

DOUBTLESS YOU'VE LEARNED that you can get more for your old used car yourself than a dealer can—so it's really folly to "trade it in."

THE IDEAL TIME to sell a used car is in January or February—just when the big spring rush is setting in—when all good, desirable makes of cars are so hopelessly over-sold it is impossible to get immediate delivery for "love or money" and when a "trade in" is almost out of the question.

BUYERS ARE HUNGRY then for any old kind of a car—but dealers are hungry only for new ones.

THEN'S THE TIME to advertise your used car.

SELL IT FOR CASH, and realize more for it than you can possibly do by trading.

OH, OF COURSE YOU MIGHT get what looked like a liberal allowance for it in trade for some unknown "assembled" or "orphan" car.

BUT EXPERIENCE HAS PROVEN to you that that's just one way of short changing yourself.

SUCH A CAR is dear at any price—if you could make an even trade still you'd get the worst of it—as you'd find when the upkeep and repair bills came in.

IF THE OLD CAR IS A REO of course you'll get a larger percentage of its original price in a trade—but in any case, you'll get more by selling it direct yourself.

SO THE THING TO DO is to buy her that new Reo now—let us drive it over and leave it in front of the house next Monday morning, so the first thing her eyes will light on as she looks out at the Christmas day will be the thing she has most desired—a brand new, shining, spick-and-span Reo the Fifth.

THEN NEXT MONTH, or a little later—as soon as the spring sun peeks out—sell the old car at the "spring" price.

YOU'LL BE OUT the difference only a few weeks at most—and the difference in price you'll get then will be a handsome interest on the money.

AND MEANTIME you'll have the use of the new car—and an enclosed Reo the Fifth is especially luxurious at this season.

WHAT SAY?—Shall we polish up her Reo and drive it over Christmas morning? We will if you'll drop in today and pick it out.

THERE ARE FOUR TYPES of bodies obtainable on Reo the Fifth chassis. The "Incomparable" five-passenger touring car; the classy, graceful, three-passenger roadster; and the new "All Seasons" touring car and roadster. Prices are $875, $875, $1025 and $1025, respectively, and freight from the factory.

P. S.—OF COURSE, IF TOO MANY doting husbands or fathers or brothers act on this suggestion, we may not be able to deliver all the Reos Christmas morning "in the flesh." In that case a certificate of acceptance of your order will suit her almost as well—and better than anything else. And we'll tell her precisely when she may expect her Reo—freight service alone excepted. For, you know what that is—most uncertain. However, if you are one of the first, we will fill the order promptly.

"THE GOLD STANDARD OF VALUES"

SHARP BULGE IN WHEAT AS PEACE PROSPECTS FADE

Wild Scramble of Shorts to Cover at Opening—Corn and Oats Gain.

Sharply higher prices were seen in the wheat market yesterday due to the character of the news from abroad, which the trade construed as against any early prospects of peace. The opening trade was the wildest seen in many years, with a range of 5½c on May sales and the top price 10½c higher than previous close. A big overnight short interest was disclosed and there was a mad rush to cover when the session opened, with no wheat for sale until prices went to a sharply higher level. Resting spots showed December 9c higher, May 7½@8⅝c higher, and July up 5@5¼c.

Following the early buying furore the market quieted down materially, the trade being scared by the wicked price changes. Toward the end, however, the buying picked up again and trade volume assumed large proportions. Encouraging factors were the reports of big export sales and advices of increased tonnage due at the seaboard next week. Export business late Friday and yesterday was placed at 1,500,000 bu.

Wheat Receipts Moderate.

Wheat receipts at primary market were again light at 705,000 bu, compared with 2,327,000 bu a year ago, and the trade is showing more concern over the decreased country movement, although the foreign political developments overshadow everything else in the way of market influences. Winnipeg received 3,301 cars wheat for the week, compared with 8,242 cars a year ago, while northwest cars totaled 2,955 for the period against 8,302 last year.

Liverpool spot wheat was unchanged and Broomhall reported the market as neglected, with no attempt to do business. Indian shipments of wheat for the week were liberal at 1,720,000 bu, and compare with 1,000,000 bu last week and nothing a year ago. Clearances from our seaboard yesterday were 650,000 bu, against 923,000 bu a year ago. Local receipts for the week were 877,000 bu, while 839,000 bu were shipped. Cash wheat dull, with receipts only 49 cars.

Corn Strong; Up Sharply.

Corn was affected by the bulge in wheat, as well as by the decreased peace prospects, and prices were marked up sharply. Closing figures showed net advances of 2¾@3¼c for the day. There was a scramble among shorts to cover at the opening, and later there was buying of a better class. The country continues to offer corn on a moderate scale, and it was reported that the seaboard was outbidding Chicago for corn in central Illinois. The car situation is still against business. Cash corn was 1@3c higher, with local shipping sales 40,000 bu.

Spot corn at Liverpool was unchanged to ½d lower, but the parcel market there was stronger, with moderate arrivals and liberal consumptive demand. Primary receipts totaled 966,000 bu, against 1,011,000 bu a year ago. Clearances of corn from the seaboard were 20,000 bu. Local receipts for the week were 2,455,000 bu, while 1,639,000 bu were shipped.

Oats Score Advance.

Oats scored advances of [illegible]c, with heavy buying by shorts the feature. The market was influenced by the action of wheat and corn, and trading was choppy. Elevator and seaboard interests sold oats on the bulges. A good seaboard demand is reported, but business is restricted by the car shortage. Seaboard clearances were 280,000 bu. Cash oats were ½@1½c higher, with local shipping sales 100,000 bu. Primary receipts totaled 621,000 bu, against 842,000 bu a year ago. Local receipts for the week were 2,269,000 bu, while 1,695,000 bu were shipped.

Hog product was weak and lower. Those who had bought product on the peace prospects were unloading freely yesterday, and pressure also came from one of the packers credited with owning large lines of lard. Buying of December lard and selling of January against it at 50c premium for the former, by a packer, was a feature. Hog prices at the yards started out firm, but weakened. Western markets received 901,900 hogs for the week, against 946,000 last week and 847,000 a year ago. Liverpool spot lard was 1s 6d higher. Local meat shipments this week totaled 18,024,000 lbs, compared with 18,357,000 lbs a year ago, while lard shipments were 6,215,000 lbs, against 8,433,000 lbs last year.

Strong Market for Rye.

Rye was quiet, but strong. No. 2 closed $1.38 bid and $1.40 asked. Receipts were 3 cars.

Barley ruled firm. Malting was quoted 98c@$1.20 and sold $1.01@1.07; feed and mixing quotable 85@95c, and screenings 40@87c, with the latter selling at 62@65c; skimmings were quoted 65@70c. Receipts, 42 cars.

Timothy seed was quiet. March, $5.75 bid and $6.15 asked; cash lots quoted $3.00@5.50. Clover seed held steady, with cash lots quoted $12.00@17.00.

Flax seed was 2¾c higher, with cash quoted $2.79¼@2.84½ nominal. Duluth closed 2@2¾c; Minneapolis, 2¾c, and Winnipeg 4@4½c higher respectively.

COFFEE.

NEW YORK, Dec. 16.—The less optimistic view of peace probabilities served to unsettle sentiment in the market for coffee futures and evidently stimulated the disposition to close out long contracts after the advance of about 60 points from the low level of Monday. Trading was not particularly active at the start, but after opening 1 to 7 points lower, offerings increased, with Wall street and commission houses heavy sellers. May declined to 8.65c and September to 8.90c, with the market closing at a net loss of 14@15 points. Sales, 81,250 bags. Closing bids: December, 8.28c; January, 8.37c; February, 8.46c; March, 8.54c; April, 8.62c; May, 8.69c; June, 8.75c; July, 8.80c; August, 8.86c; September, 8.91c; October, 8.96c; November, 9.01c. Spot coffee firm; Rio 7s, 9¾c; Santos 4s, 10¾c. Difficulty was reported in securing freight room with rates ranging from $1.50 to $1.60 per bag, and the firm offers received were mostly f. o. b. Brazil, owing to the uncertainties in this respect. Santos 4s were quoted at 9.40@9.45c, London credits, f. o. b. The official cables reported advances of 25@100 reis in the primary markets and an advance of 1-32d in Rio exchange on London. Brazilian port receipts, 56,000 bags; Jundiahy, 45,000 bags.

NEWS AND GOSSIP OF BOARD OF TRADE

The political news from Europe was regarded as less favorable for peace, with the French victory north of Verdun and the refusal of the Russian duma to consider peace terms. Utterances of the British press do not appear to reflect any desire for peace except on a basis favorable to the allies, and for this reason there was active covering by shorts. The opening in wheat was as sensational as it was the previous day, only in the opposite direction, prices for May being about 10c higher, selling at $1.64½, which was the high for the day. With peace uncertain as yet, and even negotiations still an uncertainty, shorts were more anxious than holders, as weak lines have been largely eliminated while there has been a good deal of buying of wheat by a conservative class of traders, who were of the opinion prices had been carried down below the actual worth of wheat in the furor of selling the last week.

A brisk inquiry for cash wheat was reported yesterday in the west, and the seaboard reported 1,500,000 bu taken in all positions. Omaha sold 150,000 bu to the seaboard and exporters were reported bidding 11c over Chicago May at seaboard, or equal to about 3c over May track Chicago. This did not indicate a weak position in the cash wheat. Receipts are small, and the best posted cash men are of the opinion arrivals from now on will be smaller, if anything. In the northwest arrivals are especially light. Minneapolis reported a fair demand for wheat, with car shortage limiting business. Local sales were 20,000 bu.

Eleventh hour bears who were aggressive sellers on Friday were anxious buyers of wheat at the opening yesterday. Prices were up much more than even the bulls expected, and shorts had little opportunity to buy. The general impression among wheat traders who have been able to keep tab on pit operations is that the big interests who sold May wheat between $1.90 and $1.95⅝ have made an immense turn in the market and are again long big lines of wheat, having taken the offerings from liquidating longs the last few days. Eastern interests are believed to have reinstated lines on a big scale.

Cash prices for all cereals rallied with the futures. There was difficulty in obtaining cars, however, and for this reason sales were small, 40,000 bu corn and 80,000 bu oats being reported taken. Country sales are moderate to arrive.

Primary receipts for the day were less than one-third as large as a year ago, at 705,000 bu, against 2,237,000 bu a year ago. Chicago had only 27 cars against 154 cars a year ago, and the two northwest points had 208 cars compared to 1,053 cars on the corresponding day last year.

Missouri December final report, as wired by King of Toledo, makes the corn crop 140,000,000 bu; wheat, 15,000,000 bu; oats, 25,000,000 bu. The government made the wheat crop 17,000,000 bu and corn 131,000,000 bu.

With the selling of a big line of oats through Jackson Bros., the liquidation in oats appeared to be over to a large extent, and this grain rallied sharply with wheat, offerings being absorbed easily.

A private Liverpool cable received by Bartlett-Frazier said wheat was unchanged notwithstanding the unfavorable advices from America, and that corn was higher with a hardening tendency.

Bear features in provisions, according to W. L. Gregson, are the abundance of packing hogs in sight, the accumulating stocks, tendency to curtail consumption at home and abroad, and a quiet domestic trade.

Receipts inspected on Saturday: Wheat, 49 cars; corn, 136 cars; oats, 63 cars; rye, 3 cars; barley, 42 cars. Hogs estimated for Monday, 61,000 head, and for all next week, 280,000 head.

Decatur message to Sincere & Co. said an unusual amount of stock was being marketed and that hundreds of cars of corn would be shipped with cars available.

The government makes the Kansas wheat crop 98,022,000 bu, against 106,338,000 bu last year, and the August, 1916, estimate of 89,2[illegible]0,000 bu.

A private Argentine cable estimates surplus of wheat for export at 37,000,000 bu. Harvesting is making rapid progress.

Packers were credited with buying December lard and selling January lard at 50c premium for the December.

Minneapolis wheat stocks increased 90,000 bu for one day.

Indian shipments for the week were 1,720,000 bu wheat.

Hog market at Chicago yesterday started strong to 5c higher than on Friday on estimated receipts of 19,000 head, but closed weak, with the advance wiped out. Top sales were made at $10.25 and the bulk at $9.65@10.10. The quality of the offerings was mostly ordinary and there were not many sales made at better prices than registered the previous day. Pigs were steady to slightly higher.

Final prices made the general run of hogs 10@15c higher than a week ago. The range of values was narrower than for some time, with some of the light grades of hogs showing a net gain of 25c for the week. The average price of all hogs here this week was $9.85, against $9.75 last week, and the highest weekly average made since last October. Pigs showed a gain of 25c for the week.

Hog purchases for the day: Armour & Co., 3,700; Swift & Co., 2,500; Wilson & Co., 1,200; Morris & Co., 2,500; Hammond, 1,000; Western Packing Co., 2,800; Anglo-American, 600; Boyd-Lunham, 800; Roberts & Oake, 700; Brennan Packing Co., 1,200; Miller & Hart, 300; butchers, 2,000; shippers, 8,000; total, 27,200; left over, 4,000.

CATTLE.

Intermediate grades of steers at Chicago this week finished at a decline of 35@50c from last week's close, while prime heavy and handyweight steers closed unchanged, and the cheap lightweight lots were steady. Cows and heifers finished the week at a loss of 15@35c, while calves suffered a break of $1.00@1.25. Receipts this week showed a moderate increase, while the demand was shortened, with buyers limiting purchases in anticipation of the diversion of the consumptive demand to poultry the coming week.

Cattle at seven western markets for the week, 240,900, against 190,600 the preceding week, 189,900 a year ago, and 210,700 two years ago. Total for 1916 to date, 8,964,000, against 7,733,000 the same period in 1915.

SHEEP.

New records were made in nearly all branches of the sheep and lamb market at Chicago this week, and final quotations were at net gains of 25@50c from last week's finish. Receipts for the week showed a decrease, and efforts on the part of buyers to check the upward movement of values proved unavailing. Lambs topped the week at $13.35, or 35c higher than the previous high record mark. Sheep sold up to $10.00, topping the market at 50c higher than last week and $3.00 higher than a year ago.

Total sales of stocks, 850,000 shares.

Total sales of bonds (par value), $1,975,000.

ADDITIONAL RECOVERIES.

New York, Dec. 16.—Additional recoveries today of 2 to 5 points in stocks recently under pressure, with a rally of 25 points in Bethlehem Steel, were due mainly to a hasty covering movement by the shorts and no little buying, particularly of rails, by investors and operators who seemed to feel that the hysteria of the last few days had run its course.

A more potent factor in the rise of special stocks was the belief that peace negotiations between the warring nations of Europe are yet some time off. This assumption had its basis to a great extent on the action of the Russian duma and the statements of local observers in touch with affairs abroad.

Today's further rallies included United States and Lackawanna steels, the former making an extreme gain of 2¾ points on its usual large overturn; 3 to almost 5 points in shippings, as much and more for leading equipments, such as American and Baldwin locomotives and New York Air Brake; 2 to 3 points in coppers and other metals, and 3 to 5 points in Central Leather, Industrial Alcohol, and International Paper.

Steady Trade in Rails.

Far more convincing, however, was the sustained movement in rails, low grade issues of the roads traversing southern and southwestern states being the foremost features. Southern railway common and preferred, Seaboard Air Line issues, Missouri, Kansas and Texas issues, Missouri Pacific, Kansas City Southern, and Texas and Pacific were 2 to 3½ points higher on steady accumulation.

Standard shares were relatively less active but strong Reading and other coalers, Atchison, New York Central, Union Pacific, Illinois Central, Atlantic Coast Line, and New Haven making extreme gains of 1 to 2 points.

The markets for foreign exchange were nominal, but mainly lower, reflecting latest peace discussions.

Bonds were irregular on limited dealings. United States bonds were unchanged on call during the week.

SUGAR.

CHICAGO, Dec. 16.—SUGAR—Following prices were quoted by the wholesale dealers per 100 lbs: Cut loaf, H. & E., $8.83; powdered, standard, $7.68; standard cane granulated, $7.43; beet granulated, $6.93; extra C, $7.33; canary, $6.93.

NEW YORK, Dec. 16.—SUGAR—The local market for raw sugar was dull, with refiners indifferent to offerings, which were at prevailing levels. In fact, it was said that holders were soliciting bids, but refiners were inclined to hold off and await developments. Closing prices were nominal at 4½c for Cubas, cost and freight, equal to 5.27c for centrifugal and 4.40c for molasses. The market for refined sugar was dull and unchanged at 7.15c for fine granulated, although some refiners were accepting orders under this quotation. Futures were comparatively quiet, with operators inclined to even up pending fresh developments in the spot market. Near months were a little easier under scattered liquidation, while late months were steady on covering, with final prices 4 points lower to 1 point higher. Sales, 3,950 tons. January sold from 4.09c to 4.04c, closing 4.05c; March 3.84c, closing 3.82c; May 3.89@3.86c, closing 3.86c; July closed 3.93.

DRY GOODS.

NEW YORK, Dec. 16.—Cotton goods were quiet and were barely steady in gray goods lines. Yarns were steady. Burlaps tended higher. Linens were very firm. Knit goods were firm. Demand was steady.

Small Investors Imprudent.

War profits and high prices in general are causing people to lose their sense of financial proportion. Many who should be small investors have become avowed speculators and some who think they are investing really are hazarding their money in speculative undertakings.

It is self-evident that the person who has only a small amount of capital should invest it in most conservative securities where the risk of loss will be the least. If he wishes to hazard a small part of his income in some hopeful looking business venture he will be acting with reasonable prudence and will learn gradually how large a proportion of new undertakings never achieve any great success.

Just now, however, this sane method is considered out of date by a vast number of people. They are investing their small capital or pledging their future earnings in various promotion stocks. These new undertakings very likely have reputable backing and fair prospects, but even so they are hazardous. A year of business depression would wipe many of them out of existence.

The worst feature of the situation is that people who cannot afford risks are financing the uncertain ventures, while men of large means are putting their money in bonds strong enough to weather any depression that may come.

Western Pacific.

R. L., Arcadia, Wis.—The Western Pacific Railroad company is the reorganization of a bankrupt corporation of similar name. It starts with $27,500,000 of preferred stock, $47,500,000 common, and $20,000,000 of first mortgage bonds. Earnings in the last year have been sufficient to cover interest on the new bonds more than twice, but it must be remembered that the last year has been one of great prosperity for railroads. In three of the four years preceding June 30, 1915, net earnings were insufficient to pay interest on the present bond issue. During that period of course the road was hampered by lack of money to keep it in good condition, while it has no such difficulty now. However, until the new company has shown what it can do in a period of depression, its bonds cannot be rated as a strictly conservative investment.

Iowa Southern Utilities.

A. H.—The Iowa Southern Utilities company is a newly formed consolidation of the Centerville Light and Traction company and the Centerville, Albia and Southern railway. It has issued $500,000 of common stock, $300,000 of preferred, $530,000 of first mortgage bonds and $200,000 debentures. An audit shows gross earnings of the combined properties in the year ended March 31 last $212,630, net $72,007, which is more than twice the bond interest and one and three-fifths times the total interest charge. The funded debt is moderate in proportion to earnings and the bonds appear to be well secured. The operating ratio is rather high and it is not unlikely that greater efficiency will be reached by the consolidation than the constituent units have shown in the past.

Brief Answers.

L. B. M.—The first mortgage bonds of the L. Starks company secured on 18,500 acres of Wisconsin land appear to be a sound investment. Only a small part of the land is now under cultivation, but the margin of security is wide and more land is to be cleared at once.

Control in a Going, Profitable Business

FOR SALE - $5000

Earns 40% to 60% for Purchaser

Having been elected an officer of a very large corporation, to which I must devote my whole time, I am willing to sell controlling interest in my old-established business. Our article is patented, is sold in every country of the world, and is the recognized leader in its line. This is a going, profitable business, the capitalization of the company being $12,000. Naturally I am making a sacrifice in selling control at this figure. Business will earn for purchaser of control 40% to 60% a year on investment. Owing to interest I will retain after selling control will expect prospective purchaser to prove qualifications. Business and myself will bear closest investigation.

NEW YORK BANKS INCREASE LOANS; STOCKS IGNORED

Severe Liquidation in Market Apparently Has Small Effect on Operations.

The New York bank statement, instead of showing a reduction in loans warranted by the liquidation in the stock market, showed on the contrary an increase of over $11,900,000 in that item. It is thought the figures in the statement cover the business of the week up to Thursday night. If so, then three days of severe liquidation are not reflected in the loan account.

At the same time there was an increase of nearly $46,000,000 in demand deposits. It is probable operations outside those conected with the stock market influenced the exhibit.

There was an increase of $28,702,000 in cash. The reserve against the increase in deposits amounted to $8,000,-000, leaving a net gain in the surplus of $20,656,480 and bringing that item up to $94,447,820.

Statement Regarded Favorable.

The increase in the reserve, together with the gain in deposits, appears to make the statement favorable in view of the known fact that there must have been an enormous contraction in stock market loans.

The figures:

Chicago Securities.

Local stocks continue to improve, some showing large gains. Sears-Roebuck common, which on Friday closed at 221, closed yesterday at 230. Swift & Co. shares were up 3½ points. In both Sears and Swift there was a fairly large volume of buying. Union Carbide was firm. Diamond Match jumped 5½ points. Prestolite recovered 8 points. Chicago City and Connecting preferred was up ½ from the previous day's close. The buying was in fair volume.

Sinclair Oil Earnings.

The Sinclair Oil and Refining corporation has issued an income account and balance sheet covering the six months of the company's operation from May 1 to Oct. 31, 1916. The income account gives the following exhibit:

Gross income of all properties before providing for depreciation, interest on bonds, and interest on notes and accounts payable	$5,103,958
Interest on ten year 6 per cent convertible bonds	478,407
Interest on notes and accounts.	18,586
Dividends paid	1,429,497
Surplus	3,177,487

The account shows 7.38 per cent earned on the outstanding 623,598 shares for the six months' period.

Local Curb Prices Lower.

The local unlisted securities market was generally lower, especially in the oil and public utility issues, in sympathy with the New York market.

Avery common was unchanged at 92 bid, offered at 94, the preferred sold at 98. Deere & Co. preferred was slightly lower at 98 bid, offered at 99. Emerson-Brantingham securities were quiet, preferred at 39@40 and the common at 8. Moline Plow preferred sold at 96. Little interest was displayed in Butler Bros.; stock was offered at 290, no buyers.

Northwestern Yeast was in demand at ex-dividend. Bucyrus common and preferred advanced slightly, the common quoted 11@12, preferred 58@60.

Consumers Company Issues Steady.

The Consumer securities held well, the common around 26½ and the preferred around 82.

Swift & Co. common and preferred showed a slight decline, the former offered at 56½, with buyers at 56, the latter at 100½@101½. United States Gypsum common was offered at 40; the preferred was unchanged at 98 bid, offered at 102.

Money and Exchange.

Money rates in Chicago steady at 4½ per cent on collateral, 4 per cent on commercial paper, and 4½@5 per cent over the counter. New York exchange sold at 10c discount and par. Chicago bank clearings, $75,653,446.

Mail Order Houses Prosper.

It is expected that Sears, Roebuck & Co. will end the year with gross sales of $145,000,000, a new high record and comparing with $106,382,000 last year. Net earnings are estimated at $15,000,000, which would show an increase of 38 per cent over 1915, and after paying 7 per cent on the preferred would leave 24 per cent available for the $60,000,000 common.

Estimates for Montgomery Ward & Co. are made only in general figures, but mention a similar growth for that house, with much of the added revenue due to a great increase in its business in Latin-America and the orient. Sears, Roebuck & Co. do no export business.

Railroad Earnings.

Twenty-one railroads have reported for the last week in November gross of $11,354,472, an increase of 11.48 per cent, as compared with an increase of 26.63 per cent in 1915 and a decrease of 13.37 per cent in 1914.

NET BANK DEPOSITS GAIN.

Reserves Also Increase by $10,000,000 in Week, Board's Statement Shows.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 16.—Gains of nearly $25,000,000 in net bank deposits and of more than $10,000,000 in reserves by federal reserve banks during the last week are indicated by the board's weekly statement made public today. Gold reserve against net deposit and note liabilities was 68.3 per cent. Cash reserve against net deposit and note liabilities was 69.6 per cent. Cash reserve against net deposit liabilities after setting aside 40 per cent gold reserve against aggregate net liabilities on federal reserve notes in circulation was 70.2 per cent.

METALS.

NEW YORK, Dec. 16.—The more favorable view of peace prospects has served to unsettle the copper market during the last week. Demand has fallen off, and while leading agencies were still asking 32½c to 33c for second and third quarter deliveries today, the quotations were nominal in the absence of business. Offerings from second hands have been reported at concessions, with some copper said to be available for the first quarter today at 28½c. Iron was unchanged.

NEWS OF THE FINANCIAL WORLD

A New York banker who has just returned from the west is credited with saying that in all his experience he has never seen so much speculation. It is not confined to stocks, but is in commodities and many propositions. It is noteworthy that there has been western buying of securities as well as selling on the current break, indicating that the resources of the west are unprecedentedly large.

One piece of gossip from New York yesterday was that there appeared to be a feeling in some prominent stock exchange circles that because of sundry developments there will be a further clearing out of weakened accounts, assisted by the professional element, which has information of the same, and which is reported to be planning another raid on prices.

Secretary Loeb of Sears, Roebuck & Co. says the rumor current yesterday that the company would retire its preferred stock and issue a bonus on the common was entirely without foundation. Such a proposition, he says, has never been considered.

New York commission houses, according to a canvass, are generally recommending that the industrial stocks be let alone until the market settles down. There is a distinct tendency to recommend the purchase of low priced railroad shares.

Copper experts of many years' experience are privately quoted as agreeing that while the European war lasts there is absolutely no doubt that the demand for the metal will be far greater than the productive capacity of the mines of the world.

The report of earnings of the Atlantic Steel company for November shows $125,811. For the eleven months ended Nov. 30 the earnings were $892,336. The surplus for November was $114,811 and for the eleven months $650,596.

BOSTON CURB QUOTATIONS

IN FOREIGN STOCK MARKETS.

LONDON, Dec. 16, 1:21 p. m.—Money was in fair demand today. Discounts were quiet. The stock market was more cheerful than for some time past on the war news. Most sections recorded gains. Consols were 1 per cent higher and the war loans showed a hardening tendency. Some rails were a feature, running more than a point higher, and other prices for the most part moved upward in sympathy. Shipping shares, city service securities, and American Marconi stocks made the best showing in the industrial section. Dealings, however, were only moderate. American securities were in good demand at the low prices. United States Steel stocks were the firmest.

Bar silver, 36 13-16d per ounce. Money, 4⅝ per cent. Discount rates: Short bills, 5⅛@5⅝ per cent; three months, 5¼@5⅝ per cent.

PARIS, Dec. 16.—Prices were firm on the bourse today. Rentes, 3 francs 35 centimes ex coupon. Exchange on London, 27 francs 81½ centimes. Five per cent loan, 88 francs 15 centimes.

COTTON.

NEW YORK, Dec. 16.—Apprehensions that peace negotiations might fail seemed chiefly responsible for active liquidation and a renewal of scattered selling in the cotton market this morning. The decline uncovered stop orders during the late trading, with March contracts selling off to 18.19c, or 35 points net lower, and the close was unsettled at a net loss of 31@40 points. Reports from the dry goods trade indicated a quiet business as usual at this time of the year and about the only feature emphasized around the ring was the less cheerful view of the peace outlook. An estimate placing domestic consumption for the season at only 6,860,000 bales, including foreign cotton, was published by a local trade paper, but seemed to attract no special attention. Port receipts today were 19,190 bales; for the season, 4,568,957; exports today, 12,807; for the season, 2,804,-158; port stock, 1,554,789.

NEW ORLEANS, La., Dec. 16.—COTTON—An extremely nervous and unsettled tone was in evidence in cotton today. Price changes were rapid but only within moderate limits. Toward the end of the day the market had a steady tone, but just when bullish traders figured that closing prices would be well up toward the highest there was a quick break to new low levels and the close was barely steady, practically at the lowest of the day, at a net loss of 16@24 points. BOND FIRM
Capital Wanted or Partnership Basis

Gentleman, now manager of well-known investment bond house having offices in Eastern and Middle Western cities, desires to become associated with responsible party having capital in forming firm to handle a high grade line of securities.

The advertiser, a competent organizer and executive, is familiar with all branches of the investment business, understands both buying and selling, has a personal knowledge of most of the principal markets. Has handled practically all kinds of investment bonds and stocks, and during the past ten years has been connected with some of the largest and most reputable firms in the country.

Owing to special reasons the opportunity for making large profits in present connection is limited and I desire to either organize a new firm or become associated with an established one on a profit sharing basis, making headquarters in Chicago, New York or Detroit.

Credentials and responsibility must be mutually satisfactory.

SHARPLEY CASE HEARINGS CLOSE; NO ASSETS FOUND

Attorney Richard Gavin Says Woman's Story Is Not Proven Untrue.

Investigation of the affairs of Miss Annie E. Sharpley, chicken farmer, dramatist, and champion borrower, was continued indefinitely yesterday before Referee in Bankruptcy Eastman.

Richard I. Gavin, attorney for Miss Sharpley, says the hearing ended the investigation.

"Eight lawyers represented the creditors at the beginning," said Mr. Gavin. "As the investigation got nowhere and no assets were discovered, the lawyers dropped out, one by one, until Attorney Albert G. Rosenbaum was left alone. There will be no further hearings.

"Doubt has been cast on Miss Sharpley's story that she gave the $81,000 which she borrowed to a blackmailer, but it has not been proved untrue. If Miss Sharpley or any one associated with her has hidden any of the money, nothing has been brought out to indicate it."

The Great Laundry Mystery.

Miss Anna M. Hayes, a former employé of Henry Cohen, the North Clark street pawn broker, was the last witness. Attorney Rosenbaum led her to the edges of mystery when he fired this question at her like a bolt from the blue: "Who does your laundry?"

"Why, the people with whom I live," replied Miss Hayes.

"Did you ever see a laundry wagon drive up to your door?" pursued the cryptic Mr. Rosenbaum.

"No."

"Do you know a laundryman?"

"I believe one lives in the house."

"What is his name?"

"James Nichols."

Mr. Rosenbaum explained afterward that a mystery woman had come to his office and told that the laundryman, Miss Hayes, Miss Sharpley, and Mr. Cohen had held several midnight conferences at the North Dearborn street boarding house.

"Never Heard of Nichols."

"I never was at Miss Hayes' house but once in my life," said Miss Sharpley. "I woke her up one morning and we went out together. I don't think Cohen ever was at her house. I never heard of Nichols."

Miss Hayes said she had loaned money to Miss Sharpley for ten years. Miss Sharpley now owes her $2,900. Miss Hayes said she had given Miss Sharpley $1,100 at one time. She said she had destroyed all notes.

"Where did you get the money to loan?" asked Mr. Rosenbaum.

"I always had about $1,500 and even as much as $2,500," replied Miss Hayes.

"How much did Cohen pay you?"

"Eighteen dollars a week."

"What were your living expenses?"

"About $8."

Changes in Cafeteria.

William H. Williams, 2743 Hampden court, father of Mrs. Florilla Copeland, who was Miss Sharpley's partner in the C. & S. cafeteria, told of their financial dealings with the poulterer. They said in payment of sums borrowed Miss Sharpley transferred her holdings in the café to Mr. Williams, who in a business deal transferred it to his daughter.

A number of documents were introduced in connection with the cafeteria. They included Miss Sharpley's resignation as president, a number of checks and notes and an agreement concerning the stock. Most of them were antedated.

WHERE TO SKATE

Here's Where You'll Find the Ice Good and the Going Fine.

THE skating season is on. In the following parks and playgrounds there will be skating today or at latest tomorrow if the cold weather continues, and doubtful places are marked with an asterisk:

North.

LAKE SHORE PLAYGROUND, Chicago avenue, near the lake.

STANTON PARK, Vedder, Vine, and Rees streets.

HAMLIN PARK, Wellington avenue and Robey street.

*LINCOLN PARK, south pond.

West.

ALTGELD PARK, Harrison and Rockwell streets.

HARRISON PARK, Eighteenth and Wood streets.

FRANKLIN PARK, Fourteenth street and Tripp avenue.

DVORAK PARK, Twentieth and May streets.

ECKHART PARK, Chicago avenue and Noble street.

STANFORD PARK, Fourteenth place and Jefferson street.

*HUMBOLDT PARK, North and California avenues.

*DOUGLAS PARK, Twelfth street and California avenue.

*GARFIELD PARK, Lake street and Central Park avenue.

South.

MIDWAY PLAISANCE.

WASHINGTON PARK duck pond, Fifty-fifth street and Cottage Grove avenue.

HAMILTON PARK, Seventy-second street, near the Rock Island railroad.

CALUMET PARK, Ninety-fifth street and Lake Michigan.

MARQUETTE PARK, Sixty-seventh street and California avenue.

PALMER PARK, One Hundred and Eleventh street and South Park avenue.

GRAND CROSSING PARK, Seventy-sixth street and Ingleside avenue.

RUSSELL SQUARE, Eighty-third street and Bond avenue.

BESSEMER PARK, Eighty-ninth street and Muskegon avenue.

CORNELL SQUARE, Fiftieth and Lincoln streets.

DAVIS SQUARE, Forty-fourth street and Marshfield avenue.

ARMOUR SQUARE, Thirty-third street and Fifth avenue.

MARK WHITE SQUARE, Twenty-ninth and Halsted streets.

HARDIN SQUARE, Twenty-fifth street and Wentworth avenue.

FULLER PARK, Forty-fifth street and Princeton avenue.

GRANT PARK, near Van Buren street viaduct.

*McKINLEY PARK, Thirty-seventh street and Archer avenue.

*SHERMAN PARK, Garfield boulevard and Racine avenue.

*OGDEN PARK, Sixty-fourth street and Racine avenue.

*JACKSON PARK.

On account of the greater depth of water on the larger lagoons the authorities are keeping would-be skaters off the ice until its safety is assured. The city parks commission has made no move as yet to flood the playgrounds under its jurisdiction.

PUBLISHERS AND PAPER MEN STRIKE SNAG IN CONFERENCE

Makers of News Print Want to Redistribute Supply — Newspaper Owners Ask Increased Production

Washington, D. C., Dec. 15.—A conflict of interest between large and small newspaper publishers developed at conferences today between the federal trade commission, the publishers, and news print paper manufacturers and jobbers, held to consider a proposal that the problem of an apparent news print shortage be solved by distribution of the available supply under supervision of the commission and to work out some arrangement if possible concerning prices and increased production.

A plan proposed and apparently favored by the trade commission, the manufacturers, and the small publishers, under which large publishers would relinquish 5 per cent of their 1917 quota to the smaller publishers, met with immediate opposition.

The large publishers declared they were being made the victims of manufacturers, who by diverting machines now on wall paper and wrapping paper back to making news print could solve the shortage problem within a few days. Both large and small publishers insisted the plan called for no concessions by the manufacturers. Committees of the publishers, manufacturers, and jobbers were named to continue conferences.

LANDIS LEADS TRIPLE WAR ON LOAN SHARKS

Clyne and Stuart to Join Drive on Usurers for Misuse of the Mails.

A curb on the activities of Chicago loan sharks is being planned jointly by Federal Judge K. M. Landis, District Attorney Charles F. Clyne, and Chief Postal Inspector Gen. James E. Stuart. The fight is scheduled to begin tomorrow, and it is probable that before the week is ended several hundred usurious money lenders will find themselves facing grand jury indictments for misuse of the mails.

Chief among those against whom the fight will be directed are the big loan shark syndicates that have headquarters in Chicago, with branches in all the big cities of the country. Principal among these are Frank Jay Mackey, so-called "social lion" and entertainer of royalty, and Daniel H. Tollman, a white haired 60 year old man who has made millions out of a string of loan shark shops.

With those who are known to be using the United States mail to spread their advertisements are nearly 200 others who will have an opportunity to prove the truth of the statements they make in their circulars.

Various Crimes Charged.

Besides misuse of the mails, some of the sharks are accused of all manner of other crimes, from blackmail to conspiracies to commit murder. Instances of where a number of sharks have been so indiscreet as to threaten in letters victims who have moved to other cities are cited by postoffice inspectors. In one letter a man in California was warned that "if he didn't voluntarily come back he would be brought back if it had to be in a pine box."

Numerous letters containing different forms of blackmail have also fallen into the possession of the postal inspectors. In some of these the victim is warned that unless he makes provision to pay the "accumulated interest" dire things will happen. Some women victims who evidently borrowed without knowledge of their husbands, are threatened with an exposé of their dealings to their husbands unless the demands of the sharks are met.

Clear Law Violation.

All of these letters and other information gathered in the last six months will be laid before the grand jury. Besides the threats and various forms of blackmail contained in the letters, it is a violation of the law for the sharks to use the mails at all.

Another provision of the postal law which is said to have been violated is the possession of private boxes in the postoffice by loan sharks. Many of the sharks in Chicago get around the postal regulations which prohibits the use of the mails to fakers and criminals by having postoffice boxes in the names of clerks or managers.

The letters mailed out by the usurious money lenders usually are misstatements of fact and are regarded as attempts to obtain money by false pretenses, according to postoffice inspectors. In recent hearings in the court of Federal Judge Landis it was brought out that most of the victims of the loan sharks are obtained through advertising in newspapers which accept them, and by use of the mails.

Face December Curb.

That the activities, which are said to increase in volume more than 500 per cent during the month of December, will be curbed by concerted action on the part of the three branches of the department of justice, is the opinion of the authorities.

That Chicago is the center of the loan shark business of the world was a statement made yesterday by one authority, who based his opinion on estimates.

In Chicago alone the loan sharks have in their toils more than 280,000 victims annually. Homes are wrecked and men and women are driven to suicide by the hounding of the sharks, whose methods of arithmetic make 10 per cent interest grow to ten times the amount of the principal in a few months. Only a fraction of the per cent of persons who are driven to ruin by the loan sharks ever come to light.

Victims Fear Exposure.

Most victims prefer to remain in the clutches of the sharks than to expose their plight to their employers, families, or friends. They continue to pay out usurious interest exacted by the money lenders until they are driven to desperation. Then, should they be so fortunate as to fall into the hands of some one capable of advising them when their plight is made known, the sharks are crafty enough to cease their hounding.

But in the court of Judge Landis this year the sharks have had a hard row to hoe. In the past they were mostly unhindered in the Municipal courts in their actions to collect the salaries of their victims. It is promised by the federal authorities that the sharks will find it still harder to continue their business along the old lines.

Landis Has 'Em Scared.

Representatives of almost every shark shop in Chicago have been haled at one time or another before Judge Landis to explain their connections with the bankruptcy of some victim. At first the money lenders attempted to defy the judge, but this attitude soon changed. Now when the sharks come into the judge's court it is with fear and trembling.

HOYNE EYES GILMORE CASE.

State's Attorney to Confer with Judge Foell on Divorce Prosecution.

State's Attorney Hoyne will confer on Monday with Judge Foell regarding the decree of divorce granted by the jurist to Mrs. Genevieve Gilmore from James A. Gilmore, former president of the Federal league.

"I want to learn more about the case," said Mr. Hoyne. "There appears to be something unusual.

"If I find there was something wrong, naturally I will take proper action."

MARY HICKEY'S MENAGERIE ANNOYS CHIEF OF POLICE.

Donkey and Goldfish Behave, but Goats Like Grazing on Ogden Armour Estate.

On Dec. 9, 1916, Judge Persons of Waukegan sentenced Mary Hickey, the eccentric domestic of Lake Forest, to the asylum at Elgin. But before she was taken away she charged his honor and State's Attorney James G. Welch to care for her live stock while she was away.

His honor then instructed Walter McGuire, chief of Lake Forest police, to see that her wishes were carried out. The police force rounded up one donkey, two goats, and 100 gold fish.

The donkey was satisfied to graze upon the grass around the village, but the goats were more particular and were found on the lawns of J. Ogden Armour. The chief says that unless some one takes the live stock off his hands he is going to have a public auction.

ELKS SUE NEGRO LODGE.

Order Seeks to Restrain Alleged Imitators Who Use All Emblems.

Chicago lodge, No. 4, of the Benevolent and Protective Order of Elks, a corporation, yesterday filed suit asking that Great Lakes lodge, No. 43, Improved Benevolent Order of Elks of the World, a corporation, composed of Negroes, be enjoined from conducting its affairs or using the name of Elks. The bill asserts there is no connection between the two orders, but that the defendant is imitating the original order, even to the use of its badges and emblems, including the elk's head and antlers and the elk's tooth.

Luxurious Comfort—Marvelous Performance

The New Eight-Cylinder Cadillac

You do not know the Cadillac of today unless you have ridden miles in it. You cannot understand all the new Cadillac offers you till you have seen the body types just recently developed.

It may seem to you that luxury had reached its limit in some fine cars you know. But a new conception of present day perfection now awaits you in Cadillac's added comforts.

You may have thought that appealing performance had reached its peak in some remarkable rides you've had. But save the word "marvelous" till you ride and drive the master car—the Cadillac.

The Cadillac of today is the one car which harmonizes smart style with real comfort—which combines perfect restfulness with zestfulness in action—which satisfies your sporting blood and delights your wife with its tasteful elegance.

If you like to ride in exclusive style and comfort, our Limousine, Imperial, Town Car and Landaulet, with 132 inch wheel base and extra-roomy bodies, provide the four accepted types at prices from $3,800 to $4,000. No such cars in all the world are quite their equal—none quite so varied in opportunity for personal taste in finish.

Year 'round comfort for the owner driver—whatever size his family—is found in the Victoria, the Town and Country, the Coupe and Brougham, at $2,750 to $3,150.

And in open cars you'll find four perfect types at $2,265.

Regardless of the type you choose, you get a car that's sure to satisfy. Cadillac comfort has no equal today. Cadillac performance has no serious rival. And Cadillac dependability is beyond compare.

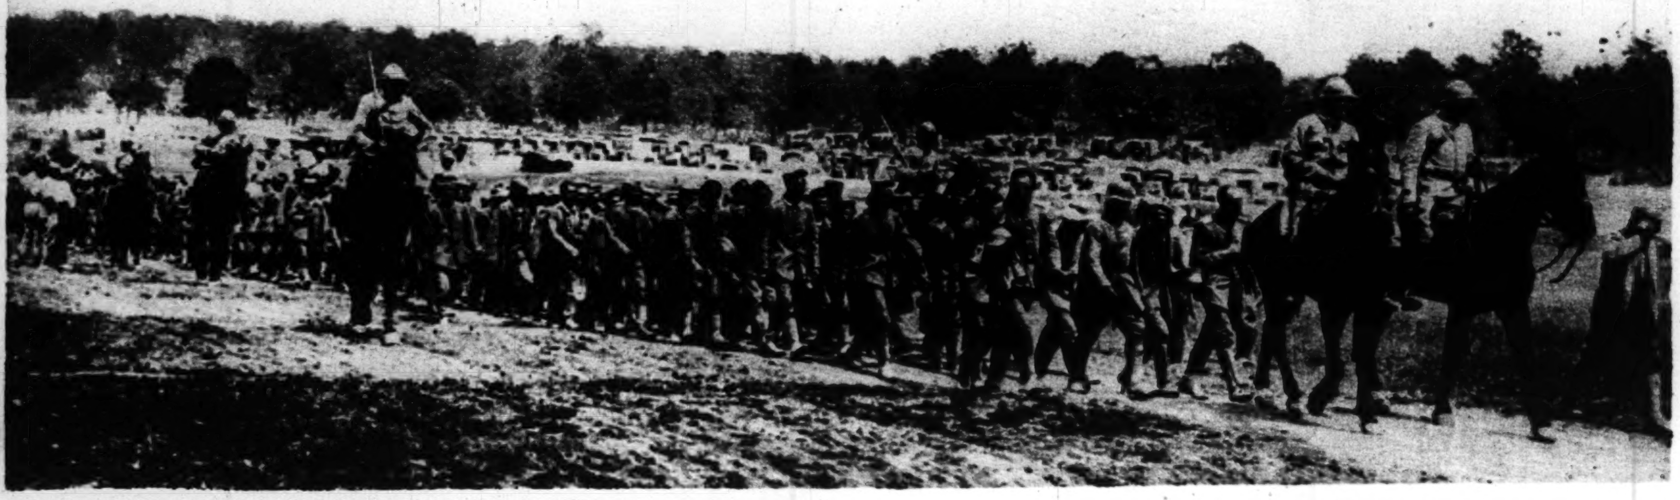
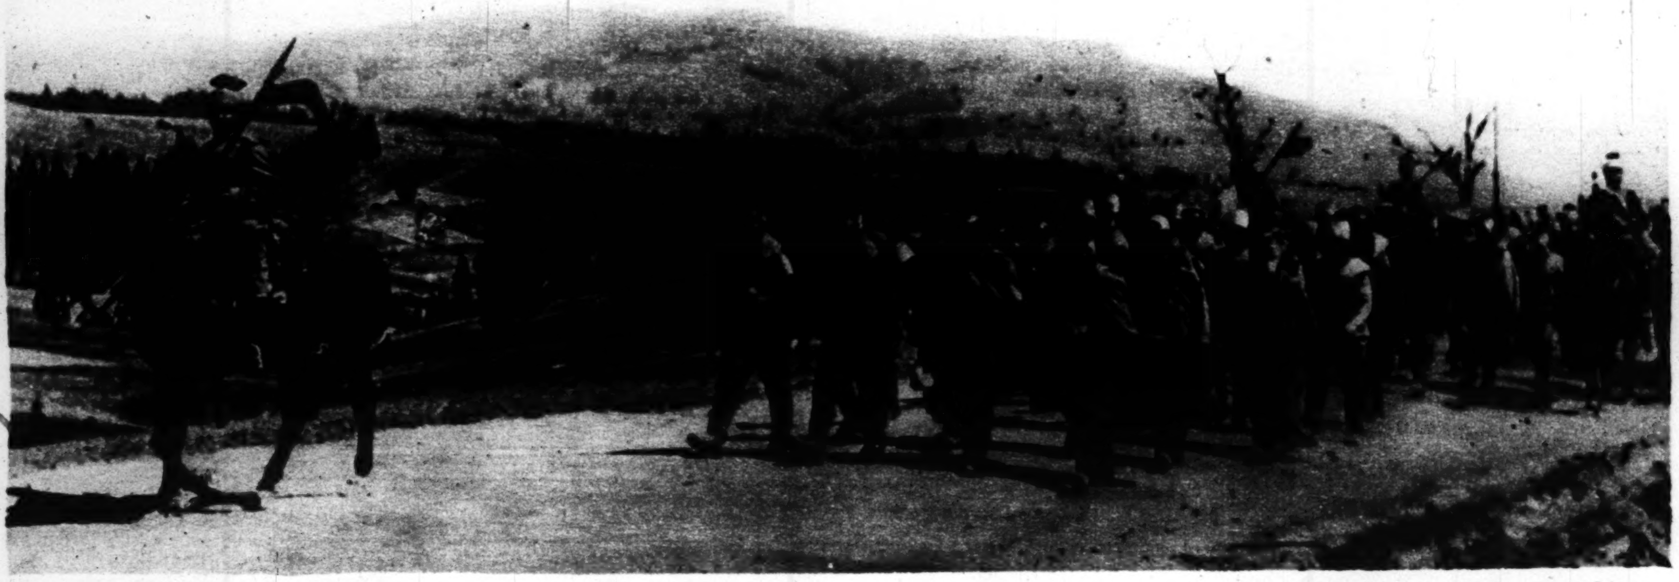
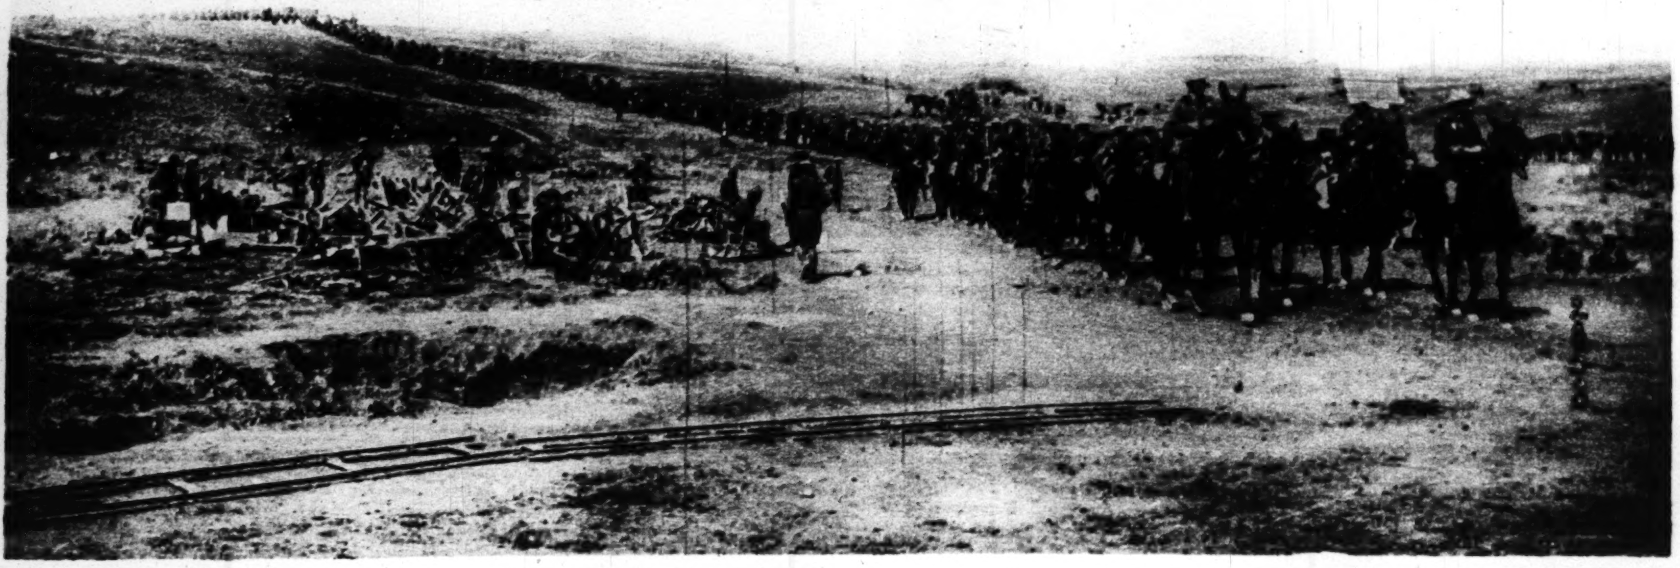
"THE FRONT"—That is what it looks like in the regions of Europe where battles have raged back and forth for two years and a half—not a scene of glamour, but a desolate region with the earth plowed and furrowed by the explosions of thousands of shells. The scene is in the first line of trenches on the French front at Verdun. (Photograph copyright by the International Film service)



GIVE AND TAKE—German prisoners taken by the thousands while the battle still raged at Fluery on the Verdun front, being escorted to detention camps by their French captors. (Photograph copyright by Underwood & Underwood.)



RUSSIAN PRISONERS—The game of Give and Take on the eastern front. Russians made captives by the Germans marching into detention camps under guard of a troop of German lancers. (Photograph from the press bureau of the Austrian war minister.)



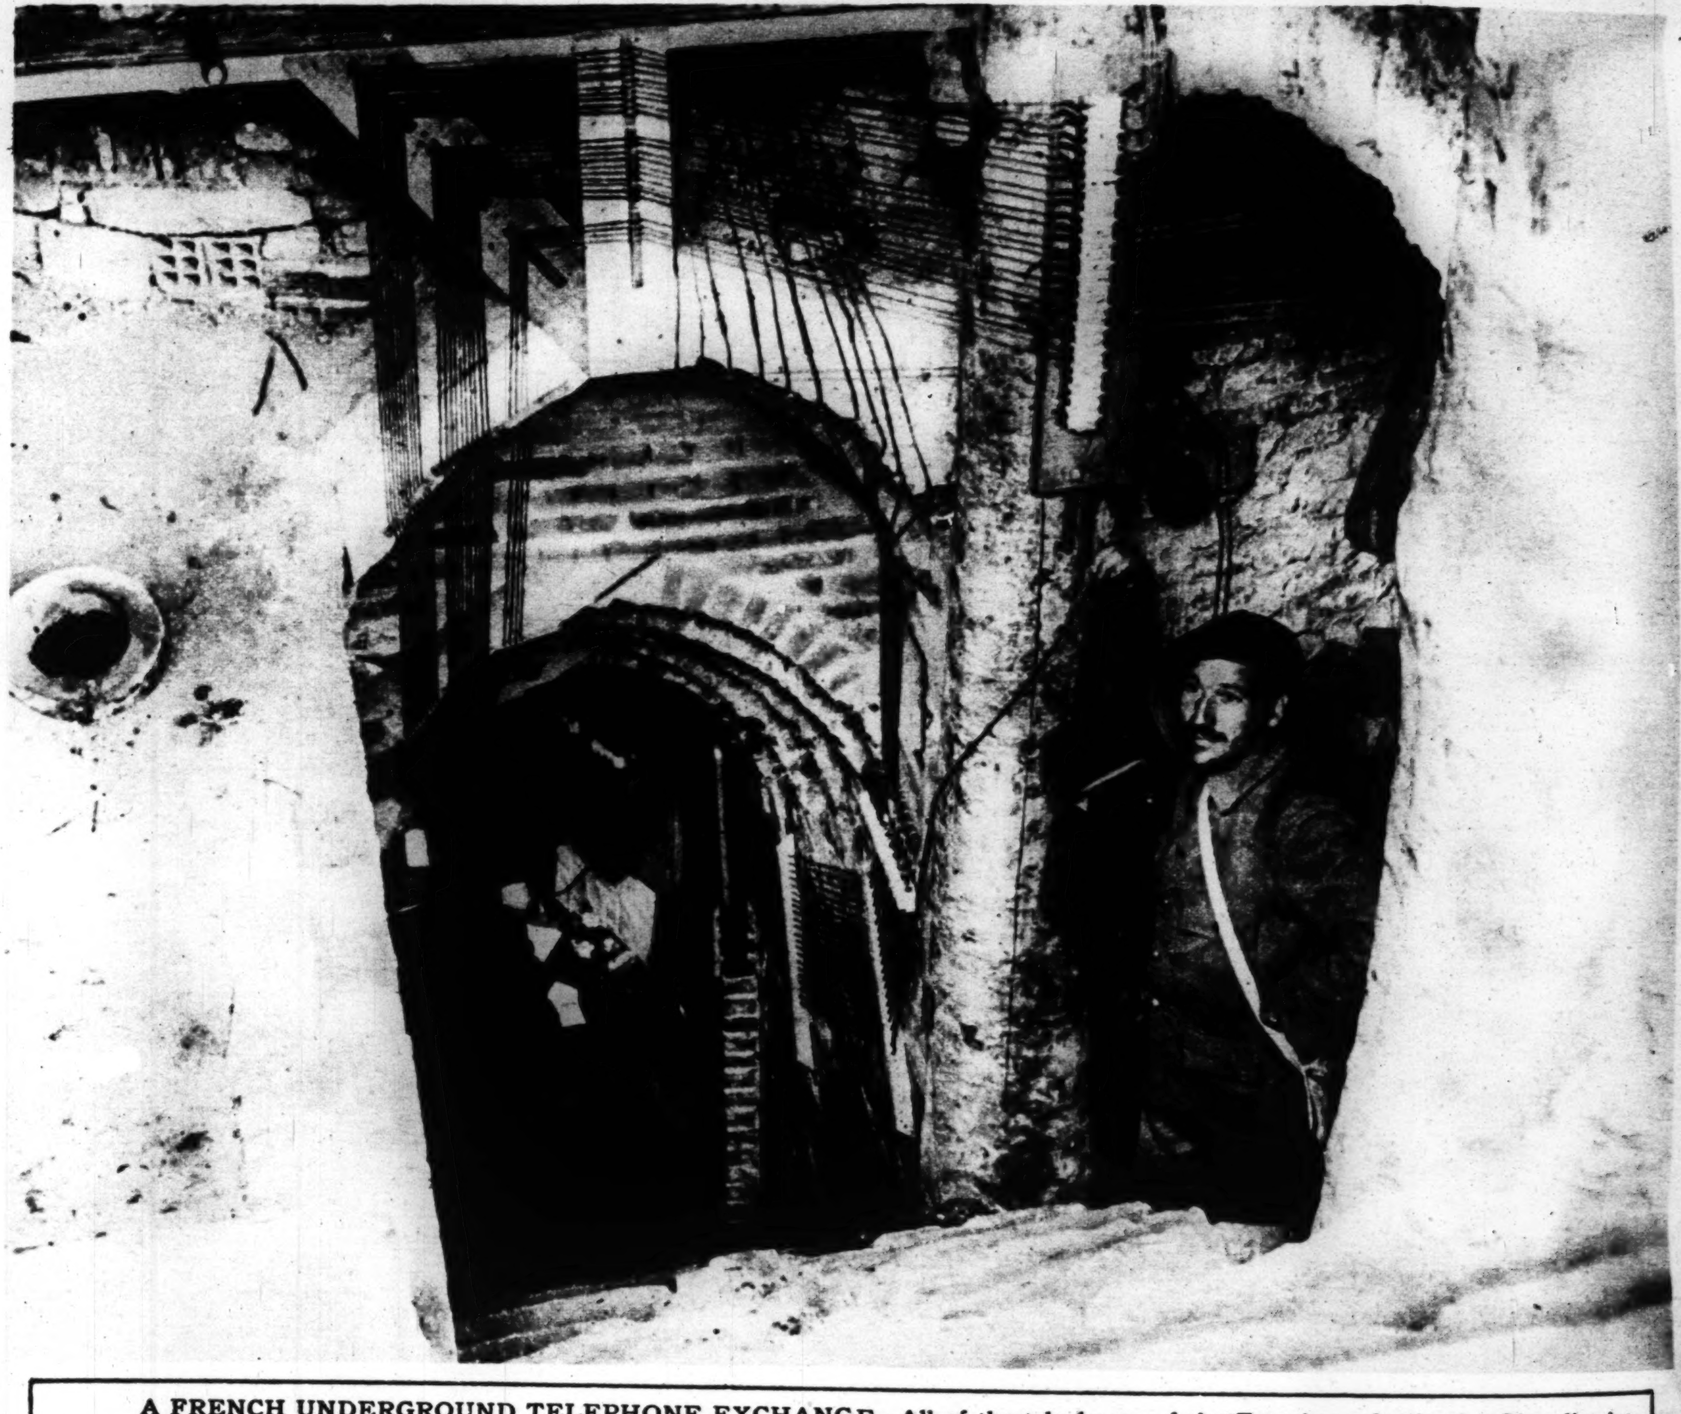
A SERPENTINE LINE OF CAVALRY—British light horsemen, equipped with the "mushroom" steel helmets, marching to the scene of action near the Somme. (Photograph copyright by the International F.lm service.)

FRENCH DOG HEROES WIN HONORS IN WAR

The steel muscled, stumpy, thin, spiky haired dogs whose pictures are presented herewith have become, with a hundred of their kind from the plains of France, highly important factors in the artillery struggle on the western front. They have been decorated, mentioned in dispatches, and accorded high honors in the field. They have captured German patrols and saved the lives of French sentinels. They are ranked even higher than the Red Cross dogs, because their strange canine intelligences have been trained so that they now act as sentinels, patrol scouts, and liaison agents working with French officers on missions where no men can pass.

They are not pet dogs, but of a stern and faithful atavism. They accompany sentinels and scent out the approach of the enemy. They scout out enemy patrols and report to their masters. Trained to seek out their masters under all circumstances, they carry locked in the pockets of their collars important letters to the sub-lieutenants to whom they are attached and who can be reached only by the dogs. In carrying these messages they brave terrific rainstorms of artillery and machine gun fire and ferret out unerringly the officers to whom the messages are to be delivered. In performing their important duty many of these dogs have been fatally wounded. Some, with great, gaping wounds and shattered legs, have dragged themselves to their officers only to die a few moments later. Hence has come about their decorations with "the collar of the wise and brave," an honor bestowed upon them by the French army leaders and recognized by the French government.

(Photographs and material for the above sketch supplied by Sterling Heilig, Paris, France.)



A FRENCH UNDERGROUND TELEPHONE EXCHANGE—All of the telephones of the French armies in the Oise district are connected with this exchange, which is established in a well protected dugout of a trench. Orders from the various divisional headquarters to advance trenches come in over these wires.

GEN MANGIN, who is directing the French on the Verdun front and who commanded the troops in the recapture of Fort Douaumont, by his energy in the midst of his troops maintained the counter attack on the Germans at the battle of the Marne.

Why Woolens Shrink

Learn now for all time how to avoid this shrinking

Wool differs wholly from all other fabrics.

In the choice of your soap product, and in your handling of woolens, lies the secret of safety, of complete success in laundering woolens.

The sensitiveness of wool fiber to alkali, to changes of temperature, and rubbing, are the causes of shrinkage.

Lux will clean them thoroughly, without rubbing

Throw the proper amount of Lux into boiling or very hot water; whisk into a lather. The pure Lux flakes dissolve immediately. Put in the clothes and let them soak for a few minutes; then work them about in the suds to dissolve the dirt. Lux will clean them perfectly without rubbing.

Never iron with hot iron and never rub woolens. It mills or mats them.

Rinse thoroughly in three relays of water of the same temperature, squeeze the water out without twisting, and hang up to dry.

No matter what soap you use now — see for yourself what a remarkable difference Lux makes.

Don't say woolens can't be washed in hot water—try washing them the Lux way. Until you do, you will never believe it possible to get such wonderful, fleecy, soft woolens.

Lux cannot injure anything that pure water alone will not injure.

Now on sale at all grocery and department stores.

Make Your Money Earn Over 20%

This Is the Last Public Offering of the Preferred Stock of this Company Carrying with it a 20% Bonus of Common Stock

Price Par ($100 Per Share)

The opportunity to invest in this Chicago Company, that has always been on a paying basis and is just about to enter into its period of big earnings, will only be extended to you until the close of business Wednesday evening, December 20th. During the last three weeks hundreds of people have communicated with us about this excellent investment, and hundreds have become interested financially in CHICAGO'S GREATEST MOTOR TRUCK PROPOSITION. Upon the completion of the present financing, this Company will have net assets of more than 133% securing the outstanding preferred stock.

The net earnings of this Company for 1917 season should exceed $241,000, which is more than 11 times the interest requirements of the outstanding Preferred Stock.

After the payment of the preferred dividends for 1917 season it is conservatively estimated that the $350,000 of Common Stock should earn more than 60% on its par value.

Based on the above earnings the Preferred Stock, which earns 7%, with the earnings on the 20% bonus of Common Stock, your investment would net over $100 per year on every $500 invested in the SANDOW MOTOR TRUCK COMPANY, or approximately 20%.

This industry is based upon an economic condition which makes motor trucks a positive necessity. The industry is in its infancy, as is shown by the industrial records of this country, which establish the fact that only 4% of possible users of motor trucks in the United States have been supplied, leaving 96% still to be sold. THE SANDOW MOTOR TRUCK COMPANY occupies a splendid position in the trade. It has confined its first operations almost exclusively to Chicago.

There Are Hundreds of Sandow Motor Trucks Actually in Operation in Chicago Alone

The Company's plans for the 1917 season call for the manufacture of only 1,000 trucks, and the earnings on this production are conservatively estimated to be in excess of $240,000. We are now occupying our new factory shown above, which is located on Grand Avenue, and are equipped to produce on a larger scale.

Up to and including December 20th we offer the unsold portion of $300,000 Sandow Motor Truck Company Seven Per Cent Cumulative Preferred Stock

With a bonus of twenty per cent Common Stock, full paid and non-assessable. Dividends payable quarterly on the first day of February, May, August, and November. Redeemable, as a whole or in part, on any dividend day, on sixty days' notice at 110 per cent and accrued dividends.

AWAITING AN AUDIENCE

REPRODUCTION OF A PAINTING by Willem Geets

BY LOUISE JAMES BARGELT.

"Awaiting an Audience." From the picture by William Geets in the Walker Art gallery, Liverpool. 27x43 inches. Purchased by the Corporation of Liverpool at the Liverpool Autumn exhibition in 1886.

HERE is the rendering of a tense moment in the lives of three people. The instant is vividly suggested, graphically put on the canvas. The setting is one of wealth and pomp. Indisputably the woman belongs to the aristocracy, perhaps even to the nobility: There is birth and breeding in her pale beauty and in the chiseling of her delicate features. Her small son is fashioned from the same mold. One can easily picture the father wherever he may be.

About the father apparently the interest of the drama hinges. Some dark fate threatens him. He may be languishing in some prison, sentence of death or torture already passed. And the wife has come to beg for his life. In her hands she holds a paper. If it is signed by the unseen man in that room beyond the red robed guard the whole color of her future and that of her son will be changed.

The little boy is eager for the coming interview. He realizes something of the intense gravity of the situation. He has a part to play in it, too. He knows that his mother is stricken with grief and terror and he is trying to be a man and take upon himself the responsibilities of the moment.

The picture abounds in possibilities. There are a hundred stories one might imagine about this richly clad woman in her regal looking furs. What gloomy sorrows stretch themselves behind her? What dangers and griefs lise ahead? She has been used to every luxury. She has been waited on, and protected, and cherished, and loved. What cataclysmic disaster looms on her horizon, sweeping the very earth from beneath her feet?

There is much glorious coloring in the painting for the treatment of such a tragic theme. The red of the guard's uniform could scarcely be more gorgeous or the gold of the woman's hair gleam more alluringly. Even the rug at the feet of the impassable servant whose master sits within gives the impression of being inches deep in its velvety thickness. This is a picture which contains many of the essentials of popularity and deserves in many ways the decided favor it achieved for its artist.

Geets was a native of Belgium and studied under Baron Leys at Antwerp. He was appointed historical painter to the Academie des Beaux Arts at Malines and gained the gold medal at Ghent. He was decorated besides with the gold cross of the Order of Leopold of Belgium.

Another painting of his which won almost as much popularity for him in England was his "Martyr of the Sixteenth Century," which was exhibited at the Royal academy in 1884.

Another famous painting will be reproduced next Sunday.

Every week The Sunday Tribune will reproduce in four colors on this page one of the world's most famously beautiful paintings. There will be a brief biography of the painter and a story of the painting. Hertwith is reproduced another in the series.

THE WOMAN WITH THE $10,000 IDEA

Mrs. Helen O'Keefe of 3019 Eastwood Avenue, Chicago, Was the Successful Contestant for the $10,000 Prize Offered by the American Film Company for the Best Suggestion for a Sequel to "The Diamond From the Sky"; Herewith is Presented the Story of Mrs. O'Keefe and of Her Winning the Grand Prize.

MRS. HELEN O'KEEFE of 3019 Eastwood avenue, Chicago, will learn for the first time when she reads this that her idea for a sequel to "The Diamond from the Sky" was the successful one in the contest conducted by this newspaper and the American Film Manufacturing company. She will receive a check for $10,000.

The story in fiction form evolved by Terry Ramsaye from Mrs. O'Keefe's suggestion will be found on the opposite page. Tomorrow the concluding episode in the sequel to "The Diamond from the Sky," together with photographs of the successful contestant, will be released through the Mutual Film corporation to thousands of motion picture theaters in all parts of the country.

The judges decided upon Mrs. O'Keefe's suggestion through a process of elimination. From more than 100,000 ideas for a sequel which were sent in, careful reading brought the possibly acceptable ones down to a limited number. Investigations then were conducted through secret service operatives to determine whether there had been any violations of the contest conditions on the part of any of those contestants whose submitted ideas were among the limited number held as possibly acceptable ones. It was through these investigations that it is possible to publish information concerning Mrs. O'Keefe and photographs of her simultaneously with the announcement of the successful contestant and with the publication of the sequel in story form.

Mrs. Helen O'Keefe is the wife of Andrew O'Keefe Jr., assistant office manager for the Albert Miller and company potato commission house. She is the mother of two small children—Andrew, 4 years old, and Eugene, 2 years old. They live in a small flat at 3019 Eastwood avenue, which also is shared by Mrs. O'Keefe's father, William Foley, who is 74 years of age and is a cripple.

Mrs. O'Keefe is 29 years old. Previous to her marriage, about five years ago, she worked as a stenographer in the offices of Montgomery Ward & Co., and later with the Liquid Carbonic company. After the death of her mother she had also kept house for her father until she met and was married to Andrew O'Keefe Jr., son of Andrew O'Keefe, who owns an apartment building at 5710 South May street.

"I never was lucky," Mrs. O'Keefe told an investigator who went to see her, "and I do not feel there is any chance of my receiving the big prize. If I do, most of it I expect would go toward paying off the balance we owe on this two apartment building, which we bought last spring for $8,200. What is left I probably would lay aside to educate my two boys when they grow up, as I always have hoped that I would be able to send them to college.

"I have no literary inclinations. I have read few books. I haven't time to read much because my time is almost completely taken up in caring for my home and for my aged father. I borrow a book now and then from my sister-in-law when I have time to read; but I haven't any special preference in literature, except that I do not like 'love stuff.'

"I never had taken any particular interest in moving pictures. However, I went to see the first installment of 'The Diamond from the Sky,' and from that time on it always had a peculiar fascination for me. Nothing could keep me away from seeing the reels each Tuesday night as they were produced in our neighborhood, and I followed closely the written installments as they appeared in THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE.

"I do not know where I got the inspiration to write my suggestion for a sequel, except that it formulated in my mind as the installments came out. Of course, I made some changes before the end was reached. No one helped me in preparing the sequel. When I had completed it and revised it, I showed it to my husband. He read it over and said in an offhand way that it was very good, and then returned to the newspaper he was reading.

"I wrote my suggestion for the sequel largely for my own amusement, and never had, nor have yet, an idea that it would be the successful entry. I thought so little of it that I let it lay around the house until the last day of the contest. Then I thought I might as well send it along, as I wouldn't be losing anything except the postage.

"If I am the successful contestant it won't turn my head any, I can assure you. I never have tried my hand at short stories or scenarios, and I do not intend to try such work now. My husband, and my children, and my home are my whole existence. If my suggestion should be accepted and I get the $10,000 it will be the only romantic incident in my life. My husband is about the only man I ever kept company with."

If the members of the commission firm for which Mr. O'Keefe works will kindly turn their heads the other way for a moment, we will betray a little secret of Mrs. O'Keefe's. The investigator asked Mrs. O'Keefe if she had a carbon copy of her suggestion for the sequel. She produced one, bearing a watermark of good grade. When asked where she got it she blushingly replied that she had no typewriter paper in the house and her husband, at her request, had brought her a few sheets of it from the office.

Secret investigations revealed the fact that neither Mrs. O'Keefe nor any member of her family is in any way connected with, or has any acquaintance with any employés of, either the American Film Manufacturing company, which produced "The Diamond from the Sky," the Mutual Film corporation, through which the pictures were released, or with THE TRIBUNE.

Mrs. Andrew O'Keefe Sr. did not know her daughter-in-law had submitted a suggestion for a sequel to "The Diamond from the Sky." "I knew Helen attended every one of the reels that were shown," said the senior Mrs. O'Keefe, "and I knew that she was interested and enthusiastic about the pictures and the story; but I didn't have any idea that she was trying to write a sequel to it herself. She's bright enough to do it, though, if she ever put her mind to it."

The lower apartment in which the O'Keefes live in the two apartment building in Eastwood avenue is neatly but very modestly furnished. At the time the investigator visited it curtains had not yet been put up in the sun parlor, the furniture was of a durable, inexpensive design, and the carpets of quiet colors and of ingrain or Axminster. The shelves of the built-in bookcases of the living room were practically empty—a fact attesting to Mrs. O'Keefe's statement that she is not a "literary" woman and that keeping a clean, well ordered house is her main concern.

With her neighbors Mrs. O'Keefe enjoys a reputation as a model housewife, a good mother to her two young sons, and a woman of average attainments and education. Her former employers attest that she was an intelligent, capable, honest, and healthy girl—always intent upon doing her work well. She was educated, through the grades only, in the parochial school of the Holy Name cathedral at State street and Chicago avenue, and studied stenography for six months in a business college before going to work as housekeeper and main contributor to the support of her father, who was struck and crippled by a railroad train fifteen years ago.

Mrs. O'Keefe is 5 feet 5 inches in height and she weighs about 145 pounds. Her hair is black except for a few strands of gray at the temples and is inclined to be wavy. She brushes it straight back on her head. She met her husband while she was working for the Liquid Carbonic company. At that time he was employed as a shipping clerk with the same concern.

Mrs. O'Keefe's $10,000 idea for a sequel to "The Diamond from the Sky" is the reward for a keen, clever, original suggestion—arrived at by a careful study of the reels of the film as it was produced and of the story as it appeared each Sunday in THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE.

Out of the limited number of submitted suggestions which were chosen as having a chance for the prize, hers was found to be the most logical and at the same time the most original.

SEQUEL CONTEST CONDITIONS.

$10,000 will be paid for a sequel to the American Company's serial production "The Diamond From the Sky." Following are conditions:

Contestants must confine their contributions to 1,000 words or less. No contestant may submit more than one sequel. Do not inclose stamps, as no manuscripts will be returned.

Send all suggestions to THE AMERICAN FILM MANUFACTURING COMPANY, 6225 Broadway, Chicago, Ill.

As it is the IDEA that is wanted, no attention will be paid to literary style.

Suggestions for a sequel will be accepted up to and including February 20, 1916. After that date no entries will be considered.

This contest is open to any man, woman, or child who is not connected directly or indirectly with the Film Company or the newspapers publishing the continued story.

You are advised to see the continued photoplay in the theatres, read the story as it runs every week, and then send in you suggestion. By following the narrative in print and observing the action on the screen, you will be given a splendid opportunity to supply a suggestion for a sequel.

A board of three judges will decide which of the suggestions received is most acceptable. The judgment of that board will be absolute and final.

WHAT "SEQUEL" MEANS

The word "sequel" means a continuation of or result. In other words, the sequel of "The Diamond From the Sky" must incorporate the same characters depicted in "The Diamond From the Sky" itself. We do not promise that the same actors will play in the sequel, but the characters will be the same, even though worked out by different players.

More Than 100,000 Suggestions from All Over the Country Were Received in This, One of the Greatest Contests Ever Conducted by a Newspaper; Three Months Were Required to Read All of the Many Manuscripts Which Came In in Every Conceivable Form and By All Means of Conveyance.

MORE than 100,000 suggestions for a sequel to "The Diamond from the Sky" were received by the American Film Manufacturing company in the contest conducted by this and allied newspapers throughout the United States and in Canada. To read them all thoroughly required three months of constant day and night application to the manuscripts on the part of expert readers and judges.

The contest began in May, 1915, with the first publication of a new photoplay serial in this newspaper and with the simultaneous release to theaters all over the United States of a photoplay entitled "The Diamond from the Sky," written in both fiction and scenario form by Roy L. McCardell, who won the $10,000 prize offered by the American Film Manufacturing company and this newspaper for the best suggestion for a photo-play serial. Thereafter for thirty weeks a new installment of the photoplay appeared every Sunday in this newspaper and reels corresponding to the installment were released on the following Monday.

The photoplay, "The Diamond from the Sky," was produced by the American Film Manufacturing company, Inc., at their studios in Santa Barbara, Cal. The films were released through the Mutual Film corporation. The contest ended on Feb. 20, 1916, about three months after the date the final installment of the story appeared, which was Nov. 28, 1915.

The contest was open to any man, woman, or child who was not connected directly or indirectly with the film company producing the serial or with any of the newspapers publishing the continued story. No contestant was permitted to submit more than one sequel. It was specifically stated that contributions must be confined to 1,000 words or less, and that a worked out scenario or serial story was not wanted—only an idea, a suggestion.

No attention was paid to grammar, literary style, or to whether the suggestion was written with pen, pencil, or typewriter. All suggestions were to be sent to the American Film Manufacturing company, 6225 Broadway, with no stamps inclosed, as no manuscripts were to be returned. It was stated that the judgment of a board of three judges of the suggestions would be absolute and final. Contestants were advised to see the continued photoplay in the theaters every week and to read carefully the story as it appeared in this newspaper and then submit their suggestions.

From nearly all parts of the world the suggestions came— from China and from Alaskan trading posts, from South American republics and from the embattled countries of Europe, from Hawaii and the Philippines, and from small hamlets in rural districts of the United States as well as from large cities—thousands and thousands of them. Every conceivable sort of paper was used on which to write the suggestions—engraved, perfumed stationery from the homes of the rich; foolscap; cheap lined tablet paper used by children in the primary grades; wrapping paper; butcher's paper; backs of envelopes; office stationery from hundreds of firms; blank spaces of newspapers; tissue and oil paper; scraps of paper soiled by grease, dirt, rain, and weather.

Despite the implicit condition demanding that the sequel suggestions be written in 1,000 words or less, some of them represented Herculean labors at writing. They came in in the form of great tomes of manuscript containing five and six tablets of closely written, penned, or penciled lines, or in one-spacd typewritten mauscript representing enough written matter to fill one or two good sized volumes. There were whole novels, complete scenarios with full stage directions, and novelettes having nothing whatever to do with the original characters in the photoplay.

While the majority of the contestants utilized the customary channel—the regular mail service—in sending in their suggestions, many of them sent packages by express, parcel post, freight, and even by messenger service. These contributions were wrapped like so much merchandise, some neatly, some faultily, so that by the handling of delivery the manuscripts were torn, soiled, and partly illegible.

Rich and poor alike worked out their ideas for the serial. Women who command many servants and to whom $10,000 would mean but a small item in their annual allowance for expenditures and women to whom $10,000 would be riches as inconceivable as the wealth of ten Rockefellers alike cudgeled their brains for an effective and workable idea that would strike the judges as the best one. Children and aged men did their work toward making this contest one of the greatest on record.

When on Feb. 20, 1916, the contest closed, the corps of readers went to work on the great storehouse filled with the piles of written suggestions. Those manuscripts which failed to adhere to the conditions of the contest were thrown out; a careful reading and a gradual elimination and re-elimination then progressed day and night for three months. When at least a certain number of possibly acceptable suggestions were left in the running, investigations were made to make sure that no violations of the contest conditions had been made on the part of those whose suggestions stood a chance for the prize.

The board of three judges after long and careful deliberation at length decided that the suggestion submitted by Mrs. Helen O'Keefe, living at the time she submitted her idea at 5710 South May street, Chicago, but now at 3019 Eastwood avenue, was the most original, the most logical, and by some odds the best idea for the sequel that had been sent in.

Mrs. O'Keefe's suggestion was then forwarded to the studio of the American Film Manufacturing company at Santa Barbara, Cal. There her suggestion was worked into scenario form for four installments and work begun on the photography of the sequel. From a copy of the scenario Terry Ramsaye wrote the story contained in the sequel. The complete fictionization of Mrs. O'Keefe will be found in this issue of this newspaper.

The last installment of the successful sequel to "The Diamond from the Sky" will be shown in your favorite theater. Moving pictures of Mrs. O'Keefe, the successful author of the suggestion, will be shown at the same time.

Sequel to "THE DIAMOND from the SKY"

By Terry Ramsaye
Written from the Prize Winning 1000 Words.

SYNOPSIS OF "THE DIAMOND FROM THE SKY."

In the seventeenth century a huge meteor streaked across the sky. It was found by Sir Arthur Stanley, later Earl of Dorking, who discovered in its bosom a huge diamond. This jewel was set in a necklace and handed down for centuries to the oldest male heir.

Two centuries later Col. Arthur Stanley and his cousin, Judge Lamar Stanley, both Virginia aristocrats, became involved in a dispute as to the then ownership of the diamond. Col. Stanley's child being a girl he exchanged for a boy of the same age with the head of a gypsy band.

This boy, Arthur Stanley as he was known, grew up as the heir to the Dorking estate in England, owned by the childless Earl of Dorking, and to the Stanley estate in Virginia. Meeting Esther Stanley, beautiful scion of the Virginia family, he marries her. Blair Stanley, Esther's cousin, marries Vivian Marston, an adventuress, and lives in England.

Blair and Vivian, with their accomplices, are still determinedly pursuing "the diamond from the sky" at the time the story closes, young Arthur Stanley, son of the gypsy foundling, having been named as the real heir to the Dorking estates and the Virginia properties. At the conclusion of the play the Stanleys are about to start for England to claim their son's heritage.

CHAPTER I.

"COFFEE, sah?"

Old Chloe, privileged servitor of Stanley Hall, asked.

Arthur Stanley glanced up from the telegram he had been perusing and turn it face down on the breakfast table, waving the coffee pot away with a negative gesture as he did so.

At that moment Esther Stanley, beautiful young Virginian wife of the bronzed gentleman farmer, advanced with a laughing apology for tardiness.

"You're pretty enough to make up for any delay," her husband assured her, patting the little white hand extended to him as she sat down, "and here's something that will interest you, I think."

Little Mrs. Stanley read the telegram and her face blanched.

"What does it mean?" she gasped.

"It means," responded her husband with a laugh, "that the old earl is dead.' He's cut my cousin, Blair, off with a bad shilling and left everything to our kiddie, little Arthur, as the next direct male heir. Since there may be an effort to upset the will, our possession of 'the diamond from the sky' is to be proof of identity."

"What shall we do?" she shuddered.

"Do?" answered Stanley decisively. "We shall take the first boat we can, go to England, settle up the estate, and turn over 'the diamond from the sky' to the legitimate custodians of that troublesome article. We only hold it in trust, you know."

"But it's all so menacing," Esther complained, tears in her long lashed blue eyes. There is too much terrible mystery connected with it."

"Don't take matters so seriously, my dear," urged the young land owner reassuringly. "I've known for more than a year that something like this would happen. Blair played a rotten hand, and he deserves what he's got. That last affair with the actress, when Vivian left him, broke the earl's heart. Vivian's a good girl, and I suppose she has been provided for in the will."

"It's just been one plot after another," went on the mistress of Stanley Hall. "I've lived in perpetual fear that if they can't find the diamond they'll steal our boy. For months past there hasn't been an instant of real security."

"Well, let's be thankful that now we're in a fair way to end our troubles," laughed Stanley. "My dear," he added, "it's a thing that's got to be faced. The boy's future must be safeguarded and we must be rid of that incubus, 'the diamond from the sky.' I suppose Blair will fight to retain the estate with the title, but this lawyer wires me that the will is unbreakable. The message is from old 'Monty' Smyth, the Earl of Dorking's solicitor for thirty years. He's unbreakable, too."

When Chloe entered with hot waffles she grinned more expansively than ever at the spectacle of two sedate married folk "actin' up like an engaged couple," as she later told the cook.

"Old Dorking was a stiff necked survivor of stiff necked traditions," pursued Stanley as he resumed his seat and attacked the waffles. "He never would acknowledge himself in the wrong about anything, but if he'd known you, my dear, he'd have wallowed fathoms deep in the sea of repentance. As it is, he made such amends as his stubborn pride permitted."

"I call him a mean old thing to have saddled us with so many enemies," pouted Esther.

"Remember the recompense," interposed Stanley. "He cut Blair out of the money and left it to your son. Very British idea, that. Believe me, some of the British customs are quite attractive, especially when you're a beneficiary."

Arthur Stanley, who had married the belle of Fairfax, Va., Esther Stanley, had incurred the displeasure of his uncle, the earl, because of marriage to a supposed cousin from the Virginia branch of the family, but what neither Stanley nor his wife knew had lately become known to the old earl—to wit: that Arthur Stanley had been a changeling at birth through a plot to affect the succession. Blair Stanley, a wastrel young aristocrat, had been taken into favor, but, once assured of his annual allowance, Blair had pursued a dissipated career among shady habitués of loose jointed west end clubs.

The final episode in this young man's wild race had been an effort to abstract from the collection of famous gems at Dorking castle "the diamond from the sky," a huge stone possessed of an extraordinary oriental history, supposed to have been the means of wrecking thrones and blasting reputations, both oriental and European. The attempt was due to published rumors that the jewel had been sent to London for guardianship after repeated attempts to steal it, whereas it had never left the possession of the Virginian Stanleys. Blair had been caught at the jewel cases and promptly disinherited.

While attempts to locate the diamond were being made by conspirators in England repeated efforts had been made to rob the Stanley home in Virginia during the few months that preceded the earl's death, and as nothing of value had been stolen during any of these nocturnal raids the young planter and his wife had become convinced that their sole object must have been to secure possession of "the diamond from the sky."

Now, more than ever, Arthur and Esther Stanley determined to carry out the wishes of the girl's Virginia ancestors with regard to the gem, guarding it until it could be placed in the hands of authorized agents of the Dorking estate, to which branch of the Stanley family it had been proved to belong.

"Better have the women begin packing at once, my dear," remarked the young tobacco grower as he rose and lighted a cigaret. "We've got to get this thing off our chests."

"Mr. De Vaux, sah."

On Chloe's announcement of the visitor Esther started to her feet.

"Arthur," she cried, "do not see that man. Say you are not at home. I've told you about De Vaux. He's the man who insists on talking to little Arthur when he's out walking with Chloe. Once he gave the child candy and the girl threw it away. Please—O, please don't have any dealings with him."

"Why, Esther, it's perfectly simple," was Stanley's reassuring comment. "The fellow wants to buy us out for coal prospects on the land. Don't believe there's any coal on the place myself, but still there's nothing to be alarmed about. Cheer up, child—you're nervous."

As the young husband left the room he paused to embrace a fair haired boy who intercepted him.

"Here's the heir," he laughed, with a wave of his hand, as little Arthur ran from him to the outstretched arms of his mother.

CHAPTER II.

The gypsy camp was in an uproar. Alert, composed, with a face that in the crimson glare seemed carved of gnarled mahogany, "Quabba, king of the Romanys," issued orders to his tribe.

From the railway line, a quarter of a mile away, proceeded another blaze that lit the sky a vivid crimson. Faint shouts were heard, and now and then a shrill scream as of a woman in distress.

Never had there been occasion for greater resourcefulness on the part of these sharp witted habitués of the open road. The Starlight limited, fast train of the Central and Southern railway, had rolled into the ditch, and, according to the report brought Quabba, fifty people had been killed.

Fifteen minutes from the time this report had been received the entire Romany band, led by Quabba himself, with his chattering monkey Caruso at his heels, swarmed over the wreckage, tenderly lifting unconscious men and women from the mass of shattered timbers and twisted metal.

Darting here and there, ever attended by the agile Caruso, Quabba directed the rescue work. He had superintended the removal of two bodies, those of a young man and woman, from beneath a pile of timbers, when his attention was arrested by the approach of a tall, dark man, who stooped and lifted the blankets from the faces of the dead. The gypsy king started. He knew the face of the stooping man. He had seen it before—it was the face of Sidney De Vaux.

Where De Vaux was there also was mischief. Quabba had encountered the fellow in a desperate defense of interests that centered in a fabulously valuable gem known as "the diamond from the sky," and there was, too, a thrilling story concerning Quabba's connection with that baleful stone—but this was no time for reminiscences.

De Vaux replaced the blanket over the faces of the dead man and woman. His crafty, cruel face displayed an expression of deep satisfaction as he resumed his search among the bodies—a grin of triumph that was emphasized in the glow of the torch he carried.

An instant later Quabba knew the meaning of that grin. Lifting the blanket that De Vaux had replaced, he staggered back aghast. The dead man and woman were his best friends in a world where good friends are few. They were Arthur and Esther Stanley of Stanley Hall, Virginia.

Only two days before Quabba had received a letter from Stanley apprising him of the writer's impending departure for England to spend the winter with his wife and little son. "I'd take it as a favor," wrote Stanley, "in case you come south, if you would use our timber tract for your winter encampment. There have been some queer goings-on, and I'd like people around the place I know and can trust. In case you wish to communicate with me notify Louise Grafton, our friend, of the adjoining estate."

Quabba's mind worked rapidly. To find the little boy was his first care. "The diamond from the sky" might be locked in the safe at Stanley Hall, or it might be buried in the wreck, for aught he cared just then. Where was the child?

Smoothly, like a questioning hound in the ease and rapidity of his progress amid the smoking ruins of the train, the gypsy searched. He heard De Vaux directing that the body of a child be laid beside those of the Stanleys.

Blair believes that he sees a ghost

"He's their son," said the man. "I know them all."

For a moment the gypsy's heart stood still. Then he remembered—the Stanley birth mark. All the Stanleys had it—a red blotch on the right arm, between wrist and elbow. He had seen it on the child. Ha! it was not there. De Vaux knew of the birth mark. He had lied. Where was De Vaux?

With the instinct that God gave to peoples that must needs live in the open Quabba followed the trail of this man whose villainies had been the talk of three continents. A hint here, a word there—these were sufficient. Within two hours the gypsy, a natural born detective, had found what he sought. Little Arthur Stanley lay ill in a foundling home temporarily in use as an emergency hospital. De Vaux had hoped that his placing another dead child with the Stanleys would lead to the Stanley's baby being immured as an unknown orphan.

When the young heir to an English fortune awoke something more than an hour later in Quabba's van he knew that "the diamond from the sky" had been taken from the little chamois bag about his neck and in his dreams the child had cried aloud that he had been told to "be sure not to lose it."

Arthur Stanley and his pretty young wife had been Quabba's friends. With his life he would protect their child and at the risk of that same life he would recover "the diamond from the sky." With uplifted knife he swore it in the blood curdling gypsies' oath.

But first to place little Arthur in safety. To disarm suspicion he would proceed with his caravan to Stanley Hall.

It did not take De Vaux long to discover that the child had been spirited away. While Quabba was absent from the hospital to which he had taken the lad for treatment Blair Stanley's evil associate once more gained a brief possession of the boy, but Quabba rescued him again almost before the chief of the murderous band had time to think. De Vaux had rushed little Arthur from the hospital to a lonely spot near the sea. Quabba, following, hastily improvised a bundle that resembled the sleeping child, and De Vaux, returning, tossed it over the cliff, believing he had killed the heir to Earl Dorking's fortune.

Returning from the town after purchasing supplies for the caravan Quabba stood aghast. Not ten steps away, with their backs turned, stood De Vaux and another. Who was the other? Could there be two men with that peculiar droop of the left shoulder? The gypsy shrunk into a doorway. The men walked away, but Quabba had heard enough. De Vaux had turned "the diamond from the sky" over to little Arthur's arch enemy, Blair Stanley. To trail Blair was easy, but how recover the diamond?

The gypsy caravan did not start for Fairfax until 4:30 in the morning. When it did start "the diamond from the sky" was in Quabba's secret compartment beneath the forward wheels. Blair Stanley lay unconscious in the Albemarle hotel under care of two doctors.

CHAPTER III.

Unknown to numerous friends of the Stanleys, whose deaths had been mourned throughout Virginia, events were moving with great rapidity from unsuspected causes.

The Earl of Dorking, aware of his approaching end, and fearing the machinations of Blair, his unprincipled nephew, had dispatched Marmaduke Smyth to Virginia for the purpose of taking possession of "the diamond from the sky" and of bringing Arthur and Esther Stanley with the young heir to the Dorking fortune back to England.

Blair Stanley, learning of this move, had sailed on the same ship, keeping himself concealed until the vessel docked in New York. Blair had left his ill used wife, Vivian, as he believed, fatally ill, but she, learning of his evil designs, followed on a fast boat, arriving almost simultaneously. Thus the plot of Blair to compass the death of young Stanley was being hampered from activities the source of which he could not comprehend.

Aunt Chloe, colored mammy of the Stanley home, who had been engaged by the pretty Miss Grafton of Grafton Manor after the deaths of the Stanleys, was first to sight the gypsy cavalcade as it entered the lower rise of the Stanley copse, half a mile from the Grafton place.

"Dere's dem gypsies back agen," announced Chloe to Miss Grafton as she assisted at the latter's toilet in anticipation of a call from Robert Holgate, the young southern lawyer who was paying her court.

"See whether they need anything," ordered Miss Grafton languidly. She was thinking of the deaths of her friends.

Suddenly the house vibrated with peals of the big door bell. Miss Grafton sent Chloe to answer the summons, and a moment later bounded down the stairs, three at a time, in response to the wild screams of that frightened wench.

There, on the wide stoop, stood Quabba the gypsy with little Arthur Stanley asleep in his strong arms. Explanations were quickly made. Quabba told of the efforts of De Vaux to dispose of the heir, while Louise, the sick boy in her lap, wept.

"But how shall I protect the child in case they come here?" questioned the young woman. "There are reasons why I cannot tell Mr. Holgate or any of my friends. Arthur Stanley strictly enjoined me from mentioning 'the diamond from the sky' to any one."

"No fear," Quabba reassured her. "Quabba and twenty men camp in Stanley woods—stay all winter. You make boy well."

With this laconic injunction the old gypsy took himself off.

Young Holgate, for more than a year insanely in love with Louise, who refused to marry him because of his drinking habits, entered the house just as Chloe disappeared around the curve of the stairs with little Arthur.

"Who's the new arrival?" he demanded of Miss Grafton.

"One of Chloe's little patients," smiled the girl.

"Didn't cry like a nigger," snarled Holgate suspiciously.

"You don't seem yourself today, Robert," answered Louise. "Perhaps you'd better return when you have learned to be civil."

The hotheaded young southerner withdrew shamefacedly, mounted his horse, and rode away.

But two days elapsed before Quabba's fears with regard to Blair Stanley and his evil associate, De Vaux, were realized. The gypsy saw both men on the main street of Fairfax one morning, and knew that the struggle for "the diamond from the sky" was to be renewed forthwith.

Blair Stanley, suave and polished, made the first move when he called on Louise in the guise of a coal land seeker, posing as Herbert Ingleman of Wales. Holgate, who had observed Stanley's call, permitted his already rising suspicions to discover in this a justification for the fear in his heart that Louise loved another. The exquisitely groomed Blair Stanley seemed to fit perfectly into this theory.

Holgate knew every corner of the rambling old Grafton manor house. He determined to satisfy himself as to the child concealed there. The urgings of his jealous mind caused him to suspect that Blair was the father of the child. Who was its mother?

To force an upper window over the lean-to at the south wall was simple. To search the south wing would have been equally simple but for the vigilance of Chloe, whom Holgate hated as a co-conspirator against his happiness. So it was that when the half drunken young lawyer stood beside the bed of little Arthur Stanley thinking his worst suspicions realized he was chased by the Negress, who believed him a kidnaper, and compelled to exit hastily.

Meanwhile Blair and De Vaux decided that Quabba had the diamond, and they determined to raid the gypsy's van. They had taken little account of a young woman whose room was next to the one occupied by them at the Fairfax hotel. But the mysterious occupant of that room had heard their conversations.

Vivian Stanley crept through the woods like a wraith. She had discovered that "the diamond from the sky" was hidden in Quabba's van, but to find it was another matter.

When gypsies dance by torchlight they take their pleasure whole heartedly. That accounted for the ease with which Vivian discovered the diamond in its leather case. It also accounted for the disappointment of Blair and De Vaux, who tried to find the gem fifteen minutes later, only to be interrupted by Quabba.

The fight that followed was one that did the old gypsy credit, but odds were too heavy against him. When the Romany later recovered consciousness under the care of the band he searched for the missing gem. Satisfied from their talk that the two men had not obtained it, he began seeking a solution of this new mystery. The plot was thickening with a vengeance.

CHAPTER IV.

Montagu Smyth of Smyth, Waldron & Crews, solicitors, Jermyn street, W., known to his intimates of the legal fraternity in London as the wisest old fox that ever wrote a brief, sat pulling his whiskers reflectively in a corner room on the second floor of the Fairfax hotel. On the table were reports turned in that morning by a couple of young men who had been to all appearances assiduously seeking work in the stores and offices of the town for a week. Actually they were special detectives assigned to assist Solicitor Smyth by Chief Burns of the New York detective bureau.

The reports were not any too satisfactory, and that was why Solicitor Smyth pulled his whiskers. He always did it when in doubt. Now he was in doubt. Of course there was no doubt as to the location of the heir of the Dorking millions, but while Smyth recognized the importance of delivering that young gentleman safely into the hands of the high court of chancery, he knew that to reveal himself at this juncture would be to endanger his chances of securing "the diamond from the sky," concerning which negotiations involving the gem and a certain royal personage were in heated progress.

"Damn!" exclaimed the old gentleman. "If I had a couple of men from the Yard, I'd clean this up before bedtime. Too many reports and not enough action."

Flipping the offending documents into a drawer, Solicitor Smyth, still pulling his gray whiskers, went to the window and looked out. Crossing the street, albeit rather unsteadily, was Mr. Robert Holgate, attorney at law, as his shingle related, although Lawyer Holgate practiced law only when he had one of his periodical fits of sobriety.

"H'm," grunted the old gentleman, "there's my learned brother of the local bar. Now I wonder——"

What Solicitor Smyth wondered was not revealed, because, as though seized with a sudden thought, he jammed his tall silk hat on his sparsely covered cranium and shot out of the room like an active schoolboy. Five minutes later Mr. Robert Holgate and Mr. Montague Smyth were drinking mint juleps together in a quite fraternal way. Ten minutes later still Mr. Montague Smyth and his legal friend were dealing poker hands to each other with astounding affability, while mint juleps continued to lend zest to the occasion.

When Mr. Montague Smyth descended the stairs of the rickety hostelry shortly before dark Mr. Robert Holgate was asleep on the bed of his quondam associate from the wilds of West London, and reposing in the inside pocket of that astute old gentleman lay "the diamond from the sky," still in its engraved leather case.

"Now for a little action," chortled the gentleman of the whiskers, whereupon he dodged round a corner in the dark and got action forthwith. With a heavy hand over his mouth to prevent any outcry, one of the old lawyer's assailants drove the other fist into his attenuated frame amidships, crumpling him up in a shameful manner, while another ruffian assisted to toss him into a conveyance, wherein he promptly went to sleep from a hard rap over the head with something that felt like a sockful of lead. When Solicitor Smyth awoke he was in a sort of cave, with his hands and feet tied. "The diamond from the sky" had disappeared. So had the money he had won at poker from Holgate.

Oddly enough, the thing that most oppressed Mr. Montague Smyth in this distressing reversal of fortune was that, his hands being securely tied, he could not pull his whiskers. And sad as this situation may be, we are compelled to leave the legal luminary of Jermyn street in order to discover what happened that led up to it.

When Vivian Stanley, running wildly to escape from the gypsy camp with "the diamond from the sky," fell over a cliff and rolled fifty feet, she managed to gain her feet and at first believed herself unhurt. When at last she reached Grafton manor and rang Louise Grafton's doorbell she was in a fainting condition.

Turning "the diamond from the sky" over to Miss Grafton for safe keeping, she promptly became delirious. It was while Louise was ministering to the wants of the sick woman that young Holgate, frenzied with drink, once more entered the Manor house through a bedroom window and in his half drunken wanderings found the diamond. Convinced that Blair had given the stone to Louise, he decided to make off with it. Later, after further libations, he encountered Mr. Montague Smyth, with results already known.

Vivian, having recovered from her swoon, refused to remain because of a determination to confront her husband, Blair Stanley, and foil his plot against young Arthur. Blair, entering the house in his character of Ingleman and seeing his wife there, decamped hastily, half persuaded that he had seen a ghost, since he believed her dead, or at least on a sickbed in England. Vivian followed Blair and her threats to expose him resulted in their taking a walk in the woods to discuss their affairs.

When Quabba and his band arrived at the cave after trailing Montague Smyth's captors they found the old gentleman swearing volubly. Releasing him and hearing his story, they made their way rapidly to the hotel, believing that Holgate had been responsible for the seizure despite his apparent drunkenness, but the young lawyer was still sleeping soundly, though a terrific thunderstorm with violent wind rattled the Fairfax hotel to its foundations.

Quabba at once began a search for Blair Stanley and the wily De Vaux, suspecting that one or the other of these two had "the diamond from the sky," but his search was vain. Pursuing vague clews, he visited Grafton manor to assure himself that young Stanley was safe, arriving to find the house in an uproar. Chloe, the giant Negress, was struggling in the dark with a man whose attempt to make off with little Arthur she had prevented. Quabba promptly grappled with the fellow and threw him over a balustrade to the floor below. The man was found, when lights were brought, to be Sidney De Vaux. His neck had been broken in the fall.

When daylight came the bodies of a man and woman were found pinned beneath a fallen tree that had been struck by lightning in the Stanley woods. Both were dead. Quabba identified them despite their disfigurements as Blair and Vivian Stanley. Fifteen feet away, its leathern case riven asunder by the same lightning bolt that had wrought havoc with the plans of Blair Stanley, lay "the diamond from the sky," shivered into minute fragments.

Six months after the heir to the Dorking millions had cleared his title to the fortune through Marmaduke Smyth's unremitting efforts, Louise Grafton having accompanied the lad to London, Robert Holgate was shot and killed in a brawl at the Fairfax hotel bar. Perhaps that may be one reason why Miss Grafton disposed of her Virginia properties and took up her residence abroad.

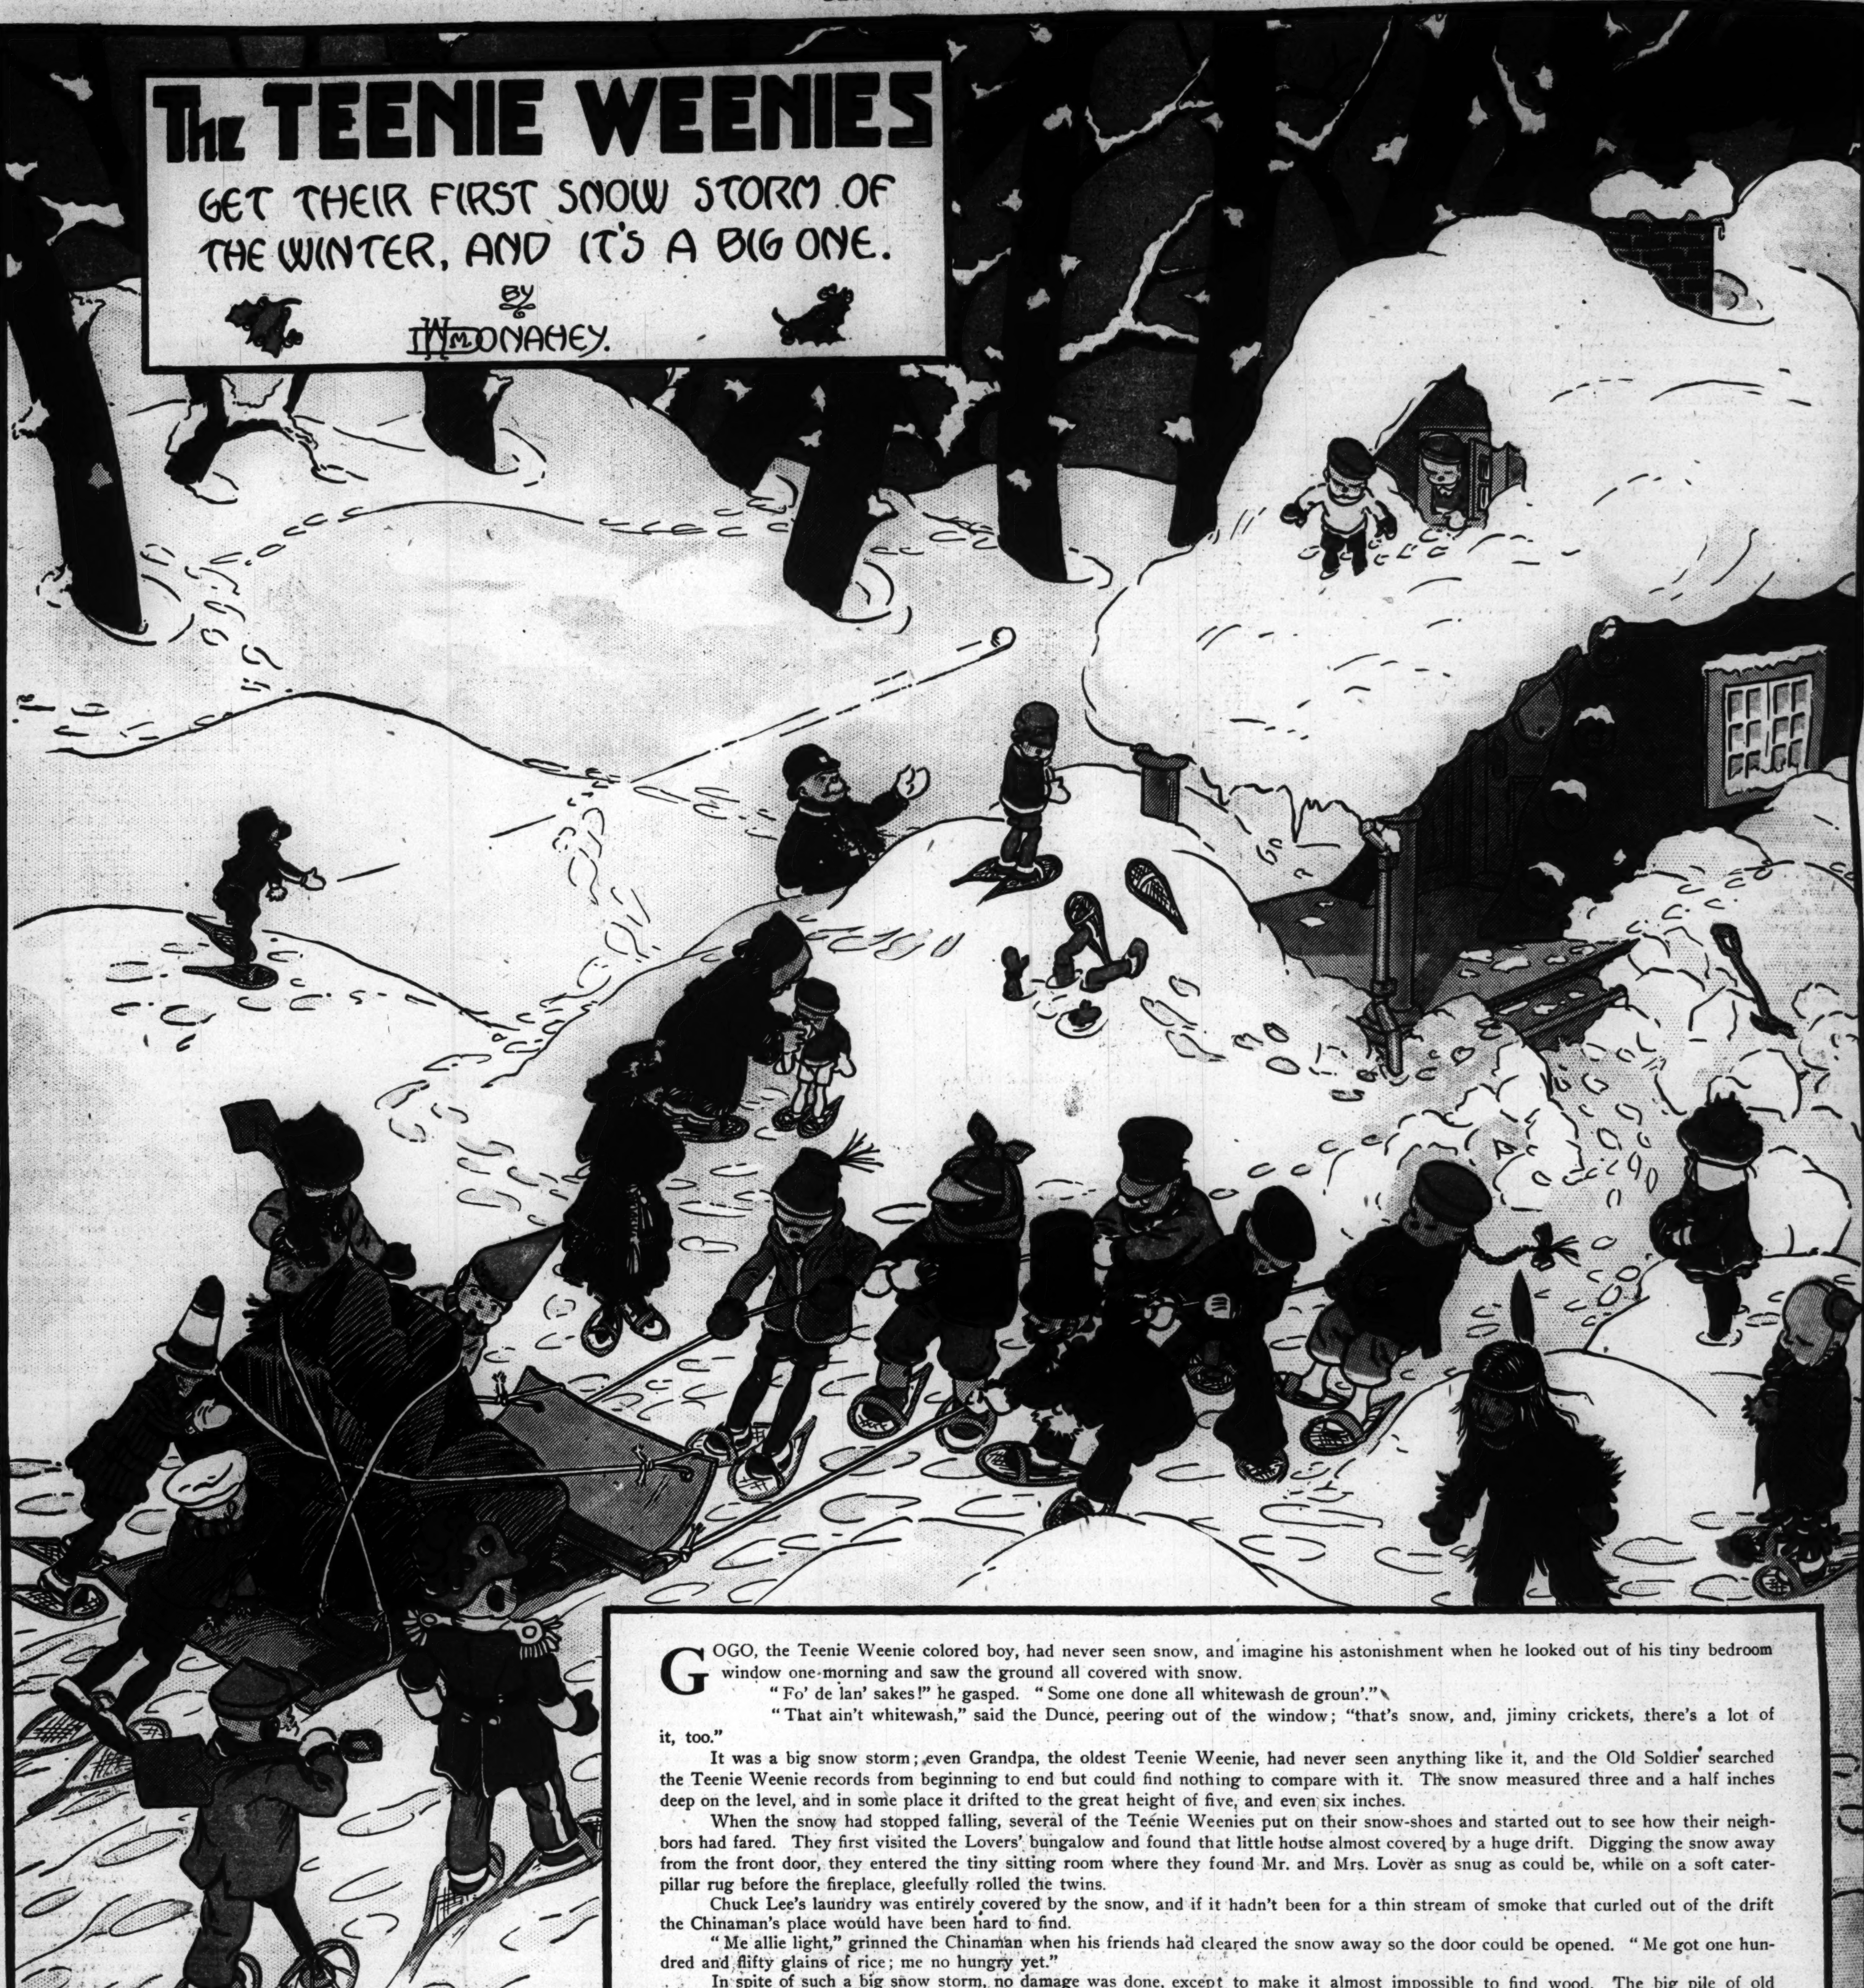
The TEENIE WEENIES

GET THEIR FIRST SNOW STORM OF THE WINTER, AND IT'S A BIG ONE.

BY
WM. DONAHEY.



GOGO, the Teenie Weenie colored boy, had never seen snow, and imagine his astonishment when he looked out of his tiny bedroom window one morning and saw the ground all covered with snow.

"Fo' de lan' sakes!" he gasped. "Some one done all whitewash de groun'."

"That ain't whitewash," said the Dunce, peering out of the window; "that's snow, and, jiminy crickets, there's a lot of it, too."

It was a big snow storm; even Grandpa, the oldest Teenie Weenie, had never seen anything like it, and the Old Soldier searched the Teenie Weenie records from beginning to end but could find nothing to compare with it. The snow measured three and a half inches deep on the level, and in some place it drifted to the great height of five, and even six inches.

When the snow had stopped falling, several of the Teenie Weenies put on their snow-shoes and started out to see how their neighbors had fared. They first visited the Lovers' bungalow and found that little house almost covered by a huge drift. Digging the snow away from the front door, they entered the tiny sitting room where they found Mr. and Mrs. Lover as snug as could be, while on a soft caterpillar rug before the fireplace, gleefully rolled the twins.

Chuck Lee's laundry was entirely covered by the snow, and if it hadn't been for a thin stream of smoke that curled out of the drift the Chinaman's place would have been hard to find.

"Me allie light," grinned the Chinaman when his friends had cleared the snow away so the door could be opened. "Me got one hundred and flifty glains of rice; me no hungry yet."

In spite of such a big snow storm, no damage was done, except to make it almost impossible to find wood. The big pile of old matches that had been stacked behind the kitchen began to rapidly disappear, for the greedy little fireplace fairly ate up the logs almost as fast as they could be thrown on.

"This will never do," said the General as he looked thoughtfully into the fireplace. "We've burned twelve matches and half a lead pencil in the last half hour, and the first thing we know we'll be out of wood and then we'll freeze to death. I wish we had put in a supply of coal instead of all wood; coal burns much slower and gives just as much heat."

"Why not get some coal now?" asked the Doctor.

"Where could we find coal now with all this snow on the ground?" said the General.

"See that telephone pole over there?" cried the Doctor, pointing out of the Teenie Weenie window. "Well, right by the side of that pole is a big piece of coal. I saw a boy throw it at a dog last week and that's why I remember it."

"Well, let's get the sled out and go after it," said the General.

"Der schled von't do," cried the Dutchman. "Der runners vill sink in der shnow un den ve can not pull it."

"Jinks! the Dutchman's right!" exclaimed the Doctor. "We could never pull that hunk of coal on the sled."

"Now, if I had a piece of cardboard," said the Turk, "I could make a sled that would travel over this deep snow."

"Out back of the school house is a great big piece," shouted the Dunce. "G-g-gogo and I were g-g-g-going to build a house out of it to keep a couple of hickory nuts in that we found, but you're welcome to it, i-i-if you want it."

Putting on their snow shoes, a crowd of the little people hurried out to the school house, where they soon dug up the cardboard and after the Turk had nailed a strong frame to it, they all set out in search of the piece of coal. After much digging, prying and pulling the little men at last got a huge piece of coal, almost as big as a lemon, fastened tightly to the sled.

The sled, being flat, did not sink into the soft snow, and by pulling the front end of the cardboard up with strings, the Teenie Weenies were able to pull the heavy piece of coal up to the shoe house. The coal was broken into pieces about the size of a raisin, and when a couple of these large pieces were piled onto the fire, the shoe house was kept as warm as toast.

WINTER comes and after a long dark night when the soft falling snow muffles the footfalls of belated citizens, a fairy world emerges in the dawn. Snow covered trees sparkle in the sunlight. Children's laughter is heard as snowballs are swiftly sent to their goal, and the love of winter sports—dormant for many months—swiftly awakens. Perhaps the most delightful as well as healthful is skating, and when it cannot be enjoyed outdoors, devotees of this sport throng to the rinks to gratify their desire for exercise.

To the ardent sportswoman, the practical qualities of her clothes are of the utmost importance, although beauty is never disdained. Today, however, these qualities go hand in hand, for there are wonderful materials from which sports costumes are evolved, and exquisite line and color are characteristic of such models.

On this page several fascinating modes are illustrated. At the left is a delightful costume fashioned from putty colored jersey. The skating breeches are elaborated with plain bone buttons, and the jacket—decidedly simple in style—is also decorated with buttons. A rare dash of color is found in the patent leather girdle, which is made of good sized blocks of black and emerald leather. High boots laced up the sides and a woolen cap with tassel trimmings complete this effective and thoroughly practical creation.

1. Putty color jersey and bone buttons with girdle of black and emerald patent leather.

2. (Upper) White glazed kid with lacings and leather tassels; opossum fur.

3. (Right) White jersey with tam cuffs and collar of crocheted wool and woolen pompons.

4. Costume of apple green velour, with wide pale gray leather belt. Gray lapin cap with fur pompons and jeweled earlaps.

To the right a handsome costume is illustrated. The long coat, fitting the figure quite snugly and falling in generous folds above the knees, is made of white glazed kid, for leather is frequently worn by the fashionably garbed skater. A clever color combination is achieved by the use of opossum fur, which is banded about the hem of the leather coat, while the collar and cuffs are also made of this warm looking fur. A novel style touch is revealed in the leather facing finished with tassels of the same, which give character to this coat. The close fitting hood developed from leather is trimmed with dainty touches of fur.

White jersey is chosen for the pleasing one piece dress at the right, for this well liked style is much in evidence and is admirably suited for skating. Noteworthy in this creation is the sweater style collar, which, by the way, is fashioned from crocheted wool, the back and front being held in place by woolen pompons. The cuffs are also made of wool, as well as the jaunty tam, that may be pulled closely down over the ears whenever its wearer so elects. Two large slip-in pockets are found in the fishtail yoke that tops the skirt and these will not be despised when the dainty fingers of the skater realize their need of warmth.

Admirable for snow shoeing or tobogganing is the costume shown on the seated figure. A lovely shade of apple green velour is favored for the organization of this model. The coat is designed with a loose panel front, while the cut away fronts beneath this appendage gradually lengthen as they encircle the figure. A wide leather belt—pale gray in shade—with a hammered brass buckle, defines the waistline, and the cap of dyed lapin in a lovely tone of gray is topped with a fur pompon. Jeweled burlaps appliqued on the fur bring a sparkle of color to this cap that is excellently suited to resist the bitter winds of winter.

MEN AND WOMEN

DURING 1915 one divorce was granted to every eight marriages in Chicago. Cook county has one of the highest, if not the highest, divorce rate of any county in the United States. The United States leads all other countries excepting Japan in number of divorces. Cook county, therefore, has the unenviable reputation (with this one exception) of being the divorce Mecca of the world. The ease with which divorces may be obtained in Chicago is undoubtedly responsible for this phenomenon.

The Divorce Proctor.

Figures compiled by Mrs. Gertrude Howe Britton, head of the county social welfare bureau, indicate that a large number of divorces are obtained through collusion, for 92 per cent of the 1915 decrees were entered after the failure of defendants to appear in court.

In a civil suit the law requires that the defendant be notified of the suit. This notification may consist of either personal service or service by announcing the suit publicly by advertising it in a newspaper. During the years 1914 and 1915 about 40 per cent of the defendants in the divorce suits were notified through newspaper publications. Of this group there is no way of knowing whether or not the defendants saw the published notices. It is probable that some of those who were not personally notified did actually know that they were being sued. There was no contest and hence a divorce by default was secured in 92 per cent of all the divorces granted. Collusion seems the only explanation for the lack of defense in a great number of these cases.

Three-fourths of all the complainants in divorce proceedings are women, which Mrs. Britton accounts for partly because of the fact that it is easier to get a divorce when a woman is complainant.

A divorce proctor is recommended by Mrs. Britton as a means of decreasing the number of divorces. His duties would be to properly guard the interest of the community against fraud or neglect. "Each of these court divisions should be provided with one or more proctors," says Mrs. Britton, "whose duty should be to interview applicants for divorce before trials and collect such information on each case as the court might direct where the court had any reason to think that all of the facts necessary to a proper disposition of the case would not be or had not been presented."

In Kansas City the divorce court proctor inaugurated in 1911 has been tried and found successful enough to reduce the number of divorces from 1,500 to 1,200 a year. A further duty of the proctor is to patch up the difficulties out of the divorce court wherever it is possible, and this was found to have most happy results in Kansas City.

Certainly the proctor deserves a tryout—anything to help eliminate the undesirable opprobrium its easy divorce system has earned for the Cook county courts.

Age Limit Fallacy.

The problem of men of 40 and over and their usefulness in the commercial field forces public attention again with the organization in Chicago of an employment committee to find jobs for these so-called "young old men."

Anthony Trollope wrote a story with the purpose of proving the fallacy of calling a man old at 60. Four young men made an agreement to perform the "happy dispatch" when they reached that age. The misery of decrepit old age was pictured vividly at the time of the compact and 60 seemed far off, indeed. However, as these four men approached the 60 mark a very human change resulted. The oldest of the four developed various symptoms of rejuvenation and spoke and acted as if a long life, extending many years past the 60 year limit, was ahead of him, so that it seemed the most absurd thing in the world to think of doing away with himself. He was, of course, laughed at by the others, but each in turn developed similar symptoms, and finally the compact was dissolved by mutual agreement.

Perhaps Dr. Osler had this story in mind when he attempted the humorous but woefully misunderstood reference to chloroforming persons at a certain age. At all events, the point about the rejuvenation of the four men in Trollope's story is that it was a change of mental attitude which produced the result.

No man wishes to grow old or be put on the shelf. But the trouble lies in the fact that the majority of men do not know how to avoid what in America especially is believed to be inevitable. They may realize that a change of mental attitude is necessary, but they don't know how to effect the change, because they regulate their lives upon the ordered actions of their neighbors.

In a community where all about you expect you to grow old, where you unquestionably believe you must grow old, you do grow old, and you show it in mind and body, and the age limit is introduced to avoid argument and get you quietly out of the way. The workings of the economic and industrial systems in America make it at first sight appear almost useless for the older man to fight them. But it is, after all, the survival of the fittest. And there is no necessity to believe that the number of birthdays a man has impairs his "fitness" if he would survive. Birthdays and old age are not the same thing unless you allow custom, belief, and the mental suggestion of others to amalgamate them into one and the same thing. The records of thousands of men in business today disprove totally the theory that years and old age are the same thing.

The moral to be got out of this frequently recurring question of usefulness and the age limit is the early recognition of the law of progress and the training of the mental attitude to 80 or 100 as old age instead of 45 or 50, having in mind a definite work you intend to accomplish before you begin to think of the end. The finding of the quickest and easiest way of doing things, keeping abreast of the most up to the minute measures, increased powers, more knowledge, physical fitness, and general efficiency will follow this mental attitude naturally and easily.

ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

Doris Blake Says

If you were born this week you are Too Active.

This department appears every day in "The Daily Tribune."

IF your birthday falls during the week beginning today, you are in that "in between" state called the cusp, for with Dec. 22 you pass from the influence of Sagittarius to that of Capricorn. You may still retain the qualities of the archer and dart your piercing shots with perfect aim, or you may be a bit more careful of the other fellow's feelings and keep your views more to yourself.

If born before Dec. 22, you are apt to "despise the day of small things," and to live too much in the realm of big things. As a result you sometimes undertake more than you can accomplish. You need to take more rest and more frequent recreation.

When you fall in love, it is to stay, but you are not apt to fall in love at first sight. Domestic in taste, there is nothing you love more than to make your home a beauty spot, and to bring happiness to those dear to you. You are just to all, true to your friends, and always anxious to please. Never can you be called a busybody, for you much prefer to keep your own affairs to yourself and to have others do the same. You never do a thing because some one else does, nor believe a thing because some one tells you so.

If born after Dec. 23, you are more under the influence of the sign for which the symbol is the goat, Capricorn. Great thinkers with the power of expressing themselves brilliantly have been born during this part of the sign. If a theologian, you are larger than your creed, but even though you may startle some members of your audience, they often find themselves convinced you are right. For every one feels strongly that you have the courage of your convictions and that you are thoroughly convinced as to the truthfulness of your ideas.

You are a natural teacher and not only can you drive home your teachings in a simple, easy, and pleasing way but you also win the love of all your pupils. In all your criticisms you are just and kindly. No matter if you do have a few dark moods, you hold the love of all those associated with you, even if you enter the business world where you may not do things according to cut and dried rules. But you are always accurate, though inclined to be a bit reckless and headstrong.

Inasmuch as you like to be associated with big business schemes, it is only natural that you would want to amass a fortune, and more often than not you succeed. Your wide acquaintanceship and tremendous reserve power help immensely towards accomplishing this end. You depend on your head to accomplish your success and the working out of your mental plans occupies your time to the exclusion of much manual work. In fact, you seem to need wealth to expand to your greatest capabilities and you will be rendered unhappy by poverty. Some folks call you "proud poor" and say you would keep up appearances till you starved if poverty should overtake you.

> Have you a perplexing love affair in which you need the counsel of a friend? Write Doris Blake, care "The Sunday Tribune." If you wish a personal reply send stamped and addressed envelope.

Like your neighbor, Sagittarius, you of this week retain the prophetic powers so marked in this preceding sign. In line with this attribute is an idealism almost spiritual in its development.

You need companionship and positively dislike being left alone. A happy union will be one with Taurus, April 21-May 21, or with Libra, Sept. 24-Oct. 23. Genius and power, they say, go with a marriage to Virgo, Aug. 24-Sept. 23.

Besides being such a success as a teacher or a minister, you may prove to be successful also in the commercial lines, either as a bookkeeper or in managing large sums of money or estates.

Your colors are maroon, brown, silver, and black; birthstone, "by those in sign of Capricorn born, no gem save garnets should be worn." You will be most fortunate during the two weeks beginning Oct. 14 and May 27.

"Dear Miss Blake: What you do if you were in love with a girl and some other fellow try to butt in? What you do? FLOYD."

Floyd, I would stick in the race. That is what I would do if I were fond enough of the girl. You cannot fight a duel with him as they used to do centuries ago to settle a question like this, but if you want to, you can lead him a pretty hot pursuit. And here's hoping you win!

"Dear Miss Blake: I am a girl of 14 (almost 15) and would like to know if it is proper for girls of my age to go to shows and walking with fellows we know well, or rather pretty well, if a bunch of two or three couples go. "S. L."

If you go in a party, not pair off couples, it is all right to have the boy's companionship; but it is not right for you little school children to get the notion into your heads that you have a "steady" or anything like that for your walks and shows.

"Dear Miss Blake: I am a girl of 18. I have been going out with a man 25 years old. Is it proper for me to do so? I love him dearly. Do you think he is too old for me? He also wants to kiss me good-night. Is that all right? M."

When he proposes marriage to you it is time enough for you to accept kisses; not before. If you love each other it is all right for you to go out together. I don't think that 25 is too old for 18, but I do think 18 is too young to be treating matrimony seriously.

William was fond of riding in the front seat of the automobile and was quite interested in how it was run. The kindergarten had been treated every Friday to a concert on the graphophone, consisting of nursery rhymes and music suitable for little folks. One Friday the teacher not receiving her usual supply of kindergarten records and not wishing to disappoint the little folks, decided to play for them some records she had on hand. The first of these happened to be a celebrated tenor singing, and she thought she would see just what the children thought of it. So without explaining what it was she put the record on and played it for them. When she had finished she asked: "Now, children, what did you hear? Who'll tell me what the record sounded like?" Then one little lad, almost bursting with enthusiasm and earnestness, said, "A bull." U.

Chester had just started school, and was interested in his new task. One day the teacher called on him to recite, but on receiving no answer she called again. Still no answer. Finally she became impatient and said: "Chester, why don't you answer me?" At this Chester, with a puzzled look on his face, said: "I'm thinkin'." K. M.

One evening recently I went out for a short while, leaving my little son with his father. While I was away Billy went into the pantry and upset a dish of raspberry jam on his white middy blouse. When I returned he was in bed, but not asleep, so I went in to speak to him. His father called from the other room and said, "Son, shall we tell mother what you did while she was gone?" Billy was still for a minute, and then said: "Let's not, daddy; it would just make her feel bad." E. A. H.

"My trouble started by using another person's towel who had eczema. First I had it on my right hand and it spread to my left, and it looked awful. It formed in a red rash and my hands were inflamed and when I would go into the open air they would break out and burn, and red spots formed. I could not do my work on account of the itching and burning and I would scratch my hands all the time.

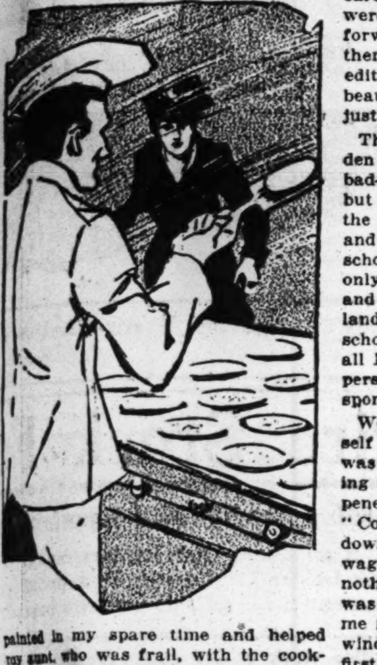
Real Love Stories

This department appears every day in "The Daily Tribune."

ART AND PANCAKES.

NELL and I grew up in the same small town in Iowa. Nell was clever with her pen, and I liked to wield a brush and wear flowing ties. Since we were the only dreamers in that burg we depended a good deal on each other.

Being a girl and a dreamer isn't so bad. But being a boy and a dreamer! It took considerable fighting to prove to the little toughs that I was no sissy, in spite of the fact that I sketched and painted in my spare time and helped my aunt, who was frail, with the cooking. By the time I had licked them good they were ready to let me cook all I wanted to.



Nell graduated from the high school and was using her pen teaching country school, and I was pouring my artistic leanings into the paint and paper hanging business which my uncle owned. My parents were dead, and Uncle Jed and Aunt Patience had no children. Of course they thought my ambition to be an artist was all bosh—to put it mildly.

Nobody but Nell knew that I spent Sundays off in the woods doing landscapes, and I was the only one who knew about the novel Nell was writing. She kept it locked away in a tin box safe from her landlady's prying eyes. Nell wanted to go to New York to write, and I wanted to go to learn how to paint, the difference being that Nell saved and went, while I was tied to the business by my uncle's death, which left me as Aunt Patience's only prop.

Of course I was "gone" on Nell, but I couldn't say so—first, because I didn't have anything much to offer, and second, because I knew that she would never take anything that meant staying in Bluehill.

> Do you know a real love story—one that is stranger than fiction? It is the idea that is wanted. No attention will be paid to literary style. "The Tribune" will pay $5 for every story published. Manuscripts will not be returned. Address Doris Blake, "The Tribune," Chicago.

I pegged along in the hope of following her, buoyed up by her wonderfully clever letters, but I wasn't at all good, though regular, at letter writing. I just about lived on those letters, which were frequent at first and then dwindled off to mere notes and occasional post cards. Then nothing, and my letters were returned with "Not here, and no forwarding address" written across them. Of course I knew some brainy editor had won her away—Nell is a beauty, no doubt about that. I was just eating my heart out.

Then I lost Aunt Patience with a sudden stroke of apoplexy. I felt mighty bad—she was always so good to me—but now I could hunt for Nell. I sold the paper hanging business for a song, and spent most of the "song" in an art school in New York, where it took me only a year to run through my money and to discover that I could never paint landscapes. When I was not at the school I walked the streets, watching all I passed for Nell. Of course I tried personals in the papers, but no response.

Well, when I was on my uppers myself and wondering where my next meal was coming from—I had been wondering for about twenty-four hours—I happened to pass a restaurant with a sign "Cook wanted." It was a fearful comedown, but I hadn't saved Uncle Jed the wages of a "hired girl" for years for nothing, so I went in, and they said I was a "whiz" at that job. They had me in a white outfit, cap and all, in the window making pancakes before the first week was over.

I intended to stay at it until I had enough for another year at the art school, where I wanted to try my hand at cartoons. When I wasn't too rushed I looked out occasionally at the crowd that watched me, because I liked to study faces.

One day when I glanced around, there was Nell, with her face close to the window—such a thin, wan, hollow cheeked Nell, and such a look of hungry longing in her eyes fixed on the nicely browned pancake which I, thunderstruck fool, was holding up in the air on the turner. Noticing the pause she glanced up at the pancake maker.

Well, I guess she had all the pancakes she could eat for the next week until we were married. Luckily for me the editors hadn't appreciated her stories, and pride kept her from writing me. But we've forgotten all that now. I'm a photographer for the movies, and every now and then Nell does a good scenario. If little Billy and Betsy ever want a coat of arms, it's gong to be a hot cake poised on a pancake turner, so Nell insists, in spite of my manly blushes.

MARION HARLAND'S HELPING·HAND

by MARION HARLAND

This department appears every day in "The Daily Tribune."

When an address or other information is wanted by mail a stamped, addressed envelope should accompany the request. Please do not send parcels to the newspaper office.

Alone and Friendless.

"I SHOULD like to get acquainted with some nice English people. I am a working girl of a rather reticent nature. I find it hard to get acquainted here. I have lived in the States practically three years and have no friends. And one does get so lonely at times. I love reading and sewing, and while away many hours in that way. But sometimes I long unspeakably for a few friends. I have tried going to churches in my neighborhood, and as yet have not been successful in meeting any one. I have lost loved ones at home in this great war. I am trying hard to be brave over my trials. A friend advised me to write to your helpful Corner.

"BEATRICE M."

In another passage of a letter which is, we regret, too long to print in full, our correspondent tells of being at a concert some night before and overhearing English people who sat next to her "talking of dear old England until I could hardly refrain from speaking to them." Who of us does not enter into the yearning that possessed her soul? I wish she had so far transgressed the convention as to let her neighbors know that she was their countrywoman. It could have done no harm. It might have given pleasure to them as to her. Will not some nice Englishwoman send to us for the address of Beatrice M.? Her Christmas in a strang land is sad enough. Cast a little light across the shaded surface by writing to her and letting her know that you acknowledge the tie that binds you together through your common love for "dear old England."

Something Worth Remembering.

"Your page always gives me something worth remembering and my thanks come to you weekly. S. M. B."

These thanks belong to the Cornerites even more than they do to me, since it is undoubtedly from their communications that the correspondent has derived the help of which she speaks. We are all glad to know when we have been of service and it is only due to the constituency to put this acknowledgment in the Corner. Let me express my thanks for my share of the message.

Baby Wants a Doll.

"Will you send to me the address of Mrs. D. M. C., who offers a doll for a little one? I will gladly pay postage in order to get a doll for my baby.

"MRS. A. T. J."

I am sorry to say that the doll offered has already been given away. Has not some other Cornerite a doll in her nursery that could be sent to the baby of Mrs. A. T. J.? I will send her address on the receipt of request.

Much Promised the Poor.

"I am so sorry I cannot get the address of Mrs. P. M. C. Perhaps she will write again, as she is one of the deaf shut-ins, too. So am I, to a large extent, although not entirely deaf. I also have lots to be thankful for and many, many blessings. This is a dear, grand, glorious old world—in spots, anyway! We must make the best of our lives and if we are shut-ins we must do our share in entertaining and learn to hold up our end of the plan in the world's work. Sing a cheerful song, keep busy, and just be glad. Aunt Millie says that if she could only walk more she would be so happy and that her dropsy keeps her sitting still most of the time. If I could get her address I would tell her of something to help her. Those good, cheerful letters written by the deaf to the deaf—how we do enjoy them! They are gems of cheerfulness and wisdom. When we come to think of it, the poor and the afflicted should be the most cheerful and hopeful, happy people on earth; there are so many sweet promises for them all through the Bible, more than to any one else.

V. M."

This is a good word of cheer with which to lead off the letters for the day, and it will be seen, I trust, by those to whom it will bring real comfort. I have not Aunt Millie's address, but she may see this letter and write to me for the address of V. M. I have not printed a.. the latter said about the help she has for dropsy, for we do not advocate remedies of any sort.

Five Girls in This Family.

"I wish girls having ribbons they can spare would send me some. I would gladly pay postage on them. We are poor and my father has all he can do to earn our living, so I cannot afford to buy ribbons for myself. There are five girls in our family, also a baby boy, and I would be pleased to have dress patterns from my size, 10, and for a girl 6 years old. I would be glad to do some crochet work in exchange.

"L. W."

The ribbons will probably be forthcoming and I shall be glad to give the address of L. W. to any one who writes for it. I am sorry I cannot print the other request she made, but so many large articles have been asked for of late that I must call a halt. We are all glad to help in any way we can, but there is such a thing as carrying matters too far and making too heavy demands upon the generosity and good will of our constituency. It is not fair to beg for large and costly pieces of furniture and the like and it is discouraging to the Cornerites to read such appeals that they know it is practically impossible to gratify.

In Need of Clothing.

"It is with great hesitation that I write this, but I have a large family and my husband has been out of work for a long time. I have five children, the two youngest are boys and the girls are 14, 11, and 6 years old respectively. We have had a good deal of sickness. I write to ask if you know of any one who has any old clothing. I would appreciate it so much. I would gladly pay parcel post for some, as the winter is here. We live away out in the country.

"MRS. D. W."

As I said recently and have repeated often, I do not like to ask for clothing. It is rather against the principles of the Corner, for if I begin doing it we will be overwhelmed with requests of this kind. But the thought of a family out in the country, where the husband is out of work and the children are insufficiently clothed, has made an appeal to me and I am again departing from the usual custom in order to make this appeal known. If any one wishes the address of this correspondent and will write for it, I will send the information at once. I shall hope to receive applications from those who can be of real help to Mrs. D. W.

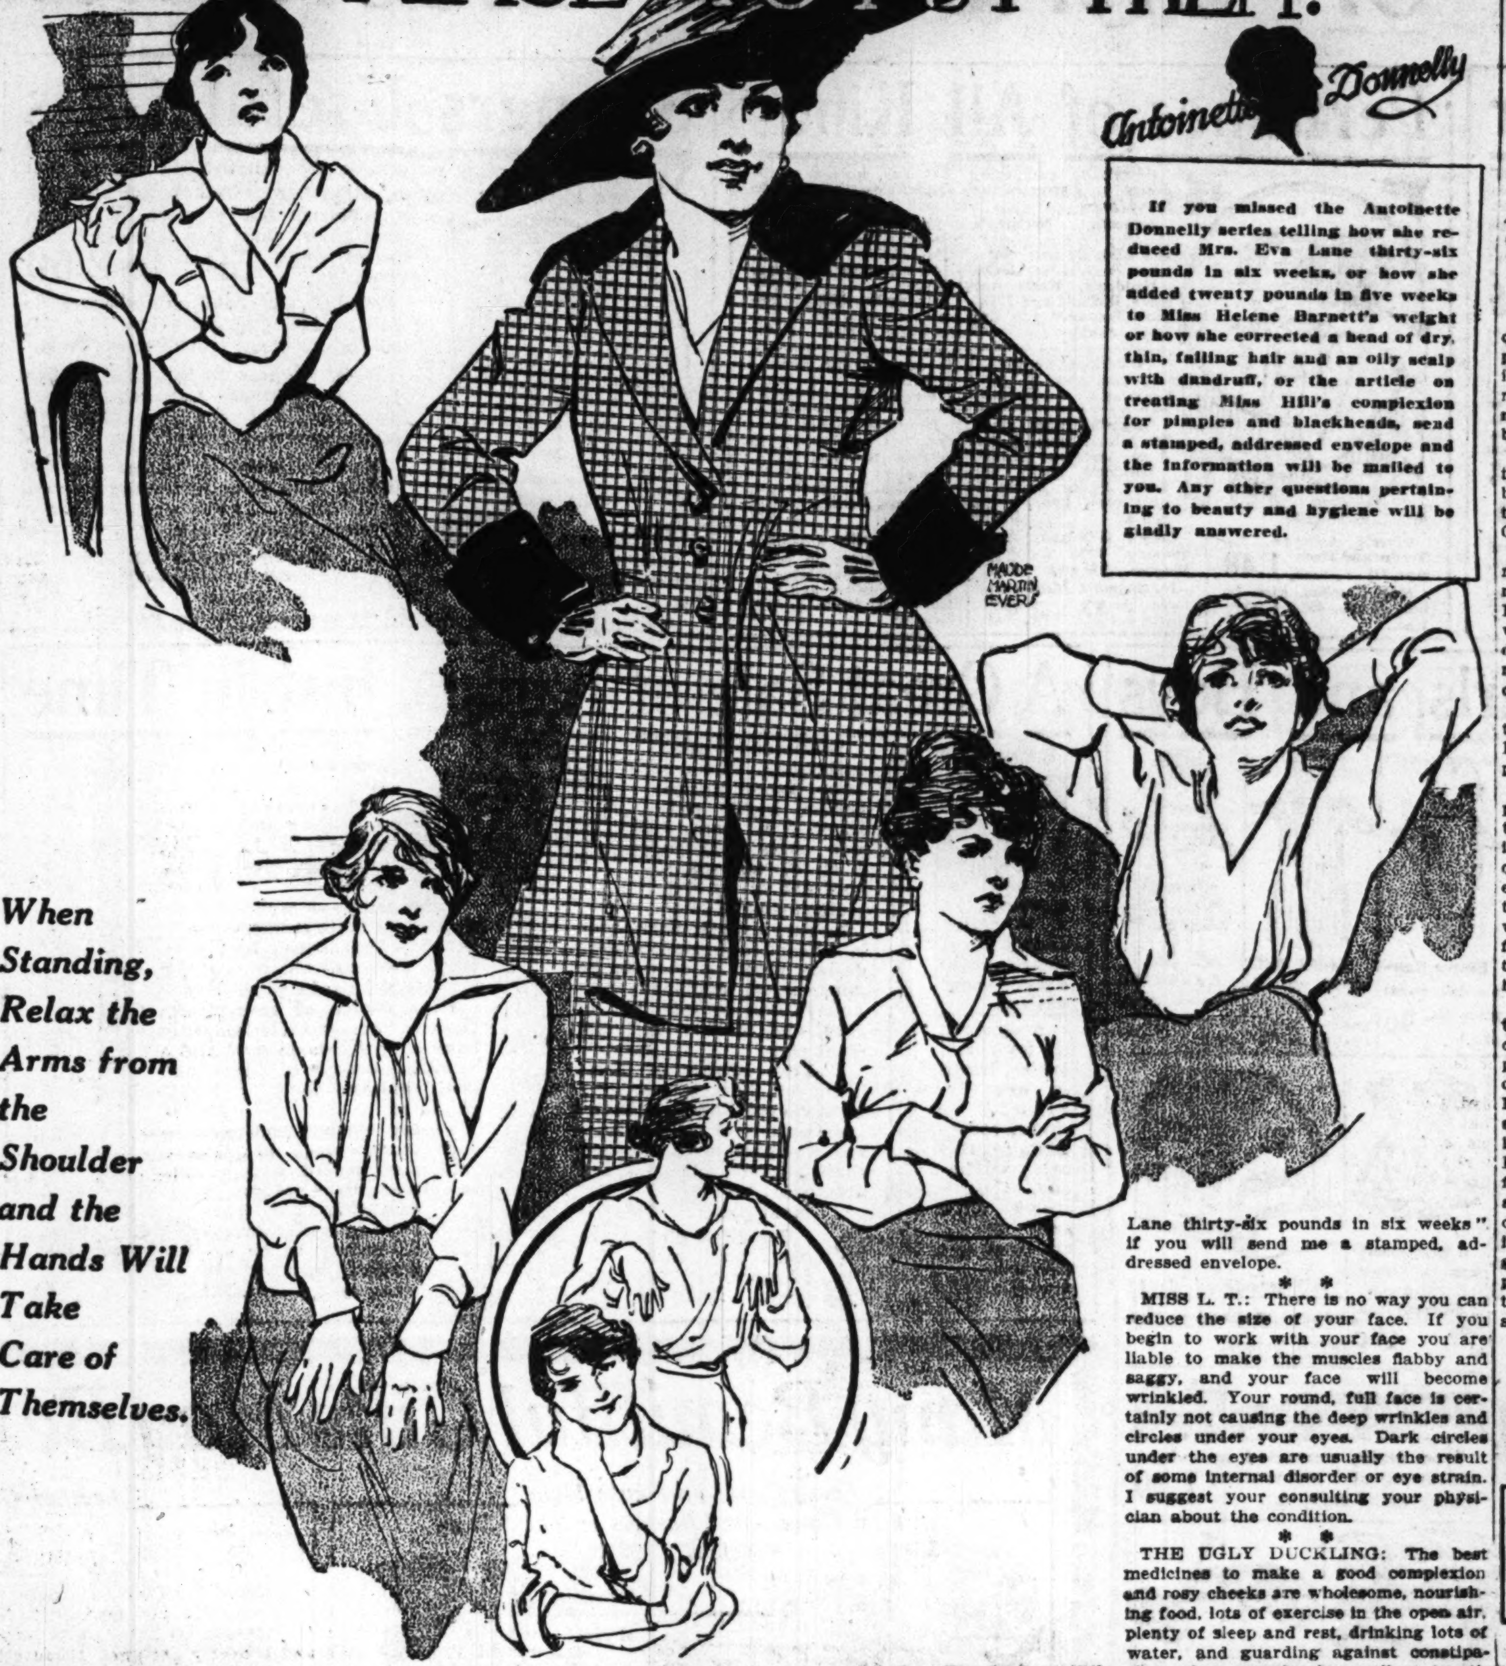
Old Magazines Wanted.

"Please send me the address of B., who offers magazines. I would like much to have them and would gladly pay postage.

M. M."

Unfortunately the magazines offered had been given away before this letter came. Will not come one else grant the request? I will send the address on request

HANDS, HANDS, EVERYWHERE—AND NOT A PLACE TO PUT THEM! says Antoinette Donnelly



When Standing, Relax the Arms from the Shoulder and the Hands Will Take Care of Themselves.

> If you missed the Antoinette Donnelly series telling how she reduced Mrs. Eva Lane thirty-six pounds in six weeks, or how she added twenty pounds in five weeks to Miss Helene Barnett's weight or how she corrected a head of dry, thin, falling hair and an oily scalp with dandruff, or the article on treating Miss Hill's complexion for pimples and blackheads, send a stamped, addressed envelope and the information will be mailed to you. Any other questions pertaining to beauty and hygiene will be gladly answered.

This department appears every day in "The Daily Tribune."

HOW to dispose of one's hands gracefully is a problem not confined to the feminine side of life. But man has his trousers pockets to hide his hands in when he doesn't know what else to do with them. The pockets of the last season or two that Fashion has kindly donated toward the cause provided a little more ease for the woman who doesn't know what to do with her hands. But the fashion threatens to be made extinct before long and again up will come the query: "Where shall I put them?"

Few women know what to do with their hands, during idle moments, I mean, because the modern woman cannot be accused of not knowing what to turn her hands to in a capable way. Women on the stage are the best object lesson from which to learn how to hold and use the hands gracefully. There can be no rules laid down except that you must relax and forget your hands entirely if you want to strike a graceful pose of them. The minute you become conscious of them they assume awkward angles and gestures. Exactly like your feet they are in this respect, although we will say for the hands that their positions cannot attain such vulgarity as feet posture we have seen. But they can offend, though, with their very awkwardness and their self-consciousness.

Haven't you carried away after meeting folk for the first time an impression of ugly hands and on later acquaintance found the hands were not as much at fault as the manner of their holding?

In order to put grace into the movements of the hands there must be complete relaxation of both hands and arms and then the attempt to make the hands as inconspicuous as possible. Fidgeting with beads and purse and so on, placing hands on the face, or wearing them crossed in a hug-me-tight clutch at the waist or spread out flat on the knees, or akimbo on the hips, are positions never conducive to flattering the hands.

A graceful hand position may be struck when you sit down by laying one hand palm upward inside the palm of the other or the palm of the lower hand upward and the other hand folded across it.

When standing, relax the arm from the shoulder and the hands will take care of themselves, provided you keep them off your hips or do not force them into some grotesque position.

Let your mirror do a little criticizing on the matter. Don't be ashamed to stand in front of it and practice graceful hand positions. You can be sure that the women of the stage, whose business it is to hold their hands gracefully, didn't acquire their special appeal without practice. It's worth the effort because when you do run across a pair of manageable, good looking, well poised hands you appreciate what a desirable asset they are.

But not in grace alone is the secret of good looking hands. They must be well kept. The nails must be clean and well shaped and free from hangnails and so on.

If you give your nails five minutes' care each day and thorough manicuring once a week your hands will always be presentable. You can easily train yourself to be your own manicurist.

The instruments needed for the weekly manicure are a good, slender nail file, a pair of fine cuticle nail scissors, an emery board, an orange wood stick, cuticle knife, a chamois buffer, a small bottle of peroxide, castile soap, absorbent cotton, nail rouge, polishing powder, a glass bowl large enough to hold a quart of water in which to immerse the hands, and a nail brush. Never use a metal instrument, and don't use the scissors for cutting the nails. The nail file is the proper instrument for trimming the nails.

After the nails have been filed and shaped becomingly, dip one hand in the bowl of water in which the castile soap has been used to make a suds. Let it remain in the water for about five minutes, then remove and dry gently. With absorbent cotton wrapped around the sharp end of the orange wood stick, dip into the peroxide bleach, then gently rub this swab under the edge of the nail to remove the dirt or stain. Be careful in doing this not to injure in any way the delicate cuticle below the nail.

Wipe the finger tips dry and proceed to smooth the edges of the nail with the emery board. The emery board is really a file, only it is finer and more delicate than a metal instrument. Proceed to remove all roughness with the emery board, looking carefully to the removal of hang nails. If the hang nails are stubborn, resort to the cuticle scissors.

Go after the cuticle at the base of the nail. With the flat end of the orange wood stick crowd back the cuticle that has grown upward on the lower section of the nail. Then take the cuticle knife and scrape away the loosened skin. If you find that the skin does not come away, use the cuticle scissors and cut it away carefully. Then rub a little cold cream upon the nail and the upper surface of the finger end. Then go over all the fingers with the cuticle scissors and remove all ragged edges of the skin. Next remove the cold cream from the nails.

Now dip the small buffer into the nail powder. Next touch the surface of each nail with nail rouge; follow this by applying a touch of polishing powder to each nail. Also put a liberal supply of powder on the chamois buffer. Rub the buffer briskly on the body of the nail from side to side.

Again place the hands in a bowl of water and with a nail brush and a little soap scrub the finger tips well to remove the powder from the nail crevices. Then give the nails a final polishing with a small quantity of the polishing powder in the palm of your hand and rubbing until the desired gloss has been acquired.

For the daily care of your hands, keep the orange wood stick on hand wrapped with a [illegible] of absorbent cotton. Dip into a glass of soapy water in which a few drops of peroxide have been added and go under the nails. Also gently push back the skin from the nail, then apply a little polish either with a buffer or the palm of your hand.

Answers to Inquiries.

STELLA E. J.: Here is a list of things fat persons can eat: Roast beef, steak, mutton, lamb; in fact, all kinds of meat except pig in any form; game of every description, and fish, lobsters, oysters, clams, etc.; nearly every kind of fruit; salad of most vegetables without cream, butter, and oil dressings; mushrooms, tomatoes, cucumbers, celery, pickles, olives, string beans, spinach, cabbage, turnips, cauliflower, brussels sprouts, beets, carrots, squash, endives, artichokes, radishes, lettuce, parsnips, onions, asparagus, and almost all other green vegetables. When eating of the foods just mentioned you must remember that you must be reasonably moderate, eating only when you are hungry. Do not drink with your meals. I shall be glad to send you my full instructions on "How I reduced Mrs. Eva Lane thirty-six pounds in six weeks" if you will send me a stamped, addressed envelope.

MISS L. T.: There is no way you can reduce the size of your face. If you begin to work with your face you are liable to make the muscles flabby and saggy, and your face will become wrinkled. Your round, full face is certainly not causing the deep wrinkles and circles under your eyes. Dark circles under the eyes are usually the result of some internal disorder or eye strain. I suggest your consulting your physician about the condition.

THE UGLY DUCKLING: The best medicines to make a good complexion and rosy cheeks are wholesome, nourishing food, lots of exercise in the open air, plenty of sleep and rest, drinking lots of water, and guarding against constipation. Any exercise is excellent to stir up sluggish circulation. No, I should not use peroxide on my face, if I were you. Glycerin will not harm the face, neither will it cause a growth of hair, but there are many skins that cannot stand glycerin. I shall be glad to send you my formula for removing freckles, also my instructions on how I helped Helene Barnett increase her weight twenty pounds in five weeks, if you will send me a stamped, addressed envelope.

GERTRUDE E.: You did not send me a stamped, addressed envelope, neither did you give the name of the town in which you reside, consequently it was impossible for me to mail the formula for skin food and instructions for facial massage. Won't you come again?

IRMA: A girl with dark brown hair, brown eyes, and dark complexion with color can wear black, especially with color touches and ecru lace, velvet, cream and ivory white, golden brown and tan brown; pale and dark blue, dark green, silver gray, cardinal, crimson and clear red, almost any shade of yellow, pale coral, rose, and old rose.

* *

MRS. E.: You can remove warts with the following lotion: One dram of salicylic acid and one ounce flexible collodion. Mix well. Apply with a tiny camel's hair brush for four nights. Then soak in hot water. This will take away part of the horny covering. Continue the treatment until the wart has disappeared.

Just a Little Cuss Word.

He was my ideal—my hero come to life. He called once, twice, three times that first month. I was delighted, and employed every trick known to womankind to make him fall in love with me. I was making gratifying progress, and soon every Wednesday and Sunday evening found him sitting beside me on the davenport.

Hoping to win his heart more completely, I thought I would try the tummy route. I brought into our cheerful living room one day a tray filled with sandwiches and a steaming pot of hot chocolate, not forgetting the whipped cream that he liked. He anticipated my wish to place it upon a table and in jumping to assist me spilled the steaming drink upon my new chiffon gown.

I so far forgot myself for that first instant as to do what my two elder brothers frequently did. It was only one word, but my hero could not forget. He is married now to a girl I have always disliked, and I—I sit on the davenport and think of what might have been.

One of Her Lucky Days.

It had been one of the luckiest days in my life. The day had come when we went out tagging for a fund. A few girls and myself were sent out to a busy district. There I tried to strike almost every young man and I made one lucky strike. I happened to stop one stylish man and tried to tag him, but he only looked at me and smiled. Again I attempted it and said: "Well, if you do not want the tag, then, take the tagger." He smilingly answered: "O I'd love to take both." We are engaged to be married.

APPEARANCES ARE DECEIVING.

THE reputation which some firms and corporations have gained for being unusually generous about employés' salaries is often undeserved. Seemingly the notion is often formed because of the fact that a particular firm gives unusual service to its customers, has its offices and salesroom beautifully and expensively furnished, and requires that the employés be well dressed.

It is not only the public that is sometimes deceived by these outward signs, but often the workers themselves are taken in by them, as testified to by Anna G.'s letter, which follows:

"A prosperous and well known firm maintained a suite of beautifully furnished offices in the same building where I was employed. All the men who worked for this company were well dressed and prosperous looking, and the nine girls employed by it were the envy of all the other girls in the building.

"When I heard of an opening as secretary to one of the members of the firm I was delighted, and applied for the position on the spot.

"During the interview with my prospective employer, I was impressed with the idea that the position I was applying for was an unusual one, as the requirements were not only unusual but extraordinary. My long experience in the same line of work, and because I was highly recommended by a personal friend, finally outweighed his objection that I lacked a college education, and he expressed a willingness to hire me.

"Then the matter of salary was mentioned, and to say that I was 'bowled over' at the low figure he mentioned is putting it mildly. It took me a few seconds to collect my wits and tell him that I couldn't accept the secretaryship for a lower salary than I had been getting in an ordinary stenographic position. He seemed reluctant to let me go, and finally offered me the position at the same salary I had been getting for my other work, with a promise of a raise in the near future, providing I made good in the job. He waxed eloquent in pointing out a glowing future for me in the position. The following week I started to work for him.

"Six months later I asked for and was refused a raise. It was not until then that I remembered the story my employer had told me, when encouraging me to accept the position, about two girls who had formerly worked for the firm and now held important and lucrative positions with other concerns, nor had I attached any important significance to the fact that they were doing well—elsewhere! I felt stupid for having taken the position. I had been warned, but had failed to heed the warning!

"Against my better judgment I held on for six months longer, and only when I was coolly told that I was being paid more than they had ever paid any of their girls did I rise to the occasion, and quit.

"Here is this wealthy firm, lavishing money on office furniture and decoration, paying high salaries to the men (they nearly all own cars, and all belong to the swellest clubs in town), trying to retrench in so mean and inadequate a way as paying meager salaries to the women employés.

"I am telling you my experience in the hope that others may avoid being bluffed in the same way.

"ANNA G."

ETIQUETTE

by ELIZABETH VAN RENSSELAER

WHEN TO KEEP SILENT.

IT was once said of some famous man that "he could converse perfectly in four or five foreign languages, but that even better than that he could keep silent in seven." This art of knowing when not to talk is really a great one, and there are many times when it is imperative to keep still.

When an eminent man has engaged us in conversation we do not turn continually to our neighbor to pass some remark. That would be considered the height of rudeness, but it is no more uncivil than to persist in chattering through a lecture or sermon. At the theater, too, or even at our plebeian "movies," it is much better form not to talk and make comments with our companions on what we are seeing.

At concerts and operas conversation is absolutely prohibited during a performance, as it should be in many another place. However, in spite of the fact that there is not always a rule against talking, let us set a guard upon our lips, and strive to remember that what is boring us is not necessarily uninteresting to those about us, and that therefore we should respect their desire for silence.

J. S.: You are quite right in resenting the man's actions. Apart from the moral question, he evidently has no respect for courtesy and convention, and really seems hardly worth bothering about.

* *

X. Y. Z.: It is better form not to speak to a boy until you have been introduced, unless you are really a little girl of 10 or 12 years of age.

RUTH: When a woman or girl whom you do not know well has paid your car fare, it is always better to repay her, or at least offer to, unless she has especially asked you to accompany her.

MRS. H.: When you leave the table, having been a guest at dinner, you should not fold your napkin in its original creases. It should be placed inconspicuously at the right of your plate. It would be courteous to send flowers to the debutante on the day of her tea, but it is not absolutely necessary. Plain white note paper is the correct thing to use for answering invitations.

* *

MRS. A. H.: It would be quite correct for you to wear a dark blue taffeta dress with long sleeves and a fichu to an afternoon debut. A man should wear a morning coat, gray striped trousers, white shirt, gray socks, gray waistcoat, and gray tie to such an afternoon affair. It is not absolutely necessary to send the debutante any flowers, but it is a courteous thing to do. They should be sent to her home on the morning of the party. When you meet the debutante and her mother it is enough to say, "How do you do, Miss—or Mrs.—" and pass a polite remark on the attractiveness of the party, or what you will.

D. R.: The young man should not hold on to the young woman's arm unless possibly she needs assistance in walking on a slippery sidewalk or crossing an icy or crowded street. Even then it would be better form for her to take his arm. When one man and two women are walking together the man should not walk between the two women, but on the outside, nearest the street. If you are out with a young man it would be perfectly proper for you to have a sundae or soda with him.

* *

MRS. W. K.: At your daughter's wedding breakfast you might serve a "lap lunch" consisting of a timbale of chicken or eggs or sweetbread and creamed chicken in patty shells, a salad of tomato jelly on lettuce, two nice sandwiches, salted nuts, olives, and a cup of coffee. The bridal party should sit at a table and have place cards. The bride cuts the cake while the plates are changed for the ices and cake.

* *

T. H.: This is the correct way for an address to be written on envelope:

Mr. John Smith,
41 Main street,
Chicago, Ill.

MRS. G. G.: A widow or widower is supposed to wear mourning for two years after the death of his or her spouse. A widow is permitted more latitude than formerly in the matter of wearing the traditional "widow's weeds." Custom says at least six months for the mourning veil, but many are wise enough to lay it aside earlier, as it is an unwholesome article of wearing apparel, heavy, and tiring to the wearer. A parent usually wears mourning for at least a year after the death of a child. Black and white is what is called "half mourning," and is not suitable for the first months of this outward form of respect for the dead.

* *

S. L.: The reply to an invitation to a tea dance should be in the third person. No acknowledgment of a wedding announcement is necessary, but if an "at home" card was inclosed you should take the first opportunity to call on the bride on or after the date given on the card. Wedding announcements should be sent out by first mail after the ceremony.

How to Order Your Clotilde Patterns.

In ordering a waist the size should be determined by the bust measure. Give the bust measure. In ordering a skirt the size of the hip is more important than the size of the waist, but give both the hip and the waist measure. Ten cents for each waist, coat, or skirt.

In ordering misses' patterns the age should be stated—12, 14, 16, or 18 years. Ten cents for each waist, coat, skirt, or dress.

In ordering children's regular patterns order them by the age of the child. Ten cents each.

Clotilde's patterns are made in New York exclusively for "The Chicago Sunday Tribune" and may be obtained through no other service. A Chicago distribution office has been opened, and following this announcement orders will be filled on the day of receipt. An extra 2 cent stamp will allow for letter postage and will thereby hasten delivery. Patrons are requested to send stamps instead of dimes, as money is frequently lost in the mails.

The Guests' Impromptu Slumber.

My husband received a telephone message asking him to meet two of his friends from out of town at the depot.

Their train did not leave for the east until the next morning, so he, knowing we had a spare bedroom, asked them to remain with us over night, which they decided to do.

Unknown to my husband, the bed had been removed from the spare chamber and a new brass one was to take its place. As the maid had charge of this, I did not trouble myself about it.

Saturday evening the tired travelers came and were shown to their room. Can you imagine my husband's embarrassment when he went up to call them to breakfast to find them lying on the mattress on the floor? X. X.

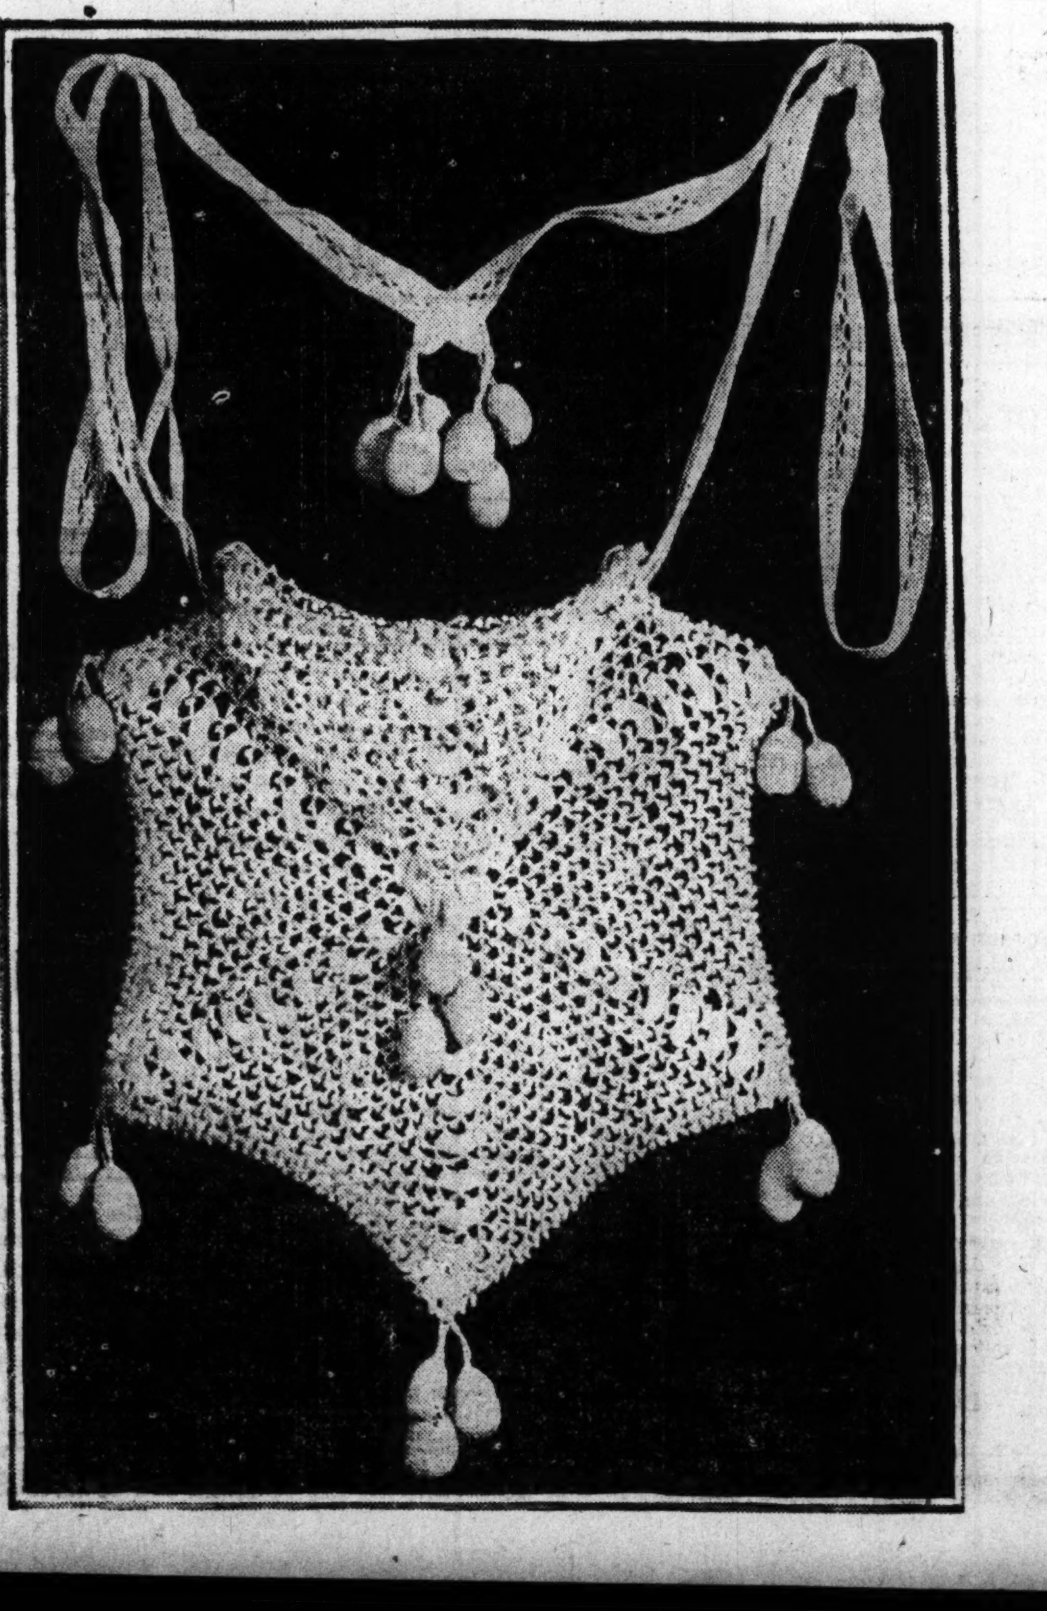
She Gave Him a Dime.

I left my house early the other morning for work. As I reached an alley my attention was attracted by the rattling of papers, and I turned to find a man looking through the contents of a garbage can. Taking it for granted he was hungry, I tossed him a dime and told him to get a cup of coffee and quit hunting in a garbage can for something to eat. Can you imagine my embarrassment when the gentleman replied, "O, I was just hunting bones for my dog." J. F. C.

Irish Crochet Party Bag.



Use No. 50 Jap silk thread.

Make a 6 petal rose as follows:

Ch. 8 and join, s. c. over ch. 15 times and join, ch. 5, skip 1 st. and d. c. into next, ch. 3, skip 2 sts. and d. c. into next; repeat around and join (having in all 6 open spaces). Over each of the 6 open spaces, *, make 1 s. c., 5 d. c., and 1 s. c., *; sl. st. over first d. c. back of first petal; *, ch. 5; sl. st. over next d. c. back of petals; repeat from * around; over each of the 6 loops of 5 ch. make *, 1 s. c., 7 d. c., and 1 s. c., *; sl. st. over first d. c. back of first petals; *, ch. 7; sl. st. over next d. c. back of petals, repeat from * around; over each of the 6 loops of 7 ch. make *, 1 s. c., 9 d. c., and 1 s. c., *.

Make picot cluster—[ch. 6, back 3 sts. and make a picot; ch. 6, back 3 sts. and make a picot; ch. 3]; sl. st. into fourth st. of following petal; make another p. c., skip 3 sts. of same petal and sl. st. into next st.; repeat from * around [having in all 12 p. c. After making the twelfth p. c. sl. st. into the first p. c.; *, ch. 10, sl. st. into next p. c., ch. 5 and turn; d. c. over c. h. of 10 times and turn; s. c back over the 10 d. c., make a p. c., and sl. st. over same p. c.; make a p. c. and sl. st. over next p. c.; repeat from * around. After making the last p. c. of this row * sl. st. into first st. of 10 d. c., make a p. c. and sl. st. into center of 10 d. c.; make a p. c. and sl. st. into next p. c.; make a p. c. and sl. st. into next p. c.; make a p. c. and repeat from * around. Repeat this process 19 times around], having for the last row p. c. all around.

Make two of the above medallions and join five sides, leaving the center of the sixth side open for the top of the bag, the points falling down over the outside of the top of the bag. Finish the top edge of the bag with a picot edging.

Make twenty-three balls as follows:

Ch. 8 and join d. c. over ch. 18 times, then s. c. around, increasing a little on each row till the size around is reached, then decrease until the ball is closed at the other end, filling the ball with cotton as you decrease the size of the ball, and crochet a chain to join to the bag, making the chains of different lengths, so they will fall unevenly from the bag.

Make a draw string as follows:

Make two chains length desired, d. c. into each stitch; take one draw string and run through the top of bag, bringing both ends out at the same side, then take the other draw string and run it through the top of the bag, bringing both ends out on the opposite side from the other draw string. Fasten three balls on the two ends of one draw string and three more balls on the other draw string. Now crochet the strings together as follows: Fasten thread to first string, ch. 3; sl. st. to the other string; *, ch. 3, skip 3 sts. of opposite string and sl. st. into next string; repeat from * as far as desired, leaving the parts of the string drawn through the bag unjoined.

Line the bag with fine handkerchief linen.

POTATOES AND BY-PRODUCTS.

A WEEK ago a large store advertised Idaho potatoes at 65 cents a peck. These are usually sold for 5 cents a pound, with some reduction for larger quantities, so that a peck would not be $1.50, as this 5 cent price might suggest. At 65 cents a peck the Idaho or Washington potato is much more economical than the ordinary potato at 60 cents a peck, a peck being all that the ordinary small family living in an apartment can profitably buy.

The point to prove is that consumers should know more about potatoes and the potato market, since the vegetable is for good reasons indispensable to meat eaters. Rice cannot take its place and good health be maintained, because the potato is basic and the rice is not. This would be an influential fact if people knew more about foods, but fortunately people like the flavor of potato best with meat, though rice is acceptable when there is a good gravy.

People imagine the potato has far greater food value than it has, in and of itself, but this reckoning is of little account since it is usually made to carry a good deal of nutriment in the shape of cream, butter, cheese, or other fat. The baked potato if carefully cooked loses some of its water, so has higher nutritive value.

But to get back to the price of potatoes. The present price of poor potatoes is another instance of a poor quality of food costing more than it is worth because a much higher grade is on the market. The poor grade, though high in price, is sold at what sometimes is just less than that of higher grade, so establishing that unfair form of competition which is so discouraging to growers of the fine product unless they are well established.

In some ways the consumer, though paying a high price for potatoes, is better off than ever before. There is a better choice of potatoes in the best stores than ever before. Today there are the new red and a new white potato, the big and smooth western potatoes, good quality sweet potatoes at reasonable price, and just potatoes. Unfortunately the common variety is seldom in good condition to display as the others are. It is as likely as not kept in some insanitary nether region and handled with a sharp edged shovel.

The other day, as an experiment, I bought half a peck of potatoes, not quite as common as some, and at a store where I believe some pains is taken to see that I get the best specimens of anything I choose. Quite uneven as to size were the twenty-eight potatoes of that purchase, showing no pains to grade, and out of the lot five small ones had been cut into, or nearly in half, by a hoe or a shovel, so as to be spoiled. Dry rot had set into another large one, where the end had first been cut, and three others were badly stained. I have yet to find how many have a darkening layer inside, indicating beginning decay.

At 30 cents a peck the cost of each good potato was really over 1⅓ cents. Thus the cost of 2 cents a pound paid was more apparent than real, since the waste raised the cost per pound of the fifteen pounds one-third of a cent, a total loss of nearly 5 cents.

In my case it happens that I have never bought Idaho potatoes so defective. Greater care seems to be exercised all along the line, from growing to grading and marketing. The potatoes are smoother, therefore there is not so much waste. They cook more quickly, so fire is saved. They granulate easily, so are finer for thickening soups and stews. They are probably better digested because so fine of flavor and so easily desiccated.

Does it not look as though part of the high price of potatoes is due to the better quality being in the market? In every kind of selling this misfortune exists, that the low grade raises its price to compete with high grade, taking an unfair profit in whatever way we may look at it.

But if for a minute we compare potatoes at 5 cents a pound with the price of other vegetables, we shall get a better perspective as to what a high grade potato is really worth to those who like fine things to eat.

Dropping the potato situation, let us consider another that is with us at present. It is the by-product of our poultry, the fat and the bones. We have lost a valuable by-product of our larger meats to industry, when we might have used it, so let us take warning.

Do you understand about this loss? Investigate and you will find that meats are trimmed as never before at the stockyards. No bit of fat is left on, it would seem, that can be legitimately shaved off, nor bone that can be chopped off. This is sensible, since a great deal of this was formerly shaved off by the retailer and might lie around with waste bone, etc., a day or more before it was taken back to the stockyards to be made over into soap. Housewives might have utilized all this, and more intelligence among retailers would have helped them to do it. I know of a splendid eastern store where it was done six years ago. But we did not do it, and now we have lost these by-products, though they are not wasted, as some are that get into our kitchens.

Some methods are given below of utilizing our poultry by-products, and any one who would like to understand more about potato marketing should read a column on that subject in the Country Gentleman for Dec. 2. Twenty points are there given for minimizing wastes and growers' losses, prefaced by the following statement: "After a rather exhaustive study of the commercial handling, grading, and marketing of potatoes, the federal office of markets has developed the following practical points." This national office ought to have some influence on this great potato question.

Bouillon Potatoes.

When in a lot of potatoes there are a good many small ones a nice way to cook them is in a meat stock. They are mealy, especially if put on fire in small amount of cold stock, and, of course, of meaty flavor somewhat when cooked. A brown stock is best, but one made from the frame of a duck which has been carved clean will be good, especially if the duck was cooked on a bed of vegetables. It is essential to use a boiler of the right size in cooking potatoes thus, though a large kettle for a few potatoes is always an extravagance. For four not too small potatoes use a pint boiler, a cup of stock, and a scant teaspoon of salt. The stock may be cold or hot when the potatoes are added, but when it boils cover the boiler close and cook over low fire. One or several small onions may be added, and turnip or carrot cut fine also improves the flavor of the potatoes.

Fried Potatoes.

There were two cups of fat from a five pound duck cooked, to start, with a little sweet butter to flavor and baste, and a two inch square of ham fat added, with some chopped lean for flavor. The clear part of this fat is good for various kinds of sauteing and the thicker part for gravies. Put two tablespoons of the fat into a frying pan, add a pint of peeled and sliced raw potatoes, and sprinkle a little salt over them. Do not have the fire high, but just enough to brown the potatoes a light brown in five or six minutes. Turn the potatoes, cover, and let them cook over a low fire for six or eight minutes more. There should be only a tiny bit of fat in the pan in the end. If cooked gently and yet browned to crispness, these are of good flavor.

Turnips in Gravy.

Thicken a tablespoon of leftover poultry fat with two tablespoons of flour, blending the two, then add a cup of cold by-product stock and stir constantly over the fire until the whole boils. Freshly cooked or cold turnip cooked in small squares may be added to this, and heated up in it with salt to taste, and a liberal sprinkling of pepper, the whole served on toast. "Most anything is good on toast," said some one the other day who was fed with this dish. If pepper is justified with anything it is with turnip.

Macaroni in Gravy.

A gravy made like that for the turnip may be used with macaroni, but it will be improved if some sliced onion is fried gently, and not browned in the fat before the flour is added, and, instead of pepper, a liberal grating of nutmeg is used. Nutmeg used in such a sauce gives piquancy, and has not at all the same taste it has in custard, unless in lumps. There is a new elbow macaroni which can be cooked in a brief time. It is a domestic product and good almost any way you can prepare it. A package contains about three cups, so that even if you have to pay 15 cents for it, a dish made like the above with one cup of macaroni cooked and added to one cup of gravy, is inexpensive. It is enough for two plates for two, or four fairly good sized portions for four. I like it best in an onion flavored milk sauce, but many people like it best in some kind of a meat sauce.

Cocoanut Cream Candy.

Mrs. M. W. kindly wishes A. H. to have the following recipe: Two cups of granulated sugar, one cup of cream or milk, one cup of cocoanut, butter size of walnut, one teaspoon of vanilla. Cook cream and sugar without stirring until it spins a hair, then remove from fire, add vanilla, butter, and cocoanut, and beat until it starts to set. Pour out and cut in squares. Of course, the sugar and cream must be stirred until the sugar is dissolved, but not after the two boil.

The Worst Slam I Ever Got.

Sometime, somewhere, somebody gave you a "slam" that nearly bowled you over. Tell the worst one you ever received. The stories must be original, written on one side of the paper, and confined to 300 words. Address them to Slam Editor, "The Sunday Tribune." For every letter published "The Tribune" will pay $1. No letters can be returned.

Thought Her a Peddler.

I spent my vacation on my uncle's farm one year, and while there I asked him one day if I could not accompany him when he took his farm produce to the market at the neighboring town. I managed to get ready in time.

My uncle's wagon being well known all over the town, I thought I would give "all those farmers" a chance to admire his stylish young niece from the city, so I donned my best skirt, my lace waist, and a large white plumed hat and thought myself superior to every one else.

As we reached the market my uncle stopped in front of a house where he had some business to transact and asked me to stay in the wagon and wait for his return. As I sat there, all dressed in my best and imagining that I was being admired by all, imagine the humiliating shock I received when a farmer's wife who passed along the other side of the street with her husband yelled over to me, "Say, girl, got any wax beans for sale this morning?" E. S.

Judging from Looks.

I was teaching in a certain city and lived at the hotel. During that time an elderly Irish woman acted as maid. She constantly came to me to have her private letters written, or to have me help her with business transactions. I know that she admired me greatly and appreciated my efforts for her. One day, however, she stood looking at me and finally said: "I was just thinking that no one—to look at you—would ever dream what a bright, capable girl you are. I declare, it's too bad!" C. F. E.

The Maid Comments.

Mother brought a collie dog home from Lake Como with her. He was a beauty, and sister and I immediately had our picture taken with him. While showing the photo to a party of friends on the lawn one day, our maid came along, glanced at the picture, and exclaimed, "The dog in the middle took the best." L. E. J.

One for Curly Hair.

I have curly hair, and frequently some one compliments me on it. One day I was talking to a friend of mine. She spoke of how curly my hair was, and then some time later remarked: "No matter how homely you are, curly hair always makes you look attractive." R. G.

His Homely Women Friends.

Shortly after my marriage I spent the afternoon with my sister-in-law, who entertained me by showing me some photographs of my husband's old flames. None of them was very handsome, and she concluded with the remark: "I never could understand why it was, but George always seemed to admire such homely women." M. S.

KEEP LOOKING YOUNG

It's Easy—If You Know Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets

The secret of keeping young is to feel young—to do this you must watch your liver and bowels—there's no need of having a sallow complexion—dark rings under your eyes—pimples—a bilious look in your face—dull eyes with no sparkle. Your doctor will tell you ninety per cent of all sickness comes from inactive bowels and liver.

Dr. Edwards, a well-known physician in Ohio, perfected a vegetable compound mixed with olive oil to act on the liver and bowels, which he gave to his patients for years.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets, the substitute for calomel, are gentle in their action, yet always effective. They bring about that exuberance of spirit, that natural buoyancy which should be enjoyed by everyone, by toning up the liver and clearing the system of impurities. You will know Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets by their olive color, 10c and 25c per box. All druggists.

GIRLS! BEAUTIFY YOUR HAIR WITH "DANDERINE"

Get a 25 Cent Bottle! Freshen Your Scalp! Stop Falling Hair! Remove Dandruff! Grow Lots of Wavy, Glossy, Beautiful Hair—You Can!

If you care for heavy hair, that glistens with beauty and is radiant with life; has an incomparable softness and is fluffy and lustrous, try Danderine.

Just one application doubles the beauty of your hair, besides it immediately dissolves every particle of dandruff; you can not have nice, heavy, healthy hair if you have dandruff. This destructive scurf robs the hair of its lustre, its strength and its very life, and if not overcome it produces a feverishness and itching of the scalp; the hair roots famish, loosen and die; then the hair falls out fast.

If your hair has been neglected and is thin, faded, dry, scraggy or too oily, get a 25-cent bottle of Knowlton's Danderine at any drug store or toilet counter; apply a little as directed and ten minutes after you will say this was the best investment you ever made.

We sincerely believe, regardless of everything else advertised, that if you desire soft, lustrous, beautiful hair and lots of it—no dandruff—no itching scalp and no more falling hair—you must use Knowlton's Danderine. If eventually—why not now?—Advertisement.

With the Fingers! Says Corns Lift Off

No reason for cutting at your corns or wearing torturous plasters says Cincinnati authority

Sore corns, hard corns, soft corns or any kind of a corn can painlessly be lifted right out with the fingers if you will apply directly upon the corn a few drops of freezone, says a Cincinnati authority.

It is claimed that at small cost one can get a quarter of an ounce of freezone at any drug store, which is sufficient to rid one's feet of every corn or callus without pain or soreness or the danger of infection.

This simple drug, while sticky, dries the moment it is applied and does not even irritate the surrounding skin.

This announcement will interest many women here, for it is said that the present high-heel footwear is putting corns on every woman's feet.

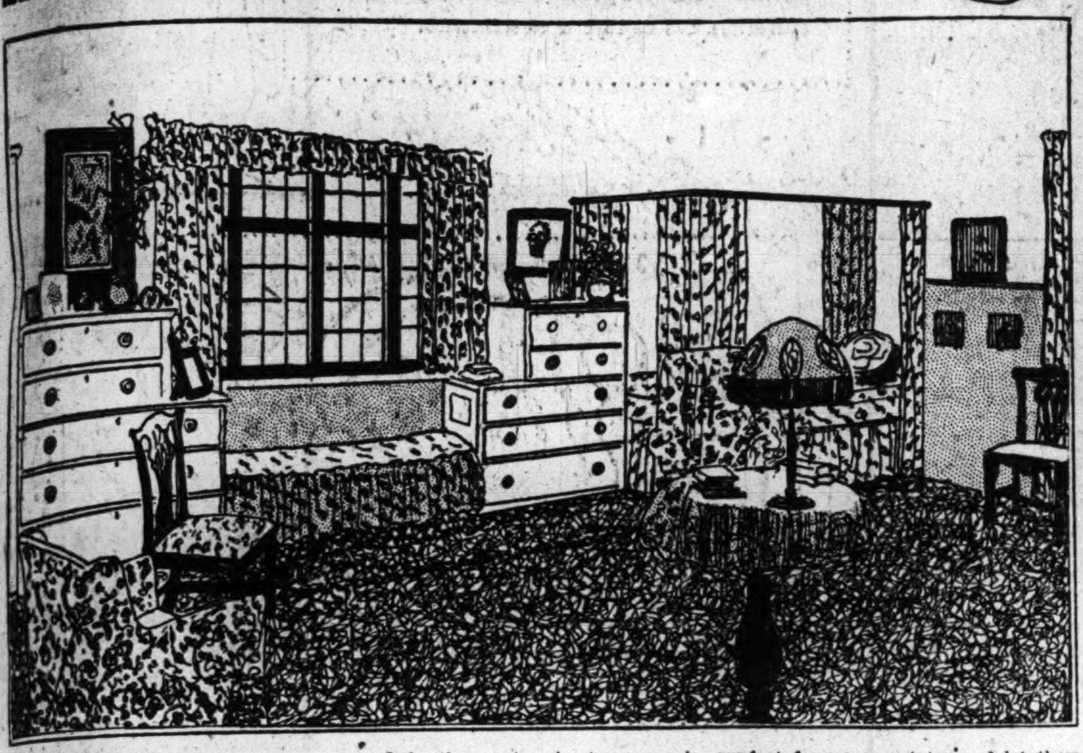
The Home Harmonious

COLOR HARMONIES

Anita de Campi



Miss de Campi will be glad to assist the home maker in any problems pertaining to interior decorations. Address your letter to Miss Anita de Campi, "Sunday Tribune," Chicago. Inclose a stamped, addressed envelope if you wish a personal reply.

THERE is probably no factor entering into the study of harmonious home making that offers as great possibilities at as little cost as the factor of color. By its careless or incorrect use the most elaborate interiors may be rendered unsightly, and, on the other hand, by its artistic use even the simplest rooms may acquire unfailing charm.

Many scientific treatises have been written on the subject, but most of these, I think, only befuddle the average reader—they are so full of technical terms and difficult problems.

Working with colors day by day for a good span of time has led me to discover the secret of avoiding colors that clash. That is a secret worth knowing, and I hesitate in setting it forth only because it is so almost infantile in its simplicity, yet it works out every time, as you will see.

If you will have patience to try a color experiment, you will help me to share my "secret" with you. I cannot make it quite clear by description alone, but you can carry my suggestion to completion, and by following easy directions actually visualize the thing yourself, and you will ever after have a scheme on hand to go by.

We all know that all colors are made from the three primaries—red, yellow, and blue—but how many decorators, professional or amateur, stop to consider that every one has a favorite red, a favorite yellow, and a favorite blue? It is in the selection of these three elementaries that each one expresses her color personality. I may have a strong preference for vermilion scarlet, old gold, and peacock blue, and you may have an equally strong preference for crimson, canary yellow, and cornflower blue; another may choose cerise, lemon yellow, and cadet blue. The combinations of favorites are endless; one triplet is as good as another, the choice is purely a matter of taste. But you cannot combine the colors resulting from your choice with those resulting from mine without creating discord.

Now, the scheme is this: You must go to an art store and buy three tubes of opaque paint, in your favorite red, yellow, and blue. An extra tube of black and of white will give additional tints and shades. Select from the sample color card colors in stock. Do not go by names. Names so familiar to artists are misleading to the laity. For instance, a color sold as Italian pink is a bright yellow.

With your colors decided upon, paint large spots on white paper. First, paint a spot of red, one of blue, and one of yellow. Then mix some red and blue, and paint a purple spot, and with some blue and yellow paint a green spot, with some red and yellow paint an orange spot. Then, by mixing these colors in various degrees, get hues and tones of buff, slate brown, etc. This will make up what artists call your palette, and when the colors are dry, cut out little discs or squares from the center of the painted spots and paste them all on a card. You will have numberless shades and tones, all colors and intensities will be represented, and all are bound to go together because you will not have varied the elements—because you have kept to your own choice.

My old gold yellow and peacock blue will have made a brilliant, metallic green that goes beautifully with my gold and with my blue. On my color card will be a delicate coral pink shading to terra cotta, a pale wheat color, and a fine turquoise and dark plum. All these are in harmony.

On your card will be a leaf green, tints of rose, red, and rose pink, a clear purple, and so on. These are also in harmony. But if you infringed on my choice of elements—if you tried to put the green that I had made out of my choice of blue and yellow with yours, you would see something ugly. And so with all the tints. My coral pink is lovely and so is your rose pink; but can you imagine them together? Or, my venetian red with your crimson?

The secret, then, is plain: any colors resultant from mixing one selection of red, yellow, and blue may not be safely put with colors resultant from the mixture of another selection of red, yellow, and blue. If you keep to one set of three, the resultants cannot clash, they cannot be "off color." Only, be judicious in your choice. Do not let all be violent. See that one of the three is more subdued than the other two. You are perfectly safe now to take the color samples you have cut out downtown and match your purchases to them. Let your carpets, draperies, paint, etc., correspond with your color samples. You will have the absolutely right green, right purple, brown, gray, etc.

The rules of color proportion—quite a separate matter—are fairly well known. The larger the area to be covered the more neutral the color should be. The way to neutralize a color is to introduce into it the other two. A red is neutralized by putting green into it, and an orange by introducing blue, etc.—not enough to discolor it but enough to tone it.

No color scheme is complete without all these primaries in it, either singly or combined. The most commonly pleasing effects are obtained by allowing only one of the three primaries to appear in its full intensity.

The accompanying illustration shows an attractive but not unusual bedroom. The success of this room depends upon its color treatment.

Following are several color schemes that may be applied to this room or to any other bedroom. They but serve to show how different combinations of color may vary the whole plan:

Palest putty side wall, old ivory woodwork, bronze taupe two tone carpet, old ivory draperies flecked with autumn leaf colors, bright turquoise blue lamp shade, and scarlet vermilion book or other small incident on table; chairs covered with old ivory chintz figured with olive autumn brown and touches of bright burnt orange.

Oyster green side wall and a more decided dull green self-colored chintz for chair covers. Draperies in chintz with a mauve ground, flat green leaves, and flowers of tea rose color. The draperies are edged with dull green guipure. White enameled woodwork, and all lamp shades of clear mauve silk. One chamois yellow vase.

Cream colored side wall, pale gray enameled woodwork. Toiles de Jouy draperies showing a white and a sky blue stripe overlaid by a floral design in Du Barry rose. Edging of rose guipure. Sky blue candle shades and bright Du Barry rose velvet carpet. A single small mauve object.

Mulberry diapered carpet, pearl side walls, black enameled woodwork. Chintz printed in flowers and birds, green peacock blue and garnet on a black ground. White lamp shade embroidered with green beads. Tracings of bright green on the black woodwork. One crimson cushion.

Answers to Inquiries.

E. J.: Get some pretty chintz for your over curtains and pillow covers, and also to cover the old dark blue and black homespun of which you speak. Use clearflax for the rug in your sun room. Get a nice shade of tan for this. No, I do not believe I would change the blue to brown in your dining room chairs. Get a tan and blue rug, also of clearflax, for your dining room. Your furnishings in the dining room seem somber. Would you consider using a geranium red lamp shade in this room? It would give the needed touch to save it from depression.

MRS. H. O.: I can only advise you in your blue and brown room, since the colors are so pronounced, to keep to shades of blue and brown. "Accidents" of wistaria would be good as long as the room opens into a yellow room. Use sunfast for your curtains and let them be casement curtains. I think that glass curtains, no longer than sash curtains, would be good with such windows as you have sketched in your letter. Silk gauze is popular for French doors. I should not have yellow predominating in the curtain fabric. Have a pin stripe of yellow if you like. Let the curtains correspond more with the side walls. A pretty and thin white curtain material about the quality of organdy with a heavy woven stripe in different light colors would be good. This is effective for glass curtains.

MRS. R. C. R.: For your three windows either use three separate lambrequins or have one valance to cross all three. If you decide on the valance, instead of using a stiff curtain rod get one of the new flexible rods made of wire which can be curved around and arranged over hooks for your three windows. With this you may use either three sets of cretonne curtains or but one cretonne curtain at each side of the group of windows, with the white curtain at the glass of all windows. The writing desk you describe sounds good. Yes, mahogany pieces would be in good taste. Small green candles ar attractive. With this you might have one green cushion, one bronze, and a saffron or pink. In your lavender room have you introduced yellow into the pattern in your draperies? Let it be a dull wheat yellow.

MRS. J. D. D.: Sand color would be good for your walls. Use the same tint throughout. Choose your furniture with a view to comfort. An English tub chair or a low, long back upholstered chair would be nice near your fireplace. Windsor chairs are inexpensive and attractive, as are wicker chairs.

MRS. W. P.: Use green sunfast for your dining room curtains and use a narrow lambrequin set up over the window frame.

MRS. N. H.: Would it be possible for you to have your mahogany woodwork done over in a brown finish? This would not spoil the wood. I should like a striped silk for your inside curtains. A buff gauze would be pretty. Are not your chairs too light in color for the other furniture? Perhaps it would be better to stain them brown. They would then take their place as an unconspicuous part of the furnishing.

* *

MRS. A. C. H.: Have you the date of the paper in which the article appeared? If you have, and will write to the circulation department, inclosing the money for the paper, they will forward it to you.

Mother! Look at Your Child's Tongue

Give "California Syrup of Figs" if Cross, Feverish, Sick, Bilious, Constipated—They Love It

Watch Children Now! Guard Against Colds, Grippe, Sore Throat and Sickness by Keeping Liver and Bowels Free from Poisons

A laxative today saves a sick child tomorrow. Children simply will not take the time from play to empty their bowels, which become clogged up with waste; liver gets sluggish; stomach sour.

Look at the tongue, mother! If coated, or your child is listless, cross, feverish, breath bad, restless, doesn't eat heartily, full of cold or has the grippe or a sore throat or any other children's ailment, give a teaspoonful of "California Syrup of Figs," then don't worry, because it is perfectly harmless, and in a few hours all this constipation poison, sour bile and fermenting waste will gently move out of the bowels, and you have a well, playful child again. A thorough "inside cleansing" is ofttimes all that is necessary. It should be the first treatment given in any sickness.

Beware of counterfeit fig syrups. Ask your druggist for a 50-cent bottle of "California Syrup of Figs," which has full directions for babies, children of all ages and for grown-ups plainly printed on the bottle. See that it is made by the "California Fig Syrup Company." Don't merely ask for Syrup of Figs, but ask for "California Syrup of Figs." Remember, "California."—Advertisement.

Where to Spend the Quiet Eve of New Year's

By Percy Hammond.

NEW YEAR'S EVE for those of festive disposition need not, it seems, be altogether the melancholy revel prescribed by law and order for this godly community. Such cakes and ale as our betters will permit us to environ in the one magic hour—when to celebrate is not to sin—may be preceded by theatrical entertainments more staple than usual. For instance, Mr. "Al" Jolson will dignify the gelded jollification by beginning his engagement in "Robinson Crusoe Jr." and the Follies of Mr. Ziegfeld will have been in fleshly session for a week. Mr. William T. Hodge will be here, the yokel Lochinvar, in "Fixing Sister," and Mr. Sothern in the finest of all the romantic plays, "If I Were King."

The imposingly noncommercial and semi-amateur actors from Washington Square, New York, will by that time have driven the movie money changers from The Playhouse and will afford there a sanctuary for the less frivolous. The Dolly Sisters, the dusk Magyar girls who used to dance for Mr. Ziegfeld, now are actresses and will be playing "His Bridal Night" on New Year's Eve. Mr. Cohan, too, will be a contributor, offering his jibe at the evangelists in "Hit-the-Trail Holliday," with Mr. Fred Niblo, a star new to Chicago, impersonating the noisy exhorter. To these new opportunities may be added the older plays—"The Boomerang," "Go to It," "Fair and Warmer," the varieties, the burlesque, and the intolerant Mr. Griffith's intolerant "Intolerance." Perhaps after all we shall be able to achieve the New Year's alacrity of spirit and cheer of mind without the customary bowls of wine.

More War Taxes.

WHEN, next week, you go to buy your places for the Follies and for "Robinson Crusoe Jr." you will find yourself again a minor economic victim of the war. The hues and fabrics of extravaganza have increased in cost with other more essential commodities, and it is said, reliably, that the expenditure for a spectacle is twice this year what it was last. Tights that were $10 now are $20, the dye-stuffs that go to increase the complexions of the chorus have doubled in price, the chorus itself receives a higher wage, and the venders of song and joke assume a rapacity akin to that of the baker and the milkman.

So the Follies this time will sell for $2.50 the lower floor seat, and on New Year's eve the tariff will be $3. Mr. Jolson estimates his worth on New Year's eve at $5 for the best chairs, and on Saturday nights they will cost $2.50. Although Mr. Ziegfeld's exhibition this year has broken all previous records for receipts it is said that his margin of profit is about one-tenth its usual size.

Righting Sir Herbert.

SIR Herbert Tree gives this department the friendly assurance that it erred last Wednesday when it reported that his attitude toward the Chicago public was one of benevolent superiority. The inference was based on a misinterpretation of rumored remarks of his, and it was printed in a thoughtless and an ungracious moment. His visit here has been comfortable and prosperous; he is fond of us and he shows us his affection in many generous and pleasant way. If a heedless remark has caused this admirable gentleman and actor the least annoyance the author of it is sorry, and he says so selfishly, suspecting that the apology will make Sir Herbert unhappier than did the fault itself.

Perceiving a Divided Duty.

THE Little theater has fallen upon evil days and contributions are invoked from solvent volunteers. Mrs. Aldis elsewhere tells its pitiful tale of esthetic yearning and fiscal impotence, adding her earnest importunities to those of Mr. Browne for succor in the crisis. The summons, no doubt, will be hearkened to as it should be. Although the little theater movement in its dramatic manifestation is the most futile of all its supercilious ilk, the Chicago institution has its many worthy aspects. Its puppet plays for children are admirable diversions; its lectures by Mr. Browne, Mr. Powys, and others make it, as Mrs. Aldis says, a genuine center for intellectual interests. Its passing, in these respects, would be a definite loss to the community.

As a headquarters for drama and acting, however, I think it is less of an asset. Probably Mr. Browne, himself, will not say that he is a good actor, nor that his theater is a good theater. The excellence of his productions has been relative: the reputation of his performances has been better than the performances themselves—which, I suspect, is a harmful thing for the art of the drama. No other art is so abused. Mr. Melville Ellis would not dare in public to play a Brahms concerto; yet Mr. Browne is acclaimed when he essays, in hostile surroundings, the greatest of the masterpieces. Young persons, taking their first faltering steps in the theater, are told that these things are good, and, believing it, they are led astray.

Here is a fantastic proposition: As a rostrum critic of the arts Mr. Browne can be an instrument of great value to the neighborhood. He talks better than he acts, and his stimulating lectures at Lincoln Center and elsewhere some years ago produced fine results. So let us divide the desired $30,000 between him and the drama, subsidizing the good plays in the professional theater. Our taste dramatically has been more impugned by the failure of "Justice" and "Androcles" than it would be by the success of Mr. Browne.

News and Gossip of the Theaters.

MISS LAURETTE TAYLOR, recalling Madame Sarah's prediction that she is destined in two years to be America's First Actress, gave a special performance of "The Harp of Life" for the pathetic pilgrim from France Friday. Since Madame Sarah is unable to leave the Empire theater Miss Taylor moved her production to that playhouse for the one presentation.

The Bernhardt engagement in Chicago will be for three days in February at the Auditorium, if it can be so arranged.

George C. Tyler has a desire to present Chesterton's "Magic" and Lord Dunsany's "A Night at the Inn," and thinks the Playhouse here would be a propitious location for the enterprise.

Messrs. Montgomery and Stone and Charles Dillingham are the principals in what is said to be a record-breaking theatrical contract. In it Mr. Dillingham agrees to pay them $1,500,000 for a term of years, number not made public.

Though "Katinka" is one of the definite successes of the season it is forced to end its Chicago run because the Garrick is engaged and there is no other theater for it. "Go To It," evicted from the Princess by Mr. Hodge and "Fixing Sister," will move to the Chicago.

Ralph Morgan, the flirting husband in "Fair and Warmer," will be the leading player in "Turn to the Right" when it is presented at the Grand by a cast especially organized for Chicago.

The Triangle club of Princeton will present "Safety First," a musical comedy by F. Scott Fitzgeral, '17, at the Strand theater next Saturday evening. The entertainment contains satire on feminism, futurism, and prison reform, and the odious ukelele is noticed unfavorably in a song called "Take the Hawaiian Music Away."

Announcing the bezel drama:

"Five facets of exceptional polish illuminate each répertoire evening of the Washington Square Players, that open a seven weeks' engagement on Dec. 18 at the Playhouse, formerly the Fine Arts theater. Each of the quintet of plays offered by this organization is a bezel of rare merit. Presented as they are with the unique scenic effects that make investiture, play and player, a melodious chord of environment, act, and actor, their appeal is one of charm and sincerity."—From the press agent.

In the pictures:

Miss Shepley figures prominently in the romance of "The Boomerang"; her most notable previous engagement in Chicago was in "A Gentleman from Mississippi." Miss Houghton is one of the new generation of musical comedy prima donnas, singing well, without affectations. She is in "Go To It."

Some Reasons for Thinking Well of the Opera Falstaff

By Frederick Donaghey.

THAT the Auditorium revival of "Falstaff" should be a coincident of Sir Herbert Tree's reemergence in "The Merry Wives" is not, I suspect, a matter of importance to more than the relatively few whose taste in the theater spans opera and drama. Persons with a memory for either piece in performance are not many: Shakspere's has been without American vogue in two generations of playgoing, and Verdi's, a bare such generation old, has had none, so far as the records disclose. Boito, Verdi's librettist, made a far better play of Shakspere's for the purposes of opera than Shakspere, himself, made in his dubious duty of evoking laughter in his queen.

The eminent Englishman, then less eminent and less English, elected when first he came among us to make Falstaff his main implement of appeal, and then, too, as now, found himself in measurable concurrence with the Verdi version: the opera, newly imported in the season of Sir Herbert's first immigration, was the subject of a page, perhaps, for every column the reviewers could find for consideration of the visiting actor. It was the fashion of the reviewers in New York City and such other communities as were visited by both tactfully to explain to the actor that his Falstaff would be greatly benefited if he were to devote time and intelligent observation to Victor Maurel in the part: that gifted Frenchman, still in vigor, was here as in Italy the first singer of the great part which young Mr. Rimini will undertake tomorrow night at the Opera.

The reviewers, of course, were as literate in the matter as they were courteous: the Maurel Falstaff, an unforgettable exhibition of fine art in opera, was as far from Shakspere's and Tree's as Galli-Curci's Traviata from Duse's Camille, or Titta Ruffo's Hamlet from Forbes-Robertson's. Or, to bring the parallel to-date, as far as Rimini's, whatever it may be, will be from Tree's, two blocks away. William Gillette—who, if the story be true, was in possession of a measure of the good-taste which marked the attitude of American actors and writers of twenty years ago toward players from London—is credited with having said, when asked his opinion of Irving's Hamlet, "He would be a great comedian if he could only sing!" Well, Sir Herbert might sing, and sing well, in "The Merry Wives," and still provide no reason for comparison of his Falstaff with that of any occupant of the rôle in Verdi's opera: singer and actor were working in elements that have nothing in common.

Setting Shakspere to Song.

THIS, I should say, is a good place to drop Sir Herbert, having made use of his infinite capacity as "good copy" to carry me thus far in the journey to the foot of the column. Besides, he is Mr. Hammond's business, even when apposite for the purposes of this side of the page.

Verdi's "Falstaff," of itself—even in disuse—is always good for a column, although that is space out of all proportion to the record of popular interest in the work. The Metropolitan annals show no reaction to the opera in several experiments with it: Scotti's vogue was as ineffective in allure as Maurel's talent. Campanini's revival now is not inexplicable, however: it is an opera for which he has a real affection; it will freshen up the repertoire; it will give to Rimini, who has not yet realized the promise of his heralding, a great opportunity in a part which he is said to have done elsewhere with real success; and, then, there is always reason for the hope that opera-goers are caught up.

Better than anything else of Shakspere's has "The Merry Wives," with a bit or two from the Falstaff scenes of "King Henry IV," been bent and turned to the uses of the opera stage in this work. The libretto is a really-remarkable example of how such a thing should be done: it is, instead of the ridiculous parody of the original which is any other Shakspere opera save "Otello," an appreciative and artistic condensation of the English farce. Whether Boito preserved the lines or not, this Falstaff of opera is still one calculated to say, as Shakspere's says, of Page's wife, that she "even now gave me good eyes, too—examined my exteriors with judicious œillades: sometimes the beam of her eyes gilded my foot——"; and of him, also, Pistol still might report to Ford:

"He woos both high and low; both rich and poor;
Both young and old: one with another,
Ford:
He loves the gallinmaufry: Ford, perpend!"

Only Mozart's "Marriage of Figaro," in all the literature of opera, may be compared to "Falstaff": the grace, the charm, the wit of the one is of the other, also. For those who will, in the Campanini revival, make acquaintance with the Verdi opera, there is, I think, surprised delight in store in the final act: in nothing else of his vast contribution to the stage did Verdi write anything equal in delicacy and in rich, imaginative beauty to the music of the fairy-scene in the action at Herne's Oak.

The Orchestra

MOZART'S in D-major will be the symphony in the Friday-Saturday program of the Orchestra, one of whose members will be the soloist: Alexander Zukovsky, second-concertmeister, who will play Vieuxtemps' fourth concerto. The pastoral from Bach's Christmas Oratorio, Dohnânyi's suite, and Rimsky-Korsakow's Spanish Caprice are the other items in the schedule.

The Orchestra goes tomorrow to Milwaukee for the fourth of the series in that city.

The fourth Pop will be on Thursday night of next week.

Rufolph Ganz, the panist, will be next week's soloist of the Friday-Saturday program.

The program for Jan. 5-6 will be the annual memorial to Theodore Thomas. Three of five numbers listed by Mr. Stock are of Mr. Thomas' orchestration—Schubert's march in E-flat, Chopin's polonaise in A-flat-major, and the andante with variations of Beethoven's "Kreutzer" sonata.

Burns Mantle's New York Letter

NEW YORK.—[Special Correspondence.]—Being a superman is all very well so long as you don't overdo it, according to the theory of a play in which Arnold Daly is now threatened with success. "The Master," it is called, and it was written twelve or thirteen years ago by Herman Bahr, the German, best known to this country as the author of "The Concert." And "The Concert," you will recall as the play which started Leo Ditrichstein toward his present growing fortune.

In "The Master" Daly is quite in his element, playing a young radical who seeks to prove himself "strong" and worthy the approval of the most rabid of Nietzschean philosophers. Being a surgeon, and a clever one, he starts his career by refusing to take the examination prescribed by law or provide himself with the usual license issued by the village in which he purposes practicing.

In spite of which he succeeds wonderfully as an "outlaw." Soon patients are flocking to his sanitarium from all parts of the continent, and something of his growing fame is reflected to the town. Therefore the authorities change their minds about the license and elect him to their inner councils. And he sneers amiably at their weakness.

It is with his domestic life, however, that the play is principally concerned. In his home he is known to every one not as "the doctor," seeing that officially he is none, but as "the master." And as such he rules rigidly. His young wife is his chief assistant, and largely a part of the success in which she is permitted to enjoy but little of the credit. Being a Nietzschean, the master does not believe in the trivial passions save as they may serve his mood. Therefore his wife, to whom he considers himself loyally devoted, is still no more than his helper, his intellectual companion, his very competent housekeeper.

Being strong, the master is likewise able to rise above all the minor social conventions that bind the weaklings. His personal habits are, therefore, quite free—for one thing he is conservatively polygamous. And when his youthful bookkeeper upbraids him for a lack of sympathy since his assumed love for her has grown cold he merely replies that he is too big, too strong, a man to be ruled by such a silly thing as "love."

He treats his wife in much the same way, and she, too, rebels. Being feminine she hungers for the sympathy of which as a strong man he is incapable and finally she runs away with his less strong but more attractive neighbor.

To be a good superman, however, one must be consistent, and so the master, when he discovers this state of affairs, which he does next act, merely accepts it as another proof that, though they live in philosophers' houses, girls will be girls. He is hard hit, yet being strong he will not confess it. His wife is entitled to all the privileges he claims for himself. She may come and she may go as she pleases, when she pleases, with whom she pleases. And instead of shooting her lover he shoots a hole through her picture to prove that he could hit the lover were he weak enough to give way to that desire.

But it is when the wife comes to leave him for good and all that his Nitzschean house of cards comes tumbling about his head. He had not reckoned on that. And he professed not to understand it. Here he, in his great strength, finally had risen to the sacrifice of granting her her complete freedom, and she refused it! He had thrown open the door and offered her the world to fly in, and she had weakly fluttered into another cage. He had given her the greatest proof of love it were possible for a man to show a woman, magnanimously agreeing to continue her devoted husband after she had voluntarily chosen another man, and she could no more than weakly reiterate that he did not understand! Bah!

The play leaves him determined that his strength shall prevail. He is staggered, but swears he will recover. Next day the master will be himself again. In his heart, however, he knows that he is beaten. And his audience knows it as well as he. He can rebuild the bodies of his patients, but when he undertakes the reconstruction of human nature his man-directed genius fails him.

Young Stewart Walker, who some years ago was a play reader in the employ of David Belasco and is now the proprietor and chief actor of a suitcase theater called the Portmanteau, is having his first taste of metropolitan recognition.

For some time he has been packing his tiny stage and his tinier repertoire from town to town and college to college, scoffing not at the town hall or even the drawing room of the manor. But, like all actors, he has always wanted to try the sale of his goods on Broadway. This year the Portmanteau had achieved sufficient importance to justify the experience. It was brought in a fortnight ago and set up on the stage of the Thirty-ninth Street theater for a series of special matinees, and it moves this week to the Princess theater, where it will be shown both at matinee and night performances, as though it were a regular grown-up enterprise.

Martha Hedman Prefers the Stage

BY MAE TINEE.

After appearing just once in motion pictures—with Douglas Fairbanks in "The Cub"—Martha Hedman did a fadeout and never returned again. I was curious to know why, so sought an interview with the lady, playing, you know, at the present time in "The Boomerang."

By appointment, therefore, an obliging manager and myself knocked at her dressing room door shortly after the Wednesday matinée was over. Her maid appeared. She held the door to and spoke to some one inside the room. Said a clear voice: "Surely you can come in, but Meester Rice he mus' stay out. I have had my dress on for quite a long time waiting, but now eet is off an' my face has cream—I am greez-zy. Come in!"

Whereupon my companion beat a hasty retreat and I found myself in a warm, bright little dressing room confronting Miss Hedman, who was, as she had said, in negligee and decidedly—"gree-ee-zy." She was charmingly cordial, however, and remembered that I had interviewed her before, when, with John Mason in "The Attack," she created a sensation and became known as "The girl who listened herself into fame." The part was the first she had ever played in English and in it was a remarkable scene where she had nothing to do but listen. It was some listening, believe me!

I edged to my subject:

"Why have you appeared in no pictures since 'The Cub'?"

"You want me to tell you?"

"Yes'm."

"All right. I dee-test moving pictures. I think they are so awf—ool! All running an' jumping and murdereeng and mouths going—jabber, jabber, jabber an' not a word to be heard. O, I theenk they are tarrible!"

"O, but," I remonstrated, "surely you admit there are exceptions?"

Miss Hedman looked dubious. "Maybee—but not manny. To me they seem not to advance from what they were at the begeening. I do not think the producers should try to do modern stories. They should do the love-lee things, historical, educational—Maeterlinck's. O, you know——" She laughed.

"What?"

"Well, I have som gr-eat ideas an' once a beeg producer who made me an offer thought he might let me do as I like. So after the theater one evening I have supper with heem and talk, talk, talk until t'ree in the morning about 'Monna Vanna'—how be-yew-ti-fool it would be in pictures. Well, he leestened to me an' seemed to agree, and when I had feenish he sayed: 'I think eet would be great eef we could modernize the war scenes!'

"I just looked at heem. Then I sayed: 'O, "Monna Vanna" modernized would be some swell picture,' and I never spoke anny more."

I laughed. "Can't you think of any play in which you have appeared that you have thought might make a good picture?"

"Yes." Miss Hedman applied powder with vigor. "All the fot-teen ones."

"Did you find it difficult working before the camera?" I asked.

She said not. She ran, she jumped, and did a thousand queer things, so what difference to her—a camera?

"I could never take anny of it serious-lee," she said.

"Your views will make interesting reading, I think," I said as I rose to go, "though I can't say I agree with you at all. Tell me, how do you account for such people as Geraldine Farrar, Ethel Barrymore, Nazimova, Douglas Fairbanks, giving their energies to pictures if there is not more to them than you seem to think?"

"None of them ree-ally like them," the pretty Swedish actress maintained, stubbornly. "But everybody like mon-ee, I guess."

I laughed. "Remember what I say," I prophesied. "It won't be so long before I'll be interviewing you again, and next time it will be at a studio, and you'll be making up with yellow powder. You remember!"

"Well—you'll see!" she called after me.

Well—we'll see!

Miss Martha Hedman.

FORM A NEW CORPORATION.

It rather looks as if Marie Dressler were edging over toward Mr. Chaplins' territory, for President John R. Freuler of the Mutual Film corporation corroborates the rumor that Miss Dressler is forming a $2,000,000 corporation for the production of a series of pictures which will be distributed through Mutual.

Still, speaking of Mutual productions, Robert Elliott has been engaged to play opposite Nance O'Neil in "Mrs. Balfame." Mr. Elliott is rather well known, for he has played in drama, farce, and musical comedy. You will best remember him as leading man with Margaret Illington in "Within the Law," with Forbes Robertson in reëpertoire and in the musical comedies, "The Arcadians," "The Quaker Girl," and "The Pink Lady."

Richard Stanton, director for Fox, was at one time a professional and semi-professional baseball player.

Thomas H. Ince, not being pleased with the work of a certain carpenter, sent him a notice of dismissal. At the end of the week he observed his firée at a bench in the carpenter shop.

"I thought I fired you," said Mr. Ince, approaching the man.

"Chess, sir," answered the German, "you did, but on der enfelop it says 'return in five days!'"

She's coming back! Who? Jesslyn Van Trump. For a long time Miss Van Trump played leading rôles opposite J. Warren Kerrigan. About seven months ago she decided to take a prolonged vacation. Now, however, she says she is thoroughly rested and wants to get back to work.

Sally Crute of Metro advances it as her opinion that a blonde is the logical vampire, not being suspected so easily as the serpentine brunette of languorous look.

Mutual announces the acquisition of Francilia Billington. She is extremely pretty and a daring horsewoman. Her first work in films was with the Kalem company. She then went to the New York Motion Picture corporation and then with Universal.

Nell Craig wants to become a director.

The Christie studio has been in the grip of an epidemic of colds. Mr. Christie himself, Harry Ham, and Billie Rhodes have all been telephoning in shivery excuses for not appearing at work.

ASK ME! ASK ME!

This department appears every day in "The Daily Tribune."

GWENDOLYN: Auburn hair and blue eyes.

LOUISE S.: What do I look like? Why, I don't know. I can tell you, though, that I'm looking pleased right this minute. If I had a picture I certainly would send it to you, but, alas, I seem to have no time in which to get my photy taken. That was such a nice letter, Louise S.

VERONICA: Mary Pickford is blonde. I should say about 50-50.

LOUISE: You keep right on being simply wild! I like it. Tom Forman says he is not married. I interviewed Marguerite Clarke one time when she was playing on the "legitimate." Eugene O'Brien played with Mary Pickford in "Poor Little Peppina."

DIXIE GIRL: I don't know why Earl Williams doesn't marry Anita Stewart. If I didn't think they would think me nosey I'd write and demand his reasons, but I hate to be snubbed, Dixie Girl. Maybe some time your wish to see Harold Lockwood will be granted. I, too, think Bryant Washburn is attractive. Write again some time.

WRITER: I have an article on scenario writing and list of firms that accept scenarios. I will be awfully glad to mail it to you if you will send me a stamped, addressed envelope.

Glee Clubs Open Festive Season's Entertainments.

By Mme. X.

WHEE-EW! Christmas is only eight days ahead of us, while the holidays, with their influx of youth, are close at hand. Are you ready? Is your Christmas shopping done? Are the programs of dances, dinners, luncheons all filled?

The two principal foci, from the young people's point of view, of the festive season are the college glee club entertainments. The Princeton men, those members of the Triangle club who are "doing circuit" this year, arrive next Saturday and give two performances of their this year's musical comedy, "Safety First," at the Strand theater, the first in the afternoon and the second in the evening. Their local patron saint is Mrs. Cyrus Hall McCormick, who will entertain them this year, as in preceding years, with a breakfast followed by a dance. In the evening she gives a dinner of twenty-four in honor of her son, Gordon McCormick, a Princeton senior.

Mrs. George Isham is the especial sponsor for the Yale men who come with their Glee, Banjo, and Mandolin club on Dec. 26. Mrs. Isham gives a tea-dance for them on the day following their concert, and a dinner for her son, Henry Porter Isham, a Yale sophomore, preceding Tuesday's performance at Orchestra hall. John J. Mitchell Jr., Carroll Sudler Jr., and Leonard Marshall are the Chicago men in this year's glee club.

Among the boxholders for this concert will be the Mesdames Ogden Armour, John Borden, Cyrus Bentley, E. A. Hamill, Arthur Meeker, George S. Isham, and Henry N. Tuttle.

It takes sturdy youth to accomplish the Yale men's professional and social program here, as besides the entertainments mentioned and many small ones, they give a dance at the Blackstone following their concert and remain over for Mrs. Armour's ball the next evening.

The Yale men are making a departure from custom in that they are devoting their profits to the use of needy students in their alma mater. Heretofore, after paying expenses, most college glee clubs have turned their proceeds into their respective associations' exchequers.

At the Opera.

This year's record of our grand opera company would be hard to beat. Up to last Sunday Mr. Campanini had put on twenty operas in twenty-eight days. This year the Metropolitan Opera company in New York had put on sixteen operas in thirty days. Hats off to the maestro!

Hats off anyway. Why do Chicago women wear hats and afternoon costumes in boxes at evening opera performances? The opera is not alone a musical affair; it is equally a social function and as such certain conventions should be observed and chief among these is the universal custom—instituted in older, more formal communities than ours, that grand opera is essentially a full dress affair.

In Russia no one is allowed to take an outer wrap, even of the richest sable or rarest ermine, into a box, no matter what depths the thermometer reaches. In Paris and London no one is admitted into the first two rows of opera boxes unless they are in full dress.

But we have no social autocrat, so we have to try to secure the chic and correct appearance of our opera audiences by gentler methods. If people can afford to sit in boxes and in the main floor seats they can afford the suitable attire for such opera locations. Chicago is far enough advanced from its backwoods days and from its century of provincialism to look sophisticated and up to date in public places. Even at theaters nowadays the smart world wears full evening dress, though the predominating fashion at most of our playhouses seems still to be afternoon, or "demi-toilette."

New Homes Near the Drive.

There will soon be various new, permanent residents added to the already popular region adjoining the Lake Shore drive. The Frank and Arthur Farwells and George McKinlocks have lately acquired the Goudy lot in East Goethe street, recently dedicated by rumor to a big apartment house. The Frank Farwells and McKinlocks are going to build in the spring. Plans for their houses are now being evolved by Gamble Rogers, formerly of Chicago, now of New York.

Just what disposition the Arthur Farwells will make of their holding is not yet announced. They have only been a month in their own new house, which lies directly across the street from this newly acquired property. Their architect, Mr. Rogers, plans to have the two new residences resemble in style and architecture the Arthur Farwell mansion. The trio will make quite a "Rogers group."

Being woefully ignorant in architecture we are most eager to know why Mr. Rogers has put those two fiercely barred windows on the second floor of the Farwell house. Is it to keep people out or in?

East Oak street is soon to be thrown open to Chicago's "socially prominent." The "Harry" Hubbards, the "Eddie" Popes, and the "B. L. T.'s" have quietly and unostentatiously acquired four houses in a row there, two doors east of the Bandbox.

The Hubbards are going to strip the front off the first two of these and turn them into a residence with a big studio for Mr. Hubbard on the top floor—Mr. Hubbard being a sculptor of parts. Next door to them the Popes are going to work a similar change in the outward appearance of what is now an inconspicuous structure, while still further east the master of the Line O' Type will also rip off the plain exterior of a simple lodging house and transform it into a fitting shrine for music and literature, Mrs. B. L. Taylor being an exceptionally fine pianist, with a passion for Brahms.

Former Chicagoans in Town.

Well known former Chicagoans, the Oliver Henry Wallops, were in town last week for a minute—that is they arrived Monday afternoon at Dr. Samuel Walker's colonial mansion on Lincoln parkway, (Dr. Walker is Mrs. Wallops' brother) and departed for New York early Tuesday morning. They are on their way to England to see their eldest son, Gerard Wallop, a lad of a little over 18 years. Their visit is a particularly urgent one, as he is to go to the front with his regiment in a month's time, having been in training for a year or so. He is the heir presumptive to the present Earl of Portsmouth, his uncle. The latter has no son and between Gerard Wallop and the title are an invalid uncle and his father.

This column tottered with pride at the conspicuous position it occupied in Percy Hammond's last Sunday's screed—one of the most delightful and entertaining bits of newspaper writing we ever read, we hasten to admit. We regret that, as we own no rapier so keen as his, we can not answer him in kind. But we venture, in view of his final misleading sentence, supposed to be quoted, to say that if he dubs us "Careless Caroline" we return with a "Prevaricating Percy.",

Bazaar Committee Meets.

In spite of peace propositions, the promoters of the allied bazaar are going ahead with their gigantic preparations. At the meeting of the general committee last Wednesday morning, each of the committee chairmen rose in turn to Russell Tyson's roll call and told of the progress made, and certainly fifty different branches of the organization were represented on that occasion.

Passing them in review, besides Russell Tyson were Mrs. Joseph G. Coleman (who looked remarkably well again, considering her recent serious indisposition), Mrs. Morris Johnston, the world's greatest publicity agent, and Mr. Lewis, the bazaar's general factotum.

These four, with a note taking stenographer, sat at a table facing the room full of reporting workers. At one side was a colored sketch of the Coliseum as it will look when everything is completed and in shape, a gay and many hued scheme. The sun shone cheerfully in at the window and the atmosphere was one of quiet purposefulness and optimism as to the ultimate result. To the observer it seemed amazing that an enterprize that plans to raise in ten days two, three, or four hundred thousand dollars—a pretty big undertaking—should be working with so little creaking of the wheels. There was no feeling of hustle, although the bazaar is less than four weeks off.

Mrs. Kellogg Fairbank gave the longest report of work accomplished and plans ahead. On a recent trip to New York she secured the coöperation of practically all the theatrical stars and vaudeville specialists who will be here in January. Mort Singer placed all his manifold resources at her command. Mr. Campanini has allotted to her service many of his operatic folks, and she has practically filled up those ten afternoons and evenings with a continuous program.

Howard and Thorne Help.

She and Mrs. "Joe" Winterbotham, her fellow chairman, have also made all restaurant arrangements, which include afternoon tea, dinner, and supper for all who have the coin. She has furthermore enlisted the active coöperation of two of Chicago's "livest wires," Harold Howard and James Ward Thorne.

The former is to have charge of the Midway, which will be transformed into a "Streets of Cairo," with fortune tellers, dancing girls, Turkish coffee, Egyptian cigarettes, camels, sphynxes and pyramids, all in great abundance.

Mr. Thorne is to be in charge of a shooting gallery, always a popular feature at a bazaar. I suppose that as a nation we are probably the poorest marksmen in the world today. Gone are the days of western six-shooters that were fired with unerring aim from hind hip pockets.

I had almost forgotten one feature of Mrs. Fairbank's division, and that is the eighteen boxes which will be so constructed that one can dine six or eight people in them while having a full view of the show the whole time. These are to be sold at $100 for the season, and will give the owners and guests many privileges, chief of which is being able to walk in and out of the cabaret the whole day without paying each time. Dinners—especially for the opening night—are already being booked. Twelve of these eighteen boxes have been disposed of up to date.

Paintings for Italian Booth.

Due possibly to a predilection, begun many years ago for almost everything Italian, the report from Mrs. Herman Kohlsaat as to the achievements of her committee in charge of the Italian booth appeals especially to the present writer. Chief among the many beautiful things being collected for sale in this booth is a wonderful collection of cinque cento paintings from the Cardinal Rampolla collections and the famous Palazzo Venezia galleries at Rome.

The Palazzo Venesia is one of the famous landmarks in the Eternal City, but, because it has been for nearly a century occupied by the Austrian embassy to the Vatican, its picture galleries have never been thrown open to the public. Now Austria is turned out of the grim old palace and its paintings are being sent out into the world to bring back money to Italy's depleted coffers. A noted Roman expert, a celebrated professor of art at the University of Bologna and Count Bolognesi's stepfather (name unknown to us), have selected the pictures for this American expedition. The collection will be exhibited first at the Arts club and the Art institute, so that you will have plenty of opportunity of studying and picking out your favorite old master. In this way are the treasures of unhappy Europe flowing to our happy shores.

Tree's Birthday Party.

Sir Herbert Beerbohm Tree's birthday party, given by the Chicago Farmington society, tomorrow afternoon in the Blackstone hotel crystal ballroom, bids fair to be an interesting and momentous occasion. Sir Herbert promises his fair hostesses a surprise in addition to the program already announced.

One of the features of the entertainment will be the four queens and the fifteen ushers who will be impersonated by Chicago young matrons and maids. Mrs. James B. Forgan Jr. will be Queen Elizabeth of England, while Queen Gertrude of Denmark, Queen Isabel of France, and Cleopatra of Egypt will be represented by the Misses Gladys Bond, Katherine Baird, and Frances Marshall. These four queens will be "door girls" (rather a come down for queen!), while the fifteen ushers will impersonate Shakespeare's many fair women—Portia, Beatrice, Rosalind, and their ilk. Among these ushers will be the Misses Doris Russell, Elizabeth Adsit, Eleanor West, Eleanor Holden, Virginia Marshall—alas that wood pulp is too rare and costly to give all the names.

The Farmington society supports one of the most valuable and helpful institutions in the city, a visiting housekeeper, whose task is to go from home to home among the poorer folk to give them scientific and practical instruction how best to use their small resources, buy and prepare their food, and keep their houses clean and sweet.

It strikes so at the root of many evils that one wonders that there are not hundreds of visiting housekeepers scattered all through the city. A clean house and palatable food would do more to counteract the influence of the saloon and to diminish the claims on hospitals for care and shelter than any other agency.

IMPORTANT ANNOUNCEMENT

Commencing Monday, December 18th, The Barrowman-Wynes Company, 10th floor, Stevens Building, 17 No. State Street, will be known as the King-Kelly Company. This store will be managed in conjunction with the King-Kelly Company, 8th floor, Mentor Building, 39 So. State St.

In taking over the Barrowman-Wynes Store, the King-Kelly Company will continue the same merchandising policy which has characterized successfully both the Barrowman-Wynes Company and the King-Kelly Company of 39 So. State Street. This policy has always been to offer the public standard suits, coats and dresses at prices considerably lower than the standard prices.

The King-Kelly Company are pleased to announce that they will be able to give their patrons even better service and greater price reductions on standard garments than ever. We can do this because of our increased facilities for accommodating patrons, because by branching out we will have a bigger buying power, which subsequently means a greater saving for our customers. Both stores are above the high rent district, which assures you a saving from over $5.00 to $10.00 on every garment.

NEWS OF THE CHICAGO WOMEN'S CLUBS

Miss Lucy M. Lowry

Mrs. Harlan Ward Cooley

Mrs. Harlan Ward Cooley is president of the Chicago Woman's club, whose reform department will have a special program on Wednesday on "Our Courts." Tentative plans have already been made for the club's new building, for which the lot was purchased last spring.

Mrs. Lucy M. Lowry will take part in the dramatic cantata, "The Spectre's Bride," which will be given on Wednesday evening at Orchestra hall by the University Singing society of St. Ignatius' church and the Smetoma society of the west side. The performance is for the benefit of the new church that is to be built at Loyola and Glenwood avenues.

Chicago Woman's Club a Power for City Betterment.

By Hazel Whitaker.

THAT twelve hundred women can work together forty years for the mutual good of all concerned in a "united effort toward the higher civilization of humanity" has been proven beyond doubt by the Chicago Woman's club. In these years it has become a power in all matters pertaining to the betterment of the city and the state, as well as in the later sphere of politics.

The coming week, like all others, has many activities listed, for practically every hour of the day almost every day of the week marks some meeting in this busy club.

On Wednesday morning at 11 o'clock Dr. Thomas Leonard of the Lincoln State school and colony will give a stereopticon lecture to the philanthropy department on the method of caring for the feeble minded, showing the different types in the school. The reform department will hold a business meeting at 10:30 a. m. on Wednesday, the general subject, "Our Courts," to be in charge of Mrs. William Linn, Mrs. Arthur I. Stephens, and Mrs. Harry Hart. The following subjects will be discussed: The Boys' court, the Juvenile court, the parental parole system, the St. Charles school, and the Geneva school for girls. At 10:30 the same morning the art and literature and the philosophy and science departments will hold business meetings.

The regular literary meeting of the club will be held in Recital hall at 2 p. m. on Wednesday. Miss Florence Fitch, director of art instruction in the Indianapolis schools, will speak on "Art and Its Relation to Civics." There will be illustrations and a discussion by Miss Lucy S. Silke and George Eggers.

The four original departments, the home, education, philanthropy, and reform, have remained the same with the later addition of the art and literature, the philosophy and science, and the most recent, the efficiency department.

In the early days the club was responsible for securing a night matron in police stations, in establishing a scholarship at the Art institute, in founding what became the Legal Aid society, and still later the Children's Hospital society, an outgrowth of which was the Children's hospital; the School Children's Aid society; a scientific laboratory from which pure milk was dispensed to the needy; more recently the Juvenile Protective agency, the jail school for boys, vacation schools, an employment agency both at the time of the World's fair and again in 1915, and innumerable other splendid acts of civic work. In all the records show that [illegible] has been contributed for the city's welfare, not including many unrecorded personal gifts.

At the same time the educational side of the club has grown into courses of study that would do credit to a modern university, the art and literature section alone having seven classes and 500 members. Then there are forestry, French, English, German, the drama, music, and literature.

Emergency situations are dealt with by the efficiency department and this fall has held many opportunities for action; the downing of "the local governments bill," the conservation of the dunes, the discussion of the changes in the state penal laws, and the indorsement of Mrs. John C. Bley as state food inspector being among the matters brought up. The municipal pier committee was responsible for the pier entertainments last summer and is now working to have a heating plant installed so that the pier may be used for an all year round amusement center, with a library and day nursery installed. The reform department publishes a monthly journal which deals with needed reforms of all kinds, and also has charge of the first aid cases that are given in coöperation with the Red Cross society.

Last, but most important, as far as the future is concerned, is the new club home that has become much of a reality since last May, when a lot was purchased for $225,000. Already over half of this amount has been pledged, and [illegible] has been paid. Strenuous efforts are being made by the building committee, under the chairmanship of Miss Grace Temple, to reduce the debt as rapidly as possible. Some of the study classes are turning over all their proceeds, and several life memberships have been taken out.

Already fifteen organizations have applied for permanent space in the new building, which will be entirely self-supporting, with an auditorium and several large banquet halls. The need of the club for commodious permanent quarters is imperative with the increase of activities and the added interest of all members. With the accomplishment of this the oldest woman's club in the city will also have the distinction of being the first to own a home downtown.

The present officers are: Mrs. Harlan Ward Cooley, president; Mrs. Edwin Lyman Lobdell, first vice president; Mrs. Agnes Newell Metcalf, second vice president; Miss Mary West, recording secretary; Miss Alice Moran, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Charles H. Betts, treasurer. The directors are:

Mrs. P. S. Wild,
Mrs. Leslie Lewis,
Mrs. C. E. Caldwell,
Mrs. H. Landauer,
Mrs. J. W. McGraw,
Mrs. W. D. Washburn,
Mrs. W. J. Bogan,
Mrs. Geo. Packard,
Mrs. J. F. Porter,
Mrs. J. E. Driver,
Miss Katherine A. Jones,
Mrs. W. K. Kenly,
Mrs. J. E. Keith,
Mrs. F. L. Gordon,
Mrs. Eben Lane,
Mrs. J. W. Moore,
Mrs. William Lyman,
Mrs. R. M. Gray.

Mrs. George W. Plummer is the parliamentarian.

The art and literature class of the North End club will meet on Tuesday at 10 a. m.

A reception and musical will be held by the North End club to the new members tomorrow afternoon. On New Year's day the club will receive at the Edgewater Country club from 2 to 5 p. m.

A dramatic cantata, "The Spectre's Bride," by Dvorak, will be given on Wednesday evening at Orchestra hall by two combined singing societies, the University society of St. Ignatius church, Loyola and Glenwood avenues, and the Smetoma, a west side singing organization.

South Carolina colony of the Illinois Colony club, of which Mrs. Joseph R. Blair is chief, will hold its regular business meeting tomorrow at 11:30 a. m. at the Edgewater Athletic club, 4526 Sheridan road. Luncheon will be served at 12:30 o'clock.

The travel class of the Ravenswood Woman's club will meet on Tuesday at 2:30 p. m. at the residence of Mrs. G. N. Bussey, 4543 North Hermitage avenue.

SOUTH SIDE CLUBS

The Chicago Woman's aid announces its midwinter social for Tuesday at 2 o'clock at Sinai temple. The program is under the direction of Lester Alden.

On Wednesday at 10 a. m. Dr. Emil G. Hirsch will conduct the current topic study class at Sinai Social center. His subject will be "Private and Public Charities."

At the Fifteenth Ward Civic league meeting at Lowell school at 2 p. m. tomorrow the speaker will be Fred Gale Woods on "The High Cost of Living."

The Chicago Lawn Woman's club will meet in the Congregational church at Sixty-second place and St. Louis avenue at 2:15 on Tuesday. The subject will be "The Sarah Hackett Stevenson Memorial Lodging house." The hostess will be Mrs. George M. Tobey.

The following lectures will be given at Sinai Social center during the week: Monday, at 8 p. m., Prof. Frederick Star of the University of Chicago on "Mexico Today"; Tuesday, at 10:30 a. m., Oscar Blumenthal on "Rodin"; Thursday, at 8 p. m., Dr. Emil G. Hirsch on "The New Testament from a Jewish Point of View."

This afternoon's program for Sunday at the Sarah Hackett Stevenson Memorial Lodging house, 2412 Prairie avenue, will be given by Miss Dorothy Meadows, Mrs. Blanche Kapsa, Miss Hazel Goodwin, and Miss Vera Harries.

The regular meeting of the Francis Willard Parent-Teacher association will take place in the new auditorium of the school, Forty-ninth street and St. Lawrence avenue, tomorrow at 2:45 p. m. Mrs. Helen Rhuman Ransom will speak on the "Psychology of Music" and Miss Jeanette Shapiro will give a reading.

The Woodlawn Mothers' Round Table will meet on Wednesday at 2 p. m. Miss Emma R. McGill will give "a heart to heart talk on Christmas giving."

The Mathesis club will hold its Christmas tea on Wednesday at 2 p. m. at the Boulevard Masonic hall, 5505 South Halsted street. Mrs. Robert White is chairman.

The literature department of the Ambrose Woman's club will meet on Thursday, at the residence of Mrs. Harry Byrne, 4919 Lake Park avenue. Mrs. Anthony French Merrill will lecture.

The auxiliary of the South Side Catholic Woman's club will give its annual charity ball on Friday, Jan. 12, at the Colonial club house, Forty-fifth street and Grand boulevard. Miss Mary Carlin is chairman, assisted by Miss Belle Shaw and Miss Margaret Pyne.

The Third Ward Civic league is giving a Christmas tree party at the Third United Presbyterian church, Evans avenue and Forty-sixth street, on Thursday at 2 p. m. There will be toys and candy for the children and 100 baskets will be distributed to the poor. Mrs. Albert Levy of 4628 Champlain avenue is chairman and her board of directors will assist at the entertainment.

Children of the south side will be entertained with an out of door Christmas tree and festival at Michigan avenue and Garfield boulevard holiday week. The children will give such plays and drills each evening as the weather will permit. Honor medals and prizes will be awarded to the children who take part in the exercises.

There will be no afternoon meeting of the Woodlawn Woman's club on Tuesday. The history and travel department will meet at 10 a. m. Mrs. R. B. Wilson will be the leader. "Commerce and Government of South America" will be discussed.

First aid classes from the Ambrose Woman's club will meet on Wednesday and Thursday at 4 p. m. in Kenrose hall. Dr. S. C. Plummer has charge of the former and Dr. Paul B. Magnusom of the latter.

Tomorrow at the Hyde Park Travel club, Fifty-fourth street and Blackstone avenue, Daniel Protheroe will give the history of Welch music and Miss Helen Protheroe will sing the Welsh songs.

Tomorrow morning's program at the Englewood Woman's club will be in charge of the music study class, with the chairman, Mrs. William Titus, presiding. A paper on "Youth in Music" will be given by Mrs. Marion Dugger, with illustrations by children of members of the club.

Tomorrow at the Washington Park Woman's club, 6232 Eberhart avenue, there will be an address on "Legislative Measures" by Mrs. Harrison Monro Brown, former president of the Illinois Equal Suffrage association. Mrs. Catherine Collins will be hostess.

Chapter D, Illinois P. E. O., will meet on Thursday at the home of Mrs. J. R. McDougall, 4601 Woodlawn avenue.

WASHINGTON SOCIETY by MME. Z.

First of State Dinners Given by the President.

WASHINGTON, D. C.—[Special Correspondence.]—What though the official season was formally opened during the week by the first state function, the president's dinner to the vice president and cabinet, the real interest of a good part of Washington society centered around an entirely unofficial young woman and a man who probably will cease forthwith to be official—Katherine Britton and Prince zu Hohenlohe-Schillingsfurst.

Miss Britton's friends were so absolutely sure that the twain were about to be made one that they carried conviction, in spite of the fact that the Brittons "had nothing to say" and the Austrian embassy "knew nothing about the matter," and the prince was not in Washington. And for once gossip was right.

But it would not be decent, writing from Washington, to give a mere romance precedence over the president, cabinet, and a group of notables among whom, by the way, Chicago was pretty well represented by Mr. and Mrs. Cyrus McCormick, Mrs. George Bass, Miss Jane Addams, and Thomas D. Jones, the latter being among the house guests of the president and Mrs. Wilson.

Mrs. Wilson Radiant in Black.

The table was lovely with pink Killarney roses and maidenhair, and Mrs. Wilson radiant in the black that she affects for evening wear. This time it was black jetted with silver embroideries, and particularly becoming to the first lady. Both Mrs Wilson and Miss Margaret Wilson seem to have laid to heart the axiom that it is wise to match either hair or eyes in dress.

Mrs Wilson with her clouds of hair that is close to black wears more black than anything else. Miss Wilson is much given to turquoise blue for evening wear, and to other shades of blue at other times, probably realizing that her blue eyes will reflect her gown most becomingly. Tuesday night it was turquoise blue satin, with handsome bead trimmings. Naturally those long dangling earrings which Miss Wilson particularly loves were in evidence.

The secretary of war was out of town on Tuesday night, and Mrs. Baker had to attend her first cabinet dinner without her husband. The only other absentees were Secretary and Mrs. Lane, who are in mourning for Mr. Lane's brother, who died recently, and Secretary of Labor and Mrs. Wilson, who are in mourning for Secretary Wilson's brother, who was killed in a mine accident only a few weeks ago.

Anti-Suffragists Entertain.

Suffrage and anti-suffrage have both been pretty busy in the capital lately. The antis held a convention here during the closing days of last week and were so variously entertained that one wondered when they had any time for business. But they did. And Saturday night the National Woman's Suffrage association had a house warming which brought out practically all of society that is friendly inclined to suffrage.

As for the "antis" they are as aristocratic and well dressed a bunch of women as have ever gathered in the national capital, not excepting the D. A. R., or even the Colonial Dames. The banquet they gave at Rauscher's at which some 350 women and perhaps 50 men were present was as brilliant an affair of the sort as one would want to see.

At one table well up near the speakers' table I noted Mrs. Lansing, Senator and Mrs. James Wadsworth Jr. of New York, Senator and Mrs. Weeks of Massachusetts, Mrs William Phillips, wife of the third assistant secretary of state, probably the most handsomely dressed woman in the room.

Establish Permanent Home.

The National Association for Woman's Suffrage, having decided to follow the Congressional union's example and take a house where it might establish pleasant and practicable permanent Washington headquarters, had a nice house-warming party Saturday night. Its line was headed throughout the evening by Mrs. Borden Harriman as chairman of the reception committee and Mrs. Carrie Chapman Catt, president of the organization, and included at one time or another three cabinet women, Mrs. Baker, Mrs. Houston, and Mrs. Daniels (who had her mother, Mrs. Bagley, with her) and divers social notables, such as Mrs. Glendower Evans, Mrs. Adolph Miller, Mrs. Louis D. Brandeis, Mrs. Frederick Brooke, Mrs. Harriet Blaine Beale, and Countess Gizycka, the latter coming from a woman's dinner at Mrs. Longworth's.

Miss Britton a Bride.

To return to Katherine Britton and her prince: They actually got married on Thursday at the Britton home. The idea that the new emperor of Austria was going to give them his blessing seems to have been a mistake. Prince Hohenlohe apparently has decided to get along without it.

NEWS OF THE CHICAGO WOMEN'S CLUBS

NEW YORK SOCIETY by MME. Y.

Most New Yorkers Live in Country, Blue Book Shows

NEW YORK.—[Special Correspondence.]—The new social register, just issued, bears evidence to the truth of an observation I have had in mind to make for some time. The smart set of New York is copying the English custom of living in the country and coming into town for only a few months, usually spent at a hotel. Without stopping to make up a list, I can think of three or four families I have told you about in this column as taking to the beautiful country far out along the long, winding roads of Westchester and Long Island.

There are Mrs. W. K. Vanderbilt Jr., the Harry Payne Whitneys, Mrs. O. H. P. Belmont, the Sheppards, and the Adamses. For every one who has given up a mansion on Fifth avenue, a fashionable business has stepped in. I venture to say that any one who has not been to New York in five years would notice a decided change.

There are those who maintain that "the island"—referring to Manhattan—will one day be given over entirely to business and the residents will occupy the outlying districts. Twenty-five per cent of the families sufficiently well to do to be in the social register now live in the country, as against 15 per cent of a few years ago.

Philadelphia, it must be said, still "has it on us," however, in its wholesome love of outdoor life. Fifty per cent of her smart set live in the country and engage in outdoor sports. But New York is the subject of our remarks. The gaps made by the deserters of the "old town" are filled by the wealthy of other cities, who "come on" here for a period of residence. It brings me to another item I had meant for some tome to mention.

Give Buds Two Debuts.

It is getting to be "the thing" throughout the United States to introduce debutantes in their home town and then bring them to New York for a stay. Before the war, they used to go to London—at least if not in their first year, very early in their careers. In other words, they are shown all round like a horse in horse shows, that all of the eligibles may get their points. Five hundred and eighty-two families of other cities are recorded in the social register of New York.

A brilliant instance of what I have been citing is the case of Miss Doris Fletcher Ryer, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fletcher F. Ryer of San Francisco. After the young woman had made her bow in the west she and her mother came down to New York for the winter and went to Newport for the season there. Now the girl is going to marry, and her wedding is to be one of the large, smart events of New York. Her husband to be, naturally enough, is an easterner. Thus is the prominent family of the west moved to New York and settled in our aristocracy. The bridegroom is Lewis Nixon. His father has large shipbuilding interests. The family are southern, some of the antecedents having founded the town of Winchester in Virginia. The girl's mother has taken an apartment in town for the winter, and that goes to help prove another point which I might have made above. More of the smart families are giving up their houses and taking to apartments every winter.

By way of further illustrating my point, a large portion of the social register assembled one evening last week at the Long Island residence of Mr. and Mrs. F. Skiddy Von Stade for a dance. The young woman, you will remember, was Miss Steele, a sister of Mrs. Devereux Milburn. I chronicled her country marriage about two years ago. The weather was wretched, but, nevertheless, just as our grandmothers and fathers used to go over rutty, dirt roads in "buggies" to the country dance, so the smart set with millions in bank accounts plugged along in motors to this affair. When they gathered in the ballroom you would never have thought they had come through such a downpour. I was talking to the hostess over the telephone and in quoting her I further prove my thesis. "It was just a neighborhood affair. Just our friends on Long Island. Hardly anybody from New York." The ballroom was gay with flowers and palms.

Bazaars Going Out.

To mention another change that is coming over smart society: It is getting so that it simply loathes bazaars. No wonder when you remember at how many they have served. The Russian bazaar this year was a success, and yet many of the richest and greatest patrons of it felt that they had done their duty when they mailed in a fat check. Many of those who worked hard last year did not appear.

The winner's stakes this year go to the debutante by the name of Miss Lilly Marguerite Stehli of 13 West Seventy-sixth street. At her very debut party her parents announced her engagement. She is going to marry Paul Hyde Bonner of Brooklyn. Miss Stehli was graduated from a private school last spring and has many acquaintances in the younger set of society. Her father has extensive business associations here and abroad. Mr. Bonner is a son of Mr. Paul E. Bonner, president of the North Side bank of Brooklyn.

The very great change brought about in the plans of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Payne Whitney (on account of the death of Mr. Whitney's sister in London) is carried in the announcement that they will pass the winter in Aiken. You will remember that they were going to present their daughter to society in New York. They are among those who forsook Fifth avenue for the country, and society earlier was planning to enjoy itself thoroughly on their beautiful Long Island estate. Now they are having their southern estate put in order, and one is reminded that one person's loss is another's gain. Everybody thereabouts is rejoicing that they are coming. It will be the first season they have passed there in many years.

SOCIETY

The Princeton club of Chicago announces the presentation of a musical comedy, entitled "Safety First," by the Triangle club of Princeton university on Saturday afternoon and evening in the Strand theater.

A house party of Christmas week will be given by Miss Lolita Armour in the Lake Forest home of the Armours. The guests of honor are to be Miss Alice Silverthorne and Miss Elizabeth Chapin of New York, both well known in the younger set here. Miss Armour was recently the guest of Miss Chapin while in the east attending the Army-Navy game.

Entertainments for Christmas week include a luncheon on Dec. 30, given by Mrs. John Crerar, 1901 Prairie avenue, for her daughter, Miss Marie, who is a student at Bryn Mawr. There is to be dancing after the luncheon. On the 23d Mrs. Ida Couch Wood will give a debut tea-dance for her daughter, Miss Louise Holabird Wood, in the Fortnightly rooms in the Fine Arts building.

Because of conflicting dates, Mr. and Mrs. Robert T. Newberry and Mr. and Mrs. Orgh Taft Jr. have changed their dance from Jan. 2 to Tuesday Jan. 9. The dance will be given at the Casino club and in honor of Miss Betty Newberry and Miss Florence Taft.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Hibbard will give a dinner for Miss Alice Buckingham before Mr. and Mrs. Ogden Armour's dance on Dec. 27.

The Friendly Aid society will hold a Christmas sale at the home of Mrs. Edward Tilden, 5620 Woodlawn avenue, on Thursday from 10 a. m. to 6 p. m.

PERSONALS

Mrs. Hobart Chatfield-Taylor, who returned to Lake Forest on Tuesday, will give a young people's luncheon today at her home. Mrs. Chatfield-Taylor has been visiting in the east for some weeks. She will be at the Virginia hotel excepting week ends, when she will go out to Lake Forest. In January she expects to leave with Mr. Taylor for Santa Barbara, where their new home will be ready for them.

Mr. and Mrs. Paul V. Harper will depart for Minneapolis the latter part of the week to pass the holidays with Mrs. Harper's parents, Dr. George Vincent and Mrs. Vincent.

Mr. and Mrs. Secor Cunningham gave a dinner-dance on Wednesday evening for their niece, Miss Emma Louise Stone, daughter of Mrs. Niels Gron, at the Saddle and Cycle club. There were 100 guests, the occasion being the debut of Miss Stone, who has been in England for several years past.

Mrs. George Manierre of 100 Bellevue place, Mrs. Francis Edgerton Manierre, Mrs. Alfred Edgerton Manierre, and Mrs. Cyrus Edson Manierre gave a large reception on Wednesday afternoon from 4 until 6 o'clock.

Mrs. Rosamond MacClanahan, 817 Montrose avenue, has resigned her position in the Francis Scott Key school, where she has taught for twenty-five years, and will reside with her daughter, Mrs. Wilfred Grenfel, in Boston. She will accompany her daughter and family to Labrador next summer. Sir Wilfred Grenfel has become famous for his missionary work among the people of Labrador.

Dr. Ralph Kuhns, son of Mr. and Mrs. S. Kuhns of 4407 Berkeley avenue, will return from Germany to spend the holidays with his parents. For the last eight months he has been one of the surgeons in the base hospital at Deutsch Eylan.

Mr. and Mrs. George W. Blossom of Hubbard Woods and their daughter, Miss Katherine Blossom, are at the Blackstone hotel.

Mrs. Albert H. Hoy and her daughter, Miss Elizabeth Hoy, have arrived in Chicago for their annual visit from London, and are guests at the Congress hotel.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Sommers Young, who have been living in California for the last six years, have returned to Chicago and are residing at 200 East Delaware place.

Members of the O. C. M. A. fraternity gave an informal dance on Friday night at the St. George hotel. Miss Helen McDonald and Charles Orme led the left and Miss Belle Allen and James Condon led the right wing of the grand march.

The Bachelors' club of Woodlawn will give a dinner in the banquet hall of the St. George hotel on Friday evening. Covers will be laid for fifty.

The Hot Springs of Arkansas

Pleasure Assured
Health Insured

TAKE A WINTER HOLIDAY AT HOT SPRINGS

—one you'll return from with better health and bigger enthusiasm — one that will give you a real rest — a change — a chance to enjoy your favorite recreation. Ideal climate, beautiful scenery, interesting people. One of the finest golf courses in the country, open all winter long in a temperature that never falls below 62 degrees. Tennis, horseback riding, mountain climbing, motoring, and many other outdoor amusements available all winter long. The clear, crisp mountain air makes every bit of exercise a keen pleasure. That's why many of the big league ball teams come here for training. You can watch their practice games. Every attraction of a big city — all the pleasures of resort life or the quiet life you love in a restful climate.

Owned and Controlled by the U. S. Government.

The Hot Springs of Arkansas are on the beautiful Government reservation—their virtues are endorsed and their use is controlled and regulated by Uncle Sam. To his fine army and navy hospital here he sends his soldiers and sailors for rheumatism, liver, skin and stomach troubles and they go away cured.

Old Sol winters on the Florida East Coast

Why not You!

It's the True Land of Golden Sunshine, where Health, Strength and Happiness may be Yours for the asking.

Just a short, pleasant journey, and gray skies become blue; harsh, biting winds are changed to gentle zephyrs, and the whole landscape is transformed, by a wizard's touch, from grim, bleak winter to beautiful summer.

DAYTONA, FLA.
ON THE BEAUTIFUL HALIFAX RIVER
"The Prettiest Winter Resort in the World"

The Most delightful Spot in Florida. Daytona's natural beauties are unequalled in a State of unending attractiveness.

The Climate is Equable—never too cold, and free from the fatiguing humidity common to other winter resorts. Here out-door life may be enjoyed alike by the old and young, the invalid or the most strenuously inclined.

Free concerts, twice daily, at Casino Burgoyne.

The Halifax River and its tributaries abound in fish, and both large and small game may be found in plenty within the radius of a few miles. The Atlantic Ocean is less than a mile away. The Surf Bathing is excellent, and the celebrated Daytona Beach, a quarter mile wide, 35 miles long and as hard as macadam, is unsurpassed for motoring. New Trolley Line to Beach and Golf Links.

Modern and well kept hotels offer accomodations to meet all conditions, from the conveniences of the handsomely appointed Metropolitan hotel to the more quiet and homelike atmosphere of the family house. Prices are within the reach of all. For further information, booklets, etc., address

NEWS OF THE RELIGIOUS WORLD.

St. Patrick's to Celebrate Its 60th Anniversary.

By the Rev. W. B. Norton

ST. PATRICK'S Roman Catholic church, Adams and Desplaines streets, is preparing to celebrate the sixtieth anniversary of the dedication of its present building on Christmas day. The parish is ten years older, for its first building, located at Desplaines and Randolph streets, was dedicated on Easter Sunday, 1846.

On Christmas the church will be open all day to visitors. Mass will be celebrated beginning at 3:30 a. m. and continuing at 5, 6, 7, 8, 9, 10, 10:45, and 12 o'clock. The high masses will be at 5 and 10:45 o'clock. The combined choirs of 150 voices under the leadership of Dr. J. Lewis Browne, a member of the Royal Philharmonic academy of Rome, will sing carols at all the services. The combined choir is composed of the sanctuary choir of men and boys, a preparatory choir, and a choir of young women, numbering seventy-five, from the congregation. Solemn vespers are sung every Sunday at 3:30 o'clock.

St. Patrick's church, while one of the oldest church buildings in Chicago, has been so thoroughly improved with new shrines, art windows, and altar furnishings it presents a most beautiful appearance. The work of renewal has been done under the pastorate of the Rev. William J. McNamee.

Other improvements in connection with the parish are the establishment of the Catholic social center at Sangamon street and Jackson boulevard, the removal of the St. Patrick's Parochial school to the lot adjoining the rectory, and the building of an extensive addition to the St. Patrick's Commercial academy, which is nearing completion.

Father McNamee is assisted in the parish by the Rev. J. P. Donoghue, the Rev. John L. O'Donnell, the Rev. H. Wills, and the Rev. A. Teta.

The Rev. J. S. Ladd Thomas

The Rev. J. S. Ladd Thomas, pastor of the Austin Methodist Episcopal church, has been elected chairman of the committee of 100 which will have charge of the evangelistic campaign in preparation for the coming of "Billy" Sunday and party next September. Dr. Thomas is the successor of the Rev. M. P. Boynton, who resigned the chairmanship a few weeks ago.

Dr. Thomas has spent his entire ministry in Chicago after his graduation from the Garrett Biblical institute, Evanston. He is a native of Wales and was born a few miles from the birthplace of the British premier, David Lloyd-George, with whom he is well acquainted.

He has been pastor of the Austin church for eight years—the church with the largest membership of any Methodist church in Chicago.

Dr. Thomas was recently called to the pastorate of Center church, Malden, Mass., said to be the strongest Methodist church in New England. He declined the call, although the call was accompanied by an offer of a larger salary than is paid by the Austin church. When in Boston recently he attended the meeting being held there by Billy Sunday. He is in hearty sympathy with Mr. Sunday's coming to Chicago.

The cornerstone of the Unity Evangelical Lutheran church, Balmoral and Magnolia avenue, will be laid today at 3 o'clock. The Rev. J. F. Seibert, superintendent of city missions, will speak at the Bible school at 9:30 and will preach at 10:45 o'clock. The services in connection with the cornerstone laying will be held in the chapel preceding the ceremony. The speakers will be the Rev. C. G. Georgi, the Rev. G. P. Lottich, and the Rev. R. L. Smith. The ceremony of laying the stone will be conducted by the pastor, the Rev. David A. Davy.

Special prayer is asked in all Methodist churches for the meeting of the joint commission on Methodist unification which meets in Baltimore Dec. 28. The commission is charged with planning for the organic union of the Methodist Episcopal church and the Methodist Episcopal Church South, which split on the question of slavery. The original church was organized in Baltimore at the Christmas conference of 1784. The split occurred in 1844.

This is what the Sunday school of the Augsburg English Evangelical Lutheran church proposes to do for Christmas: Notices to the Sunday school read, "Our Christmas services in the Sunday school this year will be a departure from previous services in honor of our Savior's birthday. Instead of the Sunday school receiving a Christmas treat we are going to give, each and all of us, a Christmas gift to the orphans of Nachusa." While this Sunday school is showing the real Christmas spirit in remembering the orphans of a church home, it will be remembered there are thousands of Chicago children, orphans or worse than orphans, who will have no one to plan and work for them unless a sympathetic, don't-care-who-knows-it kind of a Good Fellow comes to their help. We hear about "art for art's sake"; the Good Fellow plan gives a chance to show "love for love's sake."

Prof. Edward A. Steiner of Grinnell college, Iowa, will be the speaker tonight in the Sunday Evening club at Orchestra hall. His subject will be "Adventures in a New Country." Dr. Steiner is the author of many books, including "The Confessions of a Hyphenated American" and "Nationalizing America." Philo A. Otis has arranged as an anthem a new setting of the hymn "A Mighty Fortress Is Our God," and it will be sung by the choir under the direction of O. Gordon Erickson and with the assistance of Gustav Holmquist, the club's basso.

One of the best ways the big hearted men and women in the churches can help the children of Chicago who need help the most and will appreciate a bright Christmas the most keenly is by becoming a TRIBUNE Good Fellow. A Good Fellow gift is no bargain exchange counter gift by which one receives as much as he gives in commercial value. A Good Fellow gift is the bestowment of time and money just because that gift will do some needy and heart hungry child good and will add to the sum of human happiness. Of course, the giver can't help getting a little of the sunshine into his or her own heart, but that is not part of the bargain; it is only the unescapable blessing that follows unselfish giving. This is an opportunity to help without letting the left hand know what the right hand doeth, for you can give without your charity being published to the world, and, unless you want to have it so, you can purchase with your right hand and let your left hand—that is, some one appointed by THE TRIBUNE, distribute it, although a kindly Santa Claus visit in person by the giver on the family helped is strongly recommended by THE TRIBUNE as an added source of joy to both the giver and receiver.

The Hyde Park Presbyterian church used to have a [illegible] class in the Sunday [illegible] made up [illegible] of men. The class was for a time abandoned and has since been revived. The query now is, Shall women be admitted? If a voters' class, why not admit women? William A. McKnight is teacher of the class.

Here is the way one Chicago pastor and his wife feel as expressed in a letter published in the local church paper. A part of the letter reads:

"Dear Friends: As you will remember, it has been the pleasure of the pastor and wife to send a personal Christmas greeting to each home in the church. We are sure it will meet with your approval for us this year to use this money to swell the relief fund which our church is raising for the widows and orphans in war stricken Europe."

The letter is signed by the Rev. [illegible] B. Neel, pastor of the Ravenswood Baptist church, and his wife, Mrs. [illegible] Rhoades Neel.

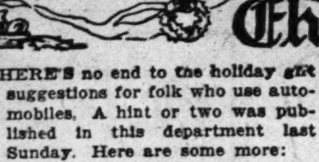
AUTOMOBILES Conducted by SHEPPARD BUTLER MOTORCYCLES

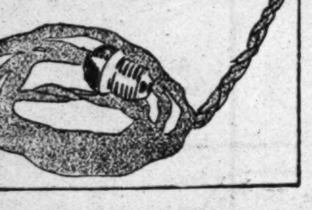
The Motorist's Christmas.

THERE'S no end to the holiday gift suggestions for folk who use automobiles. A hint or two was published in this department last Sunday. Here are some more:

For driving in the snow or rain there is a compact little windshield cleaner, a contraption consisting chiefly of a rubber strip, or squeegee, so attached as to press firmly against the outside surface of the glass, with a handle inside by which the driver may give himself a clear vision space with one sweep of the hand. This is attached to any type of windshield without tools, and doesn't rattle.



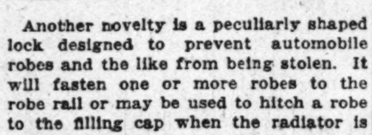
Leaving an automobile over night in an unheated garage is pretty sure, these winter days, to produce a frozen radiator and an engine hard to start in the morning. The little heater pictured here is made to be placed under the hood, on the radiator pipes, attached by its cord to an ordinary electric light socket, and left to work while you sleep. It uses either direct or alternating current and costs $4.



A simple device, of usefulness out of all proportion to its small cost, is the robe rail pocket—a flat bag provided with straps which fasten it to the robe rail. It is designed to contain a great deal of whatever the owner may desire to put in it without taking up any particular room.

The man who takes care of his own car undoubtedly would appreciate a suit of overalls such as have been designed especially for garage work. These have several distinctive touches which set them apart from ordinary working clothes and are calculated to delight the heart of the amateur who loves to tinker judiciously.

For fastidious motorists who don't like mud in the tonneau the shops now have a little "door mat" of just the right size to be carried on the running board during bad weather. The man who wouldn't wipe his feet on such an affair doesn't deserve to be given a ride.



Another novelty is a peculiarly shaped lock designed to prevent automobile robes and the like from being stolen. It will fasten one or more robes to the robe rail or may be used to hitch a robe to the filling cap when the radiator is covered in cold weather. Gloves may be hitched to the steering wheel and overcoats or dusters may be similarly protected by fastening them to various parts of the car.

A useful item of equipment for Ford owners is a specially made floor mat, with openings for control pedals and the like. It fits so that it does not have to be nailed or screwed to the floor boards and is to be had in cork linoleum or flexible steel at prices ranging from $2 to $3.

Questions and Answers

By High

Is it true that the fluid in a storage battery is likely to freeze in cold weather? Some maintain that the liquid cannot freeze, while others say it can. I drive a 1916 car, equipped with an electric starter, and as I keep it in a cold garage, would like to be advised what precautions, if any, I should take with the battery. I keep alcohol in the radiator of the car to keep it from freezing. Would it be all right to put alcohol in the battery? ANXIOUS, Chicago.

Nothing but distilled water should be used in a storage battery, and a good plan is to add enough each week to keep the plates covered. Do not use alcohol under any circumstances. Whether the fluid freezes or not depends upon how low the charge in the battery gets. If the battery is kept well charged the acid in the solution prevents it from freezing, but if the charge runs low the acid is drawn from the solution into the plates, leaving only the water, which of course freezes and ruins the battery. Few motorists drive their cars as much in the winter as they do during the other seasons, and therefore the batteries are apt to become discharged. Watch your lights. If they become dim and reddish, run your motor for a half hour or more, or until the lights become bright. Better still, provide yourself with a hydrometer, which is inexpensive, and test the battery solution often. When you find it running low get busy and generate more juice. In this connection I would give you another tip. Do not overtax the starter in cold weather, and use up valuable electric current. Before starting the motor prime the cylinders through the petcocks, and also "tickle" the carburetor. Then you will be surprised to find that the starter will turn the motor over in one-tenth the time required when priming is not resorted to.

Of late I have had a great deal of trouble caused by oil working up and fouling the spark plugs and cannot seem to do anything to stop it. I take the plug out of No. 1 cylinder each morning and the car runs all right for a while, after which it again begins to miss. Then when I remove the plug in that cylinder I find it all covered with oil. What remedy would you suggest? Nobody in this place seems to be able to help me out. T. K. K., Vincennes, Ind.

The symptoms indicate that either the piston rings in No. 1 cylinder have become broken or badly worn or that the cylinder wall itself is either scored or worn down. This allows oil to be pumped up and deposited on top of the piston and on the plug itself. The only thing to be done is to have the motor taken down and the cylinders examined. It is quite likely that a couple of leak proof rings will end your troubles.

Will you please inform me through the medium of your valued column what types of clutches require oiling, and how is the oil applied? A. B. E., Rapid River, Mich.

Clutches of the multiple disc pattern are the only types designed to run in lubricant, and most of them revolve in oil. As a general thing, it is well to drain out the clutch case about every 500 miles and clean out thoroughly by flushing with kerosene, which disposes of the sediment that is bound to accumulate. After flushing the clutch case, refill with from one to two quarts of light machine oil or a mixture of one-half cylinder oil and one-half kerosene. Naturally the exact amount of oil required depends upon the size and capacity of the crank case.

Owing to the large volume of inquiries for automobile routes and the relatively small amount of space in which to answer them, readers wishing immediate replies are advised to inclose a 2 cent stamp with inquiries so they may be answered by mail. Only routes and answers to questions of general interest will be published.

Exhaust Echoes

THE United States Supreme court has ruled that any state may, if it likes, tax nonresident motor car owners for the use of its roads. The opinion, handed down two weeks ago, was written by Justice Brandeis and unanimously concurred in. It had to do with legal procedure which questioned the right of New Jersey to interfere with the interstate journey of a registered New York motorist on his way to Pennsylvania.

On the situation which may now confront tourists in many states, Chairman Osborne I. Yellott of the A. A. A. legislative board comments thus:

"To obtain the freedom of the roads of the nation we must now renew our effort to secure the approval of congress for the simple and common sense measure drafted by Representative W. C. Adamson of Georgia, charman of the house committee on interstate and foreign commerce. This provides that after obtaining an identification number in his own state and paying whatever taxes may be exacted, a motor car owner shall then be privileged to travel over the roads in the other sections of his own country. Motorsts generally can hardly avoid disappointment in the finding of the Supreme court. It has been recognized by many states that highways must be of rugged construction and systematically maintained to meet the needs of the motor vehicles owned within the state irrespective of the comparatively small number from neighboring states."

Devices for the use of cheaper fuel on Ford cars are multiplying. The latest to enter the field is that produced by the G. P. Coal Oil System company of Chicago, which is just completing its manufacturing arrangements.

It is reported that more than 6,000 Studebaker cars were sold on Monday, Dec. 4, which was designated by the Studebaker corporation as "prominent buyers' day." The idea of directing dealers throughout the country to "get after" the most prominent people in their territory originated with L. J. Ollier, vice president in charge of the concern's sales, and followed closely upon the announcement of the new Studebaker series 18 models.

Earl G. Gunn, chief engineer of the Premier Motor corporation, is responsible for these words of wisdom: "When a man aout town buys a motor car he might just as well figure that 90 per cent of his mileage is going to be inside the city limits under the watchful eye of a traffic cop. And still most motor car makers put the emphasis on how long it takes them to go from New York to San Francisco. If you are experienced you know that you cannot combine extreme speed and extreme flexibility at low speeds in the same car. If a car will not throttle down to four miles an hour in high the average driver will raise unmitigated Cain. All Premier cars are designed to do better than sixty miles an hour, but we take a great deal more care to see that they will throttle down to a mile or two in high, for this is one of the chief requirements of the average motorist."

Auto Show Plans

TWO meetings of importance in the motor world are scheduled for automobile show week in Chicago. One is the annual gathering of the national automobile chamber of commerce, under whose auspices the show is held. The other is a special meeting of the American Automobile association, to be held at the Chicago Automobile club, chiefly for the purpose of awarding to Dario Resta the national racing championship for 1916.

A third "side attraction" of the big show—the motor accessory exhibition—is assuming staggering proportions. Manager Samuel A. Miles announced last week that accessory makers have already contracted for every available inch of space and that there is a waiting list of 200 would-be exhibitors who cannot possibly be accommodated.

Emphasis in these accessory sections is to be laid on the recent progress of invention in the matter of self-starters. Strangely enough, self-starters found no favor in the early years of the industry. Men drivers felt able to do the required cranking, and the wealthy were not then concerned in a labor saving device for their chauffeurs.

The spring starter was proposed as early as 1893, but few cars existed and no buyers were in sight. A three cylinder compressed air motor was advertised in the early part of the last decade, but lack of buyers allowed it to languish. Among the curious starting devices which have been proposed have been revolvers for firing blank cartridges into the cylinders, starting plugs with powder in them, and patent match igniters.

Before-the-Show Exhibition Of Our Two-Power Car

The Automobile Sensation of the Season

WE offer to car buyers a two-power car, operated by both gasoline and electricity. It is the sensation of the automobile shows. The Woods space at the Chicago Automobile Show will be the center of attraction.

But for Chicagoans who want a private view, we are holding a before-the-show exhibit at our salesrooms.

You can see this epoch-making car in advance of the show crowds. And judge for yourself what record-breaking efficiency, economy and all-round service are now offered to you.

To Electric Owners

Woods Dual-Power abolishes the expense and inconvenience of the charging station. No danger now of running out of power. The gasoline motor charges the battery while you are driving the car.

Simplicity of operation is even greater than with a standard electric. You start, stop, accelerate, brake, with a single foot pedal.

The gasoline motor, in addition to battery charging, contributes the speed that electrics lack.

To Gas Car Owners

Woods Dual-Power gives you a gasoline car of unlimited power, and a non-stalling car.

A car without gear-shift or clutch-pedal. With power transmitted direct to the wheels. With instantaneous acceleration. With a magnetic brake that practically eliminates skidding. A car for town use that operates without waste, always at highest efficiency.

A car which in country driving can climb any hill and master the roughest roads.

No description can do justice to this revolutionary car—the car which sets new standards in motor car construction.

Call at our showrooms and see it, and make your own tests, for this is the only way to judge. We will gladly arrange a demonstration.

Dodge Brothers announce a new convertible sedan, designed for all season use. All side windows and pillars may be removed in summer, leaving the car entirely open from windshield to back panel. A deep blue body, outlined by a cream colored stripe, with wire wheels to match the stripe, give the design a distinctive color scheme.

The Overland dealers' convention now in progress at Toledo is said to be the largest gathering ever held in the United States, not excluding even the national political meetings. John N. Willys, president of the Willys-Overland company, estimates that the concern and its allied manufacturers will do a $250,000,000 business during 1917.

Louis Chevrolet, vice president and chief engineer of the American Motors corporation, announces that the selling price of the American six has been definitely set at $1,285. When contracts for materials were placed last winter it was planned to produce a car retailing for about $1,100, but Mr. Chevrolet and his associate engineers have thought it best to add some refinements and conveniences that necessitate a higher figure. The exhibition chassis to be displayed at the Chicago show is now being prepared at the Plainfield [N. J.] plant of the corporation.

The recently organized Harroun Motors corporation announces the appointment of John P. S. Harrison, formerly of the United States embassy at Rome, as manager of its foreign department. Mr. Harrison enjoys the unusual distinction of membership in the Kaiserlicher Automobile club of Berlin, of which Prince Henry of Prussia is honorary president.

A new idea in service for automobile owners is announced by the Motors Service company, established last week at 2641 Michigan avenue. The company, acting as representative for Delco and Remy cranking, lighting, and ignition sytems, and for Klaxon horns, will maintain a complete stock of units and of parts for these units, and will operate a service garage with testing and repair departments.

The Irrepressible Walt Mason.

THEY'VE got a lot of good men celebrating the virtues of this or that make of car nowadays. Here, for example, is Walt Mason, a perfectly good journeyman poet, as any one will tell you, rhapsodizing as follows under the title "The Road to Happiness":

"Before I bought my handsome Haynes I was the loneliest of swains. I wearied of the single life; I wished to have a loving wife, with her to walk along the years, to mingle hopes, and smiles, and tears, with her to work, and rest, and sup—but all the damsels passed me up.

"I'd ask the girls to take a walk with me around a village block, or ramble down a country lane, and such requests gave them a pain. Their winning smiles they promptly lost; they said that walking was a frost, and only tinhorn sports would think of things so badly on the blink.

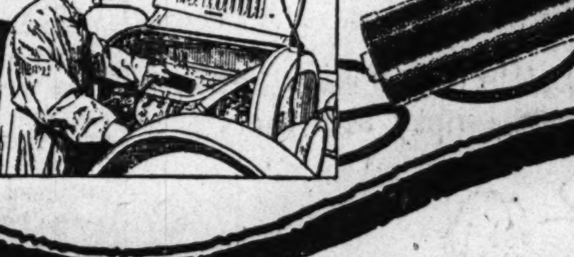
"When I felt rich I'd hire a hoss and rig that was a total loss, invite a girl to take a ride, and then ask her to be my bride. Alas, she always turned me down, and said, with cold, forbidding frown, that she would never wed a skate who wasn't strictly up to date. 'You shouldn't try a girl to spark with this old plug from Noah's ark,' the girl would say, with burning cheek; 'You ought to know your rig's a freak.'

"When thirty maids had talked that way, I said, 'I'll palsied be and gray, the seams of age will score my brow, before I lariat a frau, unless new methods I adopt—the old time plans are herewith dropped. I have a bundle laid away, I saved it for a rainy day, but rainy weather is afar—I'll take my roll and buy a car.'

"The banker told me I had brains. 'Just take your wad and buy a Haynes,' the banker said, 'and life will be a thing that fairly reeks with glee.'

"I bought a Haynes, and now the girls, those lovely maids with sunny curls, look on me with admiring eyes, and half a score of them will rise when I lift up my hand and say, 'Who wants to go with me today?'

"And when I pop the question next, I do not think that I'll be vexed by a maiden saying in my ear, 'I'll always be your sister, dear.'"



Engine Cold?—get a HUGHES
Engine and Carburetor Heater

I've got one. You won't find me fussing around in my cold garage for fifteen to twenty minutes every morning—applying hot cloths to my carburetor and manifold. The Hughes Heater is attached to your garage light socket and placed under the hood of your car. Keeps engine, carburetor and radiator warm on coldest nights at a cost of less than one cent an hour.

It is the simplest, safest, and most economical heating device for motor cars in private garages.

Simplest: Because it is attached and detached in a minute.

Safest: Because it operates without flame—tested and approved by the Underwriters' Laboratories of the National Board of Fire Underwriters.

Most Economical: Because it delivers the heat only where it is needed—under the hood of the car, saving the heavy expense of heating the whole garage. In addition to this, it saves the strain on the starting batteries and the wear on the bearings caused by the irregular flow of cold oil.

Don't be without this necessity. Order one tomorrow from your auto accessory, electrical or hardware dealer, or send $4.00 check or money order to the

by Oney Fred Sweet

It was snowing into State street. And the white flakes fluttered down to melt on pedestrians who were scurrying, scurrying along. The snowflakes clung to electric signs in which the colors came and went, they settled in the white whiskers of a Salvation army Santa Claus, they became moist spots on the cheeks of girls who wore brimless hats, they sparkled on a traffic policeman's whistle, and they streaked down a window pane that revealed turning wax figures clothed in price marked wraps. And here and there the white flakes lingered for an instant on a tugged Christmas package.

The toy department was four floors above State street, but I knew what was in some of the Christmas packages. I had greatly enjoyed working in the doll booths. Viola, on one side of me—pink cheeked and long eye lashed—had such a sweet way of saying: "Charge or cash, madame? O, you want it sent out C. O. D.?" And Mae, on the other side of me—Cupid mouthed and wrinkleless as yet—put so much expression in her: "How do you spell the name? House or flat?" Viola was brunette and she wore her hair high above her head and hanging in curls on one side; Mae wore her blonde strands tight back from her forehead.

And in front of us all morning there had been a jumbled chorus that ran something like this: "See, ma!" "Keep your hands off them, Loraine"; "Just looking along"; "I don't want such an expensive one"; "O, O, O, ain't that sweet!" "Where's the gumpy dolls?" "It's cunning to look at but too big to play with"; "O, ma!" "Come right back here, Alice"; "You musn't ask for so much, I can't buy you everything"; "No, I want a little bisque doll about that high, jointed"; "Here Lillian, come here"; "O, ma, loo—ok!" "Are these heads breakable?" "Let's see what they got on the other side"; "Be a good girl now, or Santa Claus will forget all you told him."

Yes, I liked the doll department. Miss Moeller, who had had charge of it for eleven years, showed me where to locate the dressed dolls, and the celluloid character dolls, and the "goo goo" dolls, and the wooden dolls, and the cry baby dolls, and the dolls that said "mamma," and the dolls that sold for 6 cents a dozen, and the one that was marked $29.68.

"But," insisted the superintendent before the morning was over, "I'll have to shift you to another department. I don't blame you for picking this part of the house, but I think you'd do better where all the other clerks aren't girls. You could concentrate more on your work, maybe."

And so they took me away from "the dolls" and stuck me in a booth with the toy railroads.

In all, there were 52,000 square feet of toys on the floor, seven-eighths of them American made "on account of the war." Fourteen million dollars' worth of toys were said to be waiting in the harbor at Rotterdam, but, according to Mr. Greve, manager of the toy department, only one house in the United States had been able to get a shipment of toys out of Germany, and that had been last August, and a small shipment at that. Dressel, the great German maker of dolls at Sonnenberg, himself had just lost a son in the war. Japanese toys could be secured, but they were a trifle too oriental in design to appeal to Young Chicago. And so everywhere you looked there were American toys stacked among the holly and tinsel of the booths. The toy train booth was just opposite the row of elevators that all day passed up and down, loaded to the gates.

"Anybody ought to be able to sell these trains and tracks," said Mr. Greve as he again stationed me. "We don't like to let you go without giving you a full tryout, but pay more attention to your customers and not so much to the clerks around you. I'll be passing back and forth more or less, so let's see what you can do.

Well, sir, for $3.98 you could be a regular railroad magnate—tracks, right of way, engine, coal car, and a string of coaches. All you had to do was wind up the engine, stick the train on the track, and away she'd go for half a dozen round trips. Shortage of coal or interstate commerce laws didn't interfere with the fun at all, and there was no crew demanding consideration of the eighty hour law.

I can see the kids yet—stocking capped and overcoated—reaching on tip toes as high as they could to peer over the counter. I remember a certain 10 year old who insisted on reaching in and handling the engine.

"Do you want the little engine to lose all its paint?" I complained, "Now I'm not going to speak to you again. Keep your hands off. This is only for me to run."

As a matter of fact there had been three straight Christmases years back when I had taken great pains to write Santa Claus for a train. And three times I had gone to bed in full confidence and awakened disappointed because Santa Claus had paid no attention to my appeal. Once he had left a train next door, but next door they wouldn't let me wind the engine. After Santa Claus had passed me up the third time on the train proposition I had lost all faith in him, but the longing for an engine that would wind up had merely smoldered. It took only the sight of one of them again and the opportunity to go as far as I liked to revive the fever. Right away I began to make up for lost time.

"W-wind, w-wind, w-wind. Clicaticlick, clicaticlick, clicaticlick," over the tiny rails. "W-wind, w-wi——"

"I got this here Saturday," interrupted a voice impatiently after I had been winding and clicaticlicking to my heart's content for some half an hour. She began unwrapping from a package a little toy engine. "I paid $1.78 for the whole train, but this engine ran off the track when we tried it and I brought it back to get it changed."

"I'm sorry, madame," said one of the older clerks, stepping up, "but those trains were on sale Saturday and now they're all gone."

I could see that the woman who had interrupted traffic wasn't satisfied.

"Of course, we'll refund your money if you'll bring the rest of the train back," the clerk continued.

"It ain't that," sighed the woman, "but don't you see, I bought two trains just alike. They were for my two grandsons. [I noticed then that her hair was gray.] They're almost the same age and I've got to give them trains exactly alike."

I HAD GREATLY ENJOYED WORKING IN THE DOLL BOOTHS.

Suddenly, somehow, a sale began to look different to me than it had before. A minute previously the woman had been just a customer. As she explained her problem I realized that every sale had a story with it—a story of Christmas morning fast approaching. I could see the two grandsons rushing downstairs to their stockings. It wasn't a small matter that concerned the woman with the engine that ran off the track.

And suddenly I saw all the hundreds of other customers in a new light. Suddenly I understood the expressions on their faces. They were out on no idle mission. Human nature—it might push one another and get impatient and look cranky and tired and faded, but after all if one knew the secret thoughts underneath——

Yet I didn't philosophize long. I was too interested in winding up the train engine. There was a man upstairs who shaved a little off one of the wheels of the engine the woman had brought all wrapped up, and when I tried it for her it stuck to the rails as an engine should.

New faces constantly appeared in front of me. Two boys, keeping impatient paces ahead, came dragging their mother along. Little girls, in their excitement, jumped up and down. Above the hum of the floor there were continual exclamations in the thin voices of childhood. But no one bothered my train operations to any extent.

From in front of me floated: "Have you the little mechanical cars for 27 cents I saw pictured in the paper? Are these supposed to ring when the trains pass over? Wait, mamma, let's wait and see it go!"

Came from me: "The next aisle over. Yes, ma'am. You can look at them all you want to, but don't handle."

From out of the near by elevators: "That'll be all, please."

But gradually I became too absorbed in the trains to hear much about me. You know there were a lot of things you could do with those trains. You could send the engine around the track alone or you could hitch on half a dozen cars. There were lumber cars you could couple on and baggage cars and passenger cars, and you could wind the engine good and tight and make the train run for a long time. There were possibilities, too, in causing train wrecks—big possibilities!

I wasn't bothering the cashier's cage back of me much. The cashier was busy enough taking money from the other clerks and stamping the slips and turning goods over to the wrapper. I had wound that engine for the forty-leventh time and sent it out at the head of various combinations of cars when the idea struck me of trying two trains on the same track, one headed toward the other.

Where Mr. Greve bobbed up from I don't know, but he loomed before me just as I had half wound up engine No. 2 and I, right on the instant, sensed something wrong.

"Don't put me into another department," I complained. "I've only been here a few hours. What's the trouble? Did I make a mistake in a sale?"

"Crawl out from under there," ordered Mr. Greve, calm but decided like.

"But Mr. Greve——"

"You haven't made any mistake in sales because you haven't made any sales," concluded Mr. Greve. "The trouble with you is that you seem to be under the impression that it's already Christmas morning."

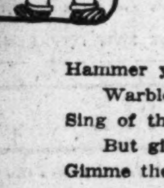
ENTITLED: THE HIGHER THE BROW THE LESS IT SWEATS



Sing of the Bunions of Toil,
Warble the Man with the Hoe,
Hokum's according to Hoyle,
But gimme the Man with the Dough!
Gimme the Guy with the Green,
Gimme the Jay with the Junk,
Gimme the Shekels Serene—
This Bunions of Toil is the Bunk.

Hammer your lyre to bits,
Warble the Luke in the Loom,
Sing of the Corns on his Mitts,
But gimme the Mighty Mazum'!
Gimme the Goof with the Gold,
Gimme the Toff with the Tin.
Hoes may be noble to hold
But gimme me a Five in the Fin.

Salt is the Sweat of the Serf,
Scant is the glory he gleans,
His toeses are out on the turf,
He battens his belly with beans.
Sing you the Man with the Hoe?
Sing him, you Sonuvagun!
But gimme the Man with the Dough,
Gimme the Guy with the Mon.

"The Car of a Thousand Speeds"

That's the Car to Buy
The Simplified Car

¶ The Owen Magnetic is the car that the high-grade motor car owner has been wanting.

¶ It is the simplified car, embodying in one magnetic unit all the mechanism which heretofore required extra parts and operation by cumbersome self-starting and lighting apparatus, clutch, clutch pedal, fly-wheel, gear shifting and braking.

¶ All this makes for efficiency—more mileage for gasoline and tires, longer life for the engine and the entire car.

¶ Furthermore, this means far easier and safer driving under all conditions.

¶ The Owen Magnetic floats along silently, smoothly, like coasting—as if pulled forward by a huge elastic band.

¶ Perfectly controlled, by just one small finger-lever on the steering wheel—all functions are accomplished by the Owen Magnetic transmission with a six-cylinder engine.

¶ Besides all this, every Owen Magnetic is a triumph of coach maker's design comparable only with the best foreign-built cars.

¶ Limousine, Town Car and Landau Models from $4200 to $5000. Touring Cars and Roadsters from $3150 to $3750.

JAPAN AND PEACE.

In talking about peace in Europe Americans forget Japan. It has been easy to forget her. After a few months' active operation against the German port Tsing-Tao and the capture of some German islands, Japan has confined herself to the manufacture of munitions and the expansion of her trade. Japan has not appeared on the war maps for two years. Japan's participation as one of the allies has seemed to us a closed incident.

But when it comes to talking peace terms Japan will be at the conference. She has succeeded in her part of the campaign and she can fairly ask for her price. Probably Japan will be satisfied with unquestioned rights in Shantung, the province in which Tsing-Tao is located, and with the three sets of islands she is now occupying. The question is whether or not the allies will be able to give these things to her.

Japan, of course, at the time of her occupancy declared that she did not want these possessions. She would hand them back to some one. Events seem to indicate that she will not. Japanese capital has flowed into Shantung province and Japanese business men are established in Tsing-Tao. There are valuable mines—coal and iron—in the province. Japan needs coal and iron. Thousands of emigrants have gone there to live. Japan has not confined her activities to the territory controlled by the Germans, but has extended her control in all directions. At any rate, if Japan consents to give up the nominal control of the province to any other nation, she will want to pick out a weak nation. She does not want Germany back in China.

And the islands, although supposed to be unfit for Japanese settlement because of the climate, are proving themselves more and more of advantage to her foreign trade. The Marshalls, the Carolinas, and the Pelews make admirable coaling stations. In the process of turning the Pacific into a Japanese lake, all these extensions of territory and influence are valuable to Japan.

Thus it appears that should the Germans be in position to dictate peace terms at the close of hostilities, the allies will either have to pay Germany for Japan's occupation or pay Japan the equivalent of the territories from which she retires. It is that equivalent which chiefly interests the United States. Probably it will be South America. Either Germany in South America or Japan or both. It is the Monroe doctrine or the open door.

Japan has not waited for permission to enter South America. She is there now. Under an arrangement made with Brazil she begins next February to send a minimum of 5,000 settlers each year. A Japanese line is to do the carrying. The emigration to South America is already large, and from reports of the Japan society it is increasing. But the outcome of the war will either give her unlimited right in South America (subject, of course, to the unsupported pressure of the Monroe doctrine) or will limit her to mere commercial opportunity.

The United States is not now strong enough to maintain the Monroe doctrine against a nation like Japan.

H. C. OF L. AND THE PURITANS.

We are accustomed to think of the Puritans as ascetic in every form of living, moral as well as material, but there is evidence that they brought over from England something besides their hatred of established religion, and that in their condemnation of pleasures they did not include those of the table. Centuries of good living in Merry England are not so easily abandoned that even a voyage like that of the Mayflower can bring forgetfulness of it.

It is true that the first publication in New England was that of a psalm book, but the second, which soon followed, ministered not to the spiritual but the physical man; it was the "Compleat Cook's Guide." From this a Boston newspaper learns that the chicken pie which lined the tummies of Miles Standish and Gov. Winthrop contained no less than six six pound chickens, six pounds of butter, eight pounds of sugar, and twelve pounds of flour!

And for making "Meg Merrill's pottage" there was required one partridge, one quail, one rabbit, two pounds of venison, besides cloves, mace, lemon juice, onions, celery, parsnips, potatoes, marjoram, salt and pepper. No puny men were those who put themselves outside these dishes, washing them down with several of the thirty-two kinds of wine mentioned in the "Cook's Guide." Good trenchermen these, dining with sword and blunderbuss handy in case the Indians should interrupt the feast. No fears of the high cost of living dulled their appetites or shadowed the larder. The barnyards were full of fowls or, if these failed, there were turkeys a-plenty and deer in the woods hard by.

This it was on which the Puritans fed, careless alike of gout or dyspepsia. They needed no Dr. Evans to tell them how to keep well or Jane Eddington to say what percentage of protein their food should contain.

DECAY OF PERSONAL HOTEL MANAGEMENT.

One of the few remaining old time hotelkeepers passed with the death of George C. Boldt, proprietor of the Waldorf-Astoria in New York City. Although his caravansary was not of the old time sort, he was. Brought up in the traditions of a past age, he knew hotel management from kitchen to attic. Having himself risen from "bus boy" to proprietor, he was familiar with the needs and functions of every department. Although his place had a high sounding name, it was Boldt's hotel and every one knew it as such. This marks the line between the hotel of the past and that of the present day. The personality of the hotel passed with the decline of the old time manager.

The old hotel was devoid of liveried flunkies; it had no Louis Quatorze or Elizabethan rooms, and to it the dansant was unknown, but it had something which compensated for these things. It had geniality and a sense of comfort which made a good substitute for home. The wayfarer felt when he entered it that he had arrived at the house of a friend, for, probably, the first person he met was Boniface himself, rotund, smiling, with welcoming hand extended. Nor was this perfunctory by any means. The old hotel man actually made friends of his guests.

The geniality extended to the dining room, and down the long aisles at meal time strolled Boniface in friendly conversation with his friends, seeing that their wants were supplied. There are Chicagoans not yet senile who can remember with pleasure the friendly intercourse with John A. Rice, J. Irving Pearce, Potter Palmer, and John B. Drake.

The modern hotel with its thousand rooms and all the magnificent appointments bears little resemblance to its humble predecessor. Its manager can know comparatively few of the thousands who throng his house. His management is on so vast a scale that personality cannot count. He provides his guests with a myriad of things that were unasked for yesterday, but his hotel lacks the atmosphere of the houses which went before. The latter were the direct descendants of the inns of the old world. Examples may still be found scattered in out of the way places, but the cities know them no more.

BUT WE WANT AN ARMY.

Although the secretary of war is not especially interested in recruiting the regular army up to strength, his report shows him devoted charitably to the welfare of those in the army. The secretary has pondered deeply on the subject. He avows himself to be in the act of excogitating what he calls a "suitable program of recreational activity."

He congratulates various private enterprises which have sweetened the life of soldiering, but what he really wants is "to be able to devise, as a part of our own systematic provision for the army, recreational facilities and opportunities which will follow the army to its camp, and both brighten the life of the army and occupy the leisure of its members when the exigencies of the service require their separation from accustomed opportunities of this kind."

Now, this is all very thoughtful and considerate of the secretary. Army life under certain conditions is without doubt a frightful bore and offers proportionate temptation. In so far as this boredom hurts army efficiency, it is Mr. Baker's duty to eliminate it.

As it simply brightens the life of the individual soldier his humanitarian activity is a beautiful thing. We like beautiful things from a secretary of war as well as from a settlement worker.

But we want something else, too—an army machine as good as can be made under the present permitted system. Mr. Baker seems to believe his work is to reform the army. We believe it his work to form the army.

TASK IN DANISH WEST INDIES.

If the Danish parliament should ratify the sale of the West India islands to the United States, of which there is now said to be a better prospect than there was last fall, this government will find a difficult task in adjusting new conditions to the population there. It is said that the Negroes, who form the bulk of the population, welcome the prospect of coming under the control of the United States. According to letters received in this country the conditions in the islands are deplorable. Not only is all industry at a low ebb; sanitation is almost nonexistent; infant mortality is alarming, and at the present time thousands are suffering from the effects of a hurricane which recently swept one of the islands, destroying crops and buildings.

According to the Christianstad Herald, a newspaper published in St. Croix by D. Hamilton Jackson, an influential Negro, there has been slavery of the worst sort practiced by the planters. If half he charges is true the Negro workers in the sugar fields have been subjected to indignities the like of which have not obtained in the western hemisphere for half a century.

It is plain that we are in for a heavy expenditure should the islands become ours—much more than the very large purchase price or the cost of making a naval station at Charlotte Amalie. There will be work for another Col. Gorgas to make the islands habitable for whites, and there will be a hard administration task ahead for the governing council of the islands to make them self-supporting and to raise the standard of living for the inhabitants.

But what has been done in Porto Rico can be done in the Danish West Indies. The recent report of the governor of the former colony shows that the exports have increased 35 per cent over the previous year; debts have been liquidated and trade has expanded in every direction. The educational system is proving a success, disease is decreasing, crime is less frequent. While there is much yet to do in educating the colored laborer and in raising his standard of living and social condition, the contrast with his condition while under Spanish rule is all in favor of the new régime. It is no wonder that the Danish neighbors of Porto Rico wish to be taken under the wing of the American eagle.

Editorial of the Day

FUNNY—IF IT WERE NOT TRAGIC.

[From the Detroit Free Press.]

The situation in northern Mexico as it is affected by the American attitude and policies has its tragic and shameful and its ludicrous sides.

The American government has recognized Venustiano Carranza as the de facto government in Mexico. It also has put an embargo on arms. Villa, Zapata, Felix Diaz et al. constantly smuggle arms and ammunition, and there is reason to believe they have no trouble in getting all they can pay for. But Carranza, because he is a regularly recognized government, is unable to do this. Consequently he can get no war munitions with which to fight his enemies and our enemies.

The United States is keeping an army of occupation in northern Mexico for the purpose of "getting Villa." The Carrancistas also have troops in the same region and their official business is likewise to get Villa. But the Carrancista army leaders are so distrustful of the American soldiers and are so busily occupied in watching them that they have neither time nor strength to go after Villa, who is taking advantage of the situation and is doing about as he pleases. We find in the field armies of two countries which might make life a nightmare for the bandit if they really set to work at the job. But nobody is doing anything.

The opera bouffe stunts pulled off in Latin American countries used to be great jokes in the United States, but can any one remember one more thoroughly silly than this to which our government is a party?

LA MARQUISE DE FONTENOY

[Copyright: 1916: By the Brentwood company.]

IN view of the fact that Miss Nancy Cunard is considerably more than half American, that her mother was Miss Maude Alice Burke of New York, and that her father, Sir Bache Cunard is three-fourths American, it is astonishing that her recent marriage in London in the Guards chapel to Capt. Sidney Fairbairn of the Scots Guards, should have attracted so little attention on this side of the Atlantic.

Miss Cunard is a pretty girl and a favorite in London society, and her mother, Lady Cunard (who inherited much of the wealth of Gen. Horace W. Carpentier, an eccentric old bachelor, who made his home in New York) dispenses much hospitality in Mayfair, in the house in Cavendish square, which she rented from ex-Premier Asquith.

Sir Samuel Cunard, the first baronet of the family, and the founder of the Cunard steamship lines, was a son of Abraham Cunard, a merchant of Philadelphia. The second baronet, Sir Edward Cunard, married a daughter of Bache McEvers of New York and the son of this marriage is the present Sir Bache Cunard, whose country seat is Thorpe Lubenham at Market Harborough.

Sidney Fairbairn is rich and belongs to a family which is headed by Sir Thomas Fairbairn. The story of the Fairbairns is what may be described as a romance of industry. A little over a hundred years ago a farm laborer at Kelso named Fairbairn had two sons, William and Peter, who started life as boy employés in the Percy Main colliery, near Newcastle-on-Tyne.

It was there that William Fairbairn, the older brother, made the acquaintance of George Stephenson, the father of railroad transportation, but then employed as a brakeman on the colliery tramroad. The two young men formed a close friendship, which lasted through life.

When Stephenson invented the locomotive, William Fairbairn invented his riveting machines, etc., and developed into one of the greatest engineers of his age, among his many creations having been the tubular bridge across the Menai straits.

He was one of the founders of the British institution, received a baronetcy in 1869, and died at the age of 90 in 1874, leaving as heir to his honors and immense wealth a son, Thomas, who died in 1891, and who was succeeded by his son, Sir Arthur, the deaf and dumb baronet, who died last year.

Sir Arthur was the president of the Royal Association in Aid of the Deaf and Dumb, and devoted much of his great fortune and his cleverness to the alleviation of those afflicted in the same way as himself. He was a respected and popular citizen, a keen sportsman, and a great collector of bric-a-brac. Moreover, he enjoyed the distinction of being the only deaf mute who had made his way through Cambridge and who had received a degree there.

Sir Arthur had many odd experiences. On one occasion he had invited to dinner two men. When he entered his drawing room, a little late, he found his guests endeavoring to communicate, by means of the sign language, each imagining that the other was the deaf and dumb host. No one enjoyed the joke more heartily than Sir Arthur.

The present baronet is Sir Arthur's brother, who lost his only son, Roderick Gordon Fairbairn, a few years ago here in America through an overdose of morphine in a prison cell at Bridgeport, Conn., in which he had been placed after his arrest for irresponsible actions.

Lord Ronaldshay, who has just been appointed to the lucrative and important governorship of Madras, which carries with it a salary of $60,000 a year and allowances of about twice that amount, is mainly remembered in America in connection with his reference to "dumped American heiresses, who by reason of their marriage to Englishmen of rank, considered themselves qualified to play a rôle in British politics."

But Lord Ronaldshay's indiscretions of speech, which likewise led him to describe Winston Spencer Churchill, while minister of the crown, as a "pot-boy statesman," should not overshadow his real merits as an explorer.

He has been engaged in Asiatic exploration since he left Cambridge twenty years ago, and knows more about the remote portions of Central Asia than any one in parliament.

He also served for several years on the staff of Lord Curzon, when the latter was viceroy of India; has represented the Hornsey division of Middlesex for the last ten years in the house of commons. He has been serving at the front since the beginning of the war as a captain of Royal Artillery, and is the eldest son and heir of the Marquis of Zetland, former viceroy of Ireland, and one of the pillars of the turf.

Lord Ronaldshay will have the advantage as governor of Madras of being not only independent of his salary and allowances and in a position to maintain the dignity of his office with an unprecedented splendor, which cannot but impress the native princes and chiefs, but also as coming to the office with an exceptional knowledge of India and its problems.

The appointment of Gen. Hubert Lyautey to the office of minister of war in Paris cannot fail to meet with universal approval. For he achieved fame, not only by his conquest of Morocco, but also by his cleverness in organizing its government, and by the phenomenal development of its resources.

Besides being a clever colonial administrator and a brilliant general, he is a member of that band of forty immortals, known as the Academy of France, and is of illustrious ancestry on his mother's side.

He belongs to two of the most exclusive and patrician clubs in Paris and is a man of wealth. He served with great distinction in the wars of Indo-China, and was one of the principal commanders of the army that brought the rich African island of Madagascar under French rule.

THE VANISHING SHAKERS.

[From the Boston Herald.]

From Kentucky comes the story of three aged survivors of a once large colony of Shakers making arrangements to have their lands, valued at more than $1,000,000, revert to the state. Thus is passing one more of the picturesque little Shaker communities that dotted the east and the middle west after the coming of Mother Ann Lee, "the elect lady," from England in 1774. There are only a few of them left.

Probably the total number of Shakers in the country is far below the 1,000 that they mustered when the last enumeration was taken half a dozen years ago. Forty years ago they numbered 4,000.

Most of the colonies in passing have left riches in land and buildings, for the Shakers have been thrifty and industrious. History will probably place their religion in the long list of freak isms and ologies that have risen and fallen, but there has been much in the simplicity and purity of the Shaker life to make the thoughtful ponder. Shakerism has been defined as spiritualism grafted to Quaker theology, with celibacy and communism thrown in; but that hardly does it justice. The quaint, drab life of the celibate communities has won few converts in this generation, and the adoption of children has not kept pace with the passing of the aged. The last Shaker community will hardly linger more than a few years longer.

How to Keep Well.

DIET FOR SKIN DISEASES.

IN a discussion last summer certain skin specialists told the members of the American Medical association of diets for a number of skin diseases.

ECZEMA—Dr. Chipman said that in his experience a modified lacto-vegetarian diet has proven satisfactory in many, though not in all, cases. Liberal quantities of rice and milk with the addition of fruits and vegetables, including peas and beans, meat, fish, eggs are prohibited for a limited period. If the amount of milk consumed is small the addition of a slice of bacon and rather liberal amounts of cream and butter are recommended. A moderate amount of sugar is not deemed harmful. Tea, coffee, and alcohol are, of course, excluded.

Dr. Bulkley, who first recommended the rice diet for eczema, uses it differently. He advises that the rice be eaten with a fork and not with a spoon. Butter can be added to it, but no milk or sugar. It may be taken three times a day. It must be eaten slowly and masticated thoroughly. A half hour should be consumed in eating the rice.

One-half pint of water is allowed with the meal. The same quantity of water taken hot is given an hour before breakfast and supper. In addition the patient eats as much dry bread (twenty-four hours old) as he wants and butter to the extent of a quarter of a pound is divided equally among the three meals. The doctor had long suffered from a recurrent eczema of the hands and he cured it by taking this diet.

Dr. Leamon said when the Japanese took Port Arthur after a long siege they found one-third of the Russian army suffering from scurvy—a disease with skin symptoms and due to eating a diet too rich in meat and too poor in fresh vegetables. On their side of the line the Japanese were dying by thousands from beri beri—a disease due to eating a diet too rich in rice and too poor in meat.

The Japanese gave the Russians some of their rice and vegetables and thus cured them of scurvy and the Russians gave the Japanese some of their meat and thus cured their beri beri. Had the contending armies swapped some rations neither would have suffered from disease.

Dr. Marcus Haas told of a danger from prolonged dieting for eczema and psoriasis. It was the danger that the person might overprolong the diet and develop pellagra.

In discussing papers on urticaria, or hives; asthma, and high blood pressure Dr. Eustis contended that some cases of these diseases could be cured by certain low proteid diets, but various authorities have contended that pellagra might be produced. Dr. Haas said that before they began treating pellagra by diet the death rate from that disease in the city hospital at Memphis was 60 per cent. Since adopting the heavy protein diet and relying on that alone the death rate has dropped to 11 per cent.

Eliminating the deaths which took place before the patients had been in the hospital twelve days and the dietetic treatment has no chance in such cases, he finds there is no death rate from pellagra in the Memphis city hospital now.

Dr. Chipman, explaining the reason for diet in eczema, said that in the treatment of the disease the paramount indication is rest for the inflamed skin. "Certainly we aim to give the integument a respite from the external contacts of daily life," he said. "It is a matter of everyday observation that a plate of soup, a cup of coffee, or a cocktail will cause an increased feeling of warmth." He holds that by dieting the skin is rested, protected. Not every case of eczema will be cured or even benefited by diet.

TETTER IN BABIES. This is a form of eczema. Its mildest form is the small dirty patch on the scalp. An aggravated form is the weeping, oozing, scabby condition of the scalp known as tetter. The cause of tetter is faulty diet. It may be the diet is too rich in fat. The more frequent fault is an excess of sugar or starch. It may be that the diet is wrong in both particulars. The common dietetic change consists in decreasing or eliminating all sugars except those natural to the milk and in the quantities found in milk.

Sweetened, condensed milk and baby food babies are prone to have the tetter because of the excess of sugar or starches. The next most frequent dietetic change consists in lessening the proportion of fat in the milk. Some tetter babies get well when they are put on buttermilk or skim milk.

PSORIASIS. The diet for psoriasis recommended by Dr. Chipman is the same as that recommended for eczema. For years Dr. Schamberg has studied the relation of diet to psoriasis. He has faith in the ability of a properly controlled diet to cure psoriasis. The basis of his system of dieting is to control the amount of protein eaten.

The widely accepted standard as to the amount of protein a man should eat in twenty-four hours is that of Voit—namely: from three to four ounces (100 to 120 grams). Prof. Chittenden holds that men will be healthier and will live longer if they will eat less protein. His standard is one and a third to two ounces. In the treatment of psoriasis, Schamberg only allows seventy-five grams of protein a day.

Protein is that form of food which contains nitrogen—a common name and one that fits it moderately well is albumin. The common notion is that meat, milk, and eggs are rich in protein, which is correct, and that vegetables and breads contain no protein, which is incorrect. It is not difficult to calculate the amount in a pound of meat, bread, or vegetables. Of course, it is some trouble, but then psoriasis is a source of trouble.

Dr. Schamberg does not allow cases of psoriasis to eat milk, eggs, cheese, nuts, or meat. The amount of bread allowed is small. He allows only a small amount of peas and beans, vegetables rich in protein. The patients can eat as freely as they wish of juicy fruits and watery vegetables. They can eat freely of sugar and butter. But the amount of protein in a day's diet must not exceed seventy-five grains. Such a diet should produce a material change in three weeks. Arsenic and chrysarobin can be expected to cure rapidly where the patient is dieting.

URTICARIA OR HIVES—Dr. Chipman says: "Urticaria may be safely included in the diseases referable to dietetic causes, although it often occurs definitely following the bites of insects, as fleas and wasps."

Many cases of hives follow the eating of some one food to which the sufferer is sensitive. In such cases a cure depends on the results of careful search to find to which food the sufferer is sensitive. The common method of search is to observe the relation of the eruption to the eating of different foods. The most frequent offenders are eggs, salmon, canned fish, buckwheat, and strawberries.

A less common but more scientific method is to test the susceptibility of the sufferer by scratching places on the skin and inoculating them with the suspected food substances.

There is a group of cases of urticaria in which the disease is extremely obstinate. Dr. Eustis holds that such urticarias are due to the putrefaction of certain high protein foods occurring in the large intestine. The foods especially productive of urticaria are those rich in a protein substance called histidin. The foods to avoid especially are blood and foods rich in blood, liver, juicy meats, and eggs. He begins the diet by limiting the patient to vegetables, fruits, bread, and vegetable soups.

That not all cases of urticaria are due to diet or can be cured by diet was a point made by Dr. Haas. He has seen some cases of urticaria due to malaria which were cured when the malaria was cured by quinine.

Dr. Hazen found that 33 per cent of a group of urticarias gave a Wasserman reaction. Specific treatment cured these cases. He had seen other cases due to bad tonsils. These cases got well when the tonsils were treated.

PIMPLES AND BOILS—Dr. Schwartz found that a diet containing an excess of starches and sweets by increasing the amount of sugar in the blood predisposed to diseases of the grease glands and hairs—in other words, blackheads, pimples, boils, acne. Speaking more definitely, the foods to limit are candies, sweets, desserts, breads, and potatoes.

PELLAGRA—The probability seems to be that pellagra is due to the prolonged use of a diet poor in protein. It has been found that the disease is most prevalent among people who live largely on corn bread, soda bread, middling, and molasses. It is not prevalent among people who eat plenty of good milk and butter, good eggs, and good meat. Cases of pellagra get well and stay well when they are fed plenty of good lean meat, plenty of eggs and milk, good bread, peas, beans, and soy beans.

SCURVY—Scurvy is a disease of the winter. It develops among persons who live for a long time on canned foods and preserved meat and milk. It is easily cured by a diet in which there is plenty of fresh vegetables—collards, cabbage, radishes, celery—plenty of fresh fruit, oranges, lemons, apples, grapefruit, pineapples, and a moderate amount of fresh meat, good raw milk, and good bread.

DIPHTHERIA: THE HEART.

K. G. R. writes: "Will you kindly advise me as to the following: My little girl, 7 years old, is recovering at the hospital from a very severe attack of diphtheria. I am told that she had nearly 80,000 units of antitoxin. Is there much danger of her heart being weak from this? It is three weeks since she had the antitoxin, and her pulse is still a little above normal. Her pulse was normal and she was allowed to get up and walk around and the excitement presumably was too much for her. She is a very healthy child and was never sick before, but I am very much worried about her heart. About how long will it take for it to be strong again?"

REPLY.

Diphtheria poison often affects the nerves of the heart. This is not an infrequent cause of death. Diphtheria antitoxin does not harm the heart or its nerves. On the other hand, it protects the heart against diphtheria toxin. The fact that it was necessary to give 80,000 units of antitoxin shows that the drug was given late and the toxin had had time to affect the heart. However, she is almost safe now.

CLIMATE FOR PLEURISY.

Mrs. H. B. writes: "I have been advised by my doctor on several occasions that I must go to a place where there is a decided warmer climate and always dry climate. My ailment is pleurisy, contracted last winter from pneumonia. Can you advise me before the end of the week where I can go to find warm and dry climate to cure pleurisy on the lung from pneumonia?"

REPLY.

The Imperial valley in California is certain to be dry and warm. Phoenix, Ariz., and vicinity is almost as certain to be dry and warm. El Paso is good, but it is not so warm as the other places mentioned.

BABY NEEDS PHYSIC.

H. B. writes: "1. Is one bowel movement each day enough for 5 months old baby? 2. In each case a glycerin suppository is given; is that harmful? 3. At what intervals should a baby that age be fed? 4. I have seen several people put their fingers in the baby's mouth to rub its gums. Do you not think that a rather dangerous practice?"

REPLY.

1. It is not. Give the baby orange juice or prune juice.
2. Try to have him get along without it.
3. Every four hours during the day.
4. No, provided the fingers are clean.

MOLINE LEPROSORIUM.

Dr. George A. Zeller writes: "The improved condition of our leper in the improvised leprosorium at Moline is apparent. If you know of any other cases of leprosy we would be pleased to care for and treat them there."

REPLY.

There are, doubtless, several lepers in Illinois. To be cared for in this institution is best for the lepers. It is also best for the people. Norway sought to rid itself of leprosy by building five leprosoriums and giving care therein to every leper in the kingdom. Conditions are so much better that now there are only lepers enough to fill two institutions. The others have been converted into tuberculosis hospitals.

SUIT HAS BEEN RECOMMENDED.

Chicago, Dec. 8.—[To the Friend of the People.]—The chimney on the building at 1347 Cornelia avenue emits volumes of smoke which pour into our home. This case has been reported before, but without results. F. H.

Respecting the renewed complaint against premises 1347 Cornelia avenue, I have to advise you that a notice was served on the agents for this building on Sept. 26 to abate nuisance of smoke from low chimney to adjoining premises. It appears that the firm notified went out of business at a later date and the case had to be started again by serving a similar notice on the owner, with which he has not complied up to the present time. I am forwarding the facts of the case to the city prosecutor today with the request that suit be instituted immediately.
JOHN DILL ROBERTSON,
Commissioner of Health.

STREET SWEEPINGS HAVE BEEN REMOVED.

Chicago, Dec. 10.—[To the Friend of the People.]—The street cleaners have been emptying their carts right in front of our windows on an empty lot at Broadway and Early avenue. At times this refuse remains there for three or four days, and the odor is very offensive. Can anything be done?
EDWARD QUINN.

After taking this matter up with the ward superintendent's office the objectionable material was removed and a promise given that there would be no cause for further complaint.
JOHN DILL ROBERTSON,
Commissioner of Health.

A CITIZEN AT BIRTH.

Chicago, Dec. 9.—[To the Friend of the People.]—If a son is born of foreign parents in the United States does he have to secure citizenship papers to vote, if his parents are not naturalized? A. B.

Children born of alien parents in the United States are citizens of this country.

FOLLOW ILLINOIS LAW.

Laurium, Mich., Dec. 11.—[To the Legal Friend of the People.]—Can a resident of the state of Michigan holding real estate in Chicago dispose of same by will without the necessity of it passing through the office of the public administrator? A. I. L.

Yes. The will must be executed with the formalities required by Illinois law.
TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

LEAVE TITLE AS IT IS.

Oak Park, Ill., Dec. 13.—[To the Legal Friend of the People.]—My father died several years ago leaving a farm with a $1,000 debt on it and no will. He is survived by his widow and three heirs. His widow has kept the farm up, paid all expenses, and now wishes to pay off the debt, providing the heirs will release their claims to her. She agrees to will the farm to the heirs at her death. Is this advisable? If one of the heirs desires his share of the estate how shall he proceed to effect a settlement?
READER.

The widow has by dower a one-third interest for life. The "widow's award" and homestead right may bring her interest up to a point where she can hold the entire farm for life. We cannot say without having further facts before us. The advisability of letting her have the farm for $1,000 plus her promise to will it to the heirs depends on the value of the farm and on her reliability. If you wish to settle the estate and the other heirs are not willing you must employ an attorney to file a bill for partition. Ordinarily the better arrangement would be to leave the title as it is, divided among the heirs, and give her a mortgage to cover the amount of her advances.
TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

MARRIAGE WOULD BE INVALID IN ILLINOIS.

Montgomery, Ill., Dec. 12.—[To the Legal Friend of the People.]—In what states may cousins secure a license to marry and in what states could such a couple reside? H. H. F.

1. Kentucky is the only state near Illinois. 2. In any state except that the marriage would be invalid in Illinois if the parties intended at the time of the ceremony to return here to live.
TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

HE MAY BE SUED.

Chicago, Dec. 10.—[To the Legal Friend of the People.]—A man is given a sum of money with which to carry out a business transaction. He contracts to pay the same back at a given date with a specified profit added and fails to do so. Can he be sued for breach of contract? Can he be made by law to fulfill his part of the contract and pay the sum of money specified? L. F.

Yes, unless there are facts justifying his refusal.

WHY THE POLICE FAIL.

Chicago, Dec 14.—[Editor of The Tribune.]—Your editorial "Murder in Chicago" is a little bit wrong in its conclusions. The reason we have murder in Chicago is because we prefer to see a man killed to seeing him commit an immoral act of minor importance. The only excuse for police protection at all is to protect the citizen concerning those matters in which he cannot protect himself. When I go to a movie for an evening I want to have my belongings safe at home. Are they? No! Not unless a private watchman is employed.

If you want to stir up action in this community you want to be a vice crusader. Look through a key hole and find a poker game that nobody can get into without an introduction. Then tell one of these busybody committees. The captain in that precinct will be kept so busy trying to get them that he will not have the time or men to devote to real police work. Special self-appointed committees are busy trying to satisfy their curiosity about their neighbors' morals. I do not say that vices which flaunt themselves in public places should not be promptly suppressed, but when people have to devote time and energy to hunting for places to get into trouble, they don't need police protection. They need a guardian.

The present status of affairs is easily understood, as it is human enough, but is that the reason why we should fall for it? People are naturally curious about many things which don't concern them, and they are just as well off without actual knowledge of them.

Let us organize so that we can suppress actual crime first, then we may be in a position to extricate individuals from difficulties they get themselves into.

I am not blaming the police; they are doing what they are told by the public as nearly as they can in most matters. They will get the thug and the thief if their attention is kept constantly on the work. To get a small percentage of the criminals requires but little skill, but to capture and convict a large percentage takes time, care and a conscientious attention to duty, and is not nearly as much fun as capturing Bill Jones doing something he would not care to have announced from the housetops. JOHN T. SMITH.

FOR MISS STARR.

Chicago, Dec. 14.—[Editor of The Tribune.]—The article written by Miss Starr of Hull House will not be considered by people who are well informed upon school matters, but for the sake of those of our people who are only partly informed, and in the name of Chicago teachers outside of the federation I wish to state that Miss Starr's patriotic (?) efforts may be appreciated by the labor unions, seamstresses, waitresses, mothers and by Miss Haley's personal friends, but as a body of teachers we very much prefer to have none of her interference in school matters.

The working faction of the teaching force will not tolerate any "mud slinging" at Mr. Shoop. It really is a pity that Miss Starr did not protest at that enormous salary years ago. She might have saved the city that extravagance throughout the administration of Mrs. Young and Miss Haley. It is too late to take action now; her element is not dictating to our present mayor, president of the school board, or superintendent of schools.
A TEACHER IN THE GHETTO.

AMERICA ASLEEP.

Decatur, Ill., Dec. 13.—[Editor of The Tribune.]—The question of preparedness appears to be like other burning issues of the past, viz.: important for the time being, and then we resume our usual routine of affairs, allowing, with the usual American egotism, the matter to rest.

The regular army, it is needless to say, is considerably short of the required number, probably 20,000 men, and when one stops to consider that the cavalry at this time that are on the Mexican border have only about 50 per cent of the horses that they require and the artillery in the same condition, with our national guard under the Chamberlain act constantly decreasing at such a rate that it is virtually disbanded, we are sure facing a catastrophe.

The people must have an entire change of heart from a patriotic standpoint. They either must support the national guard (I have no connection with the national guard now or in the past) or we must have universal compulsory military service in the very near future.

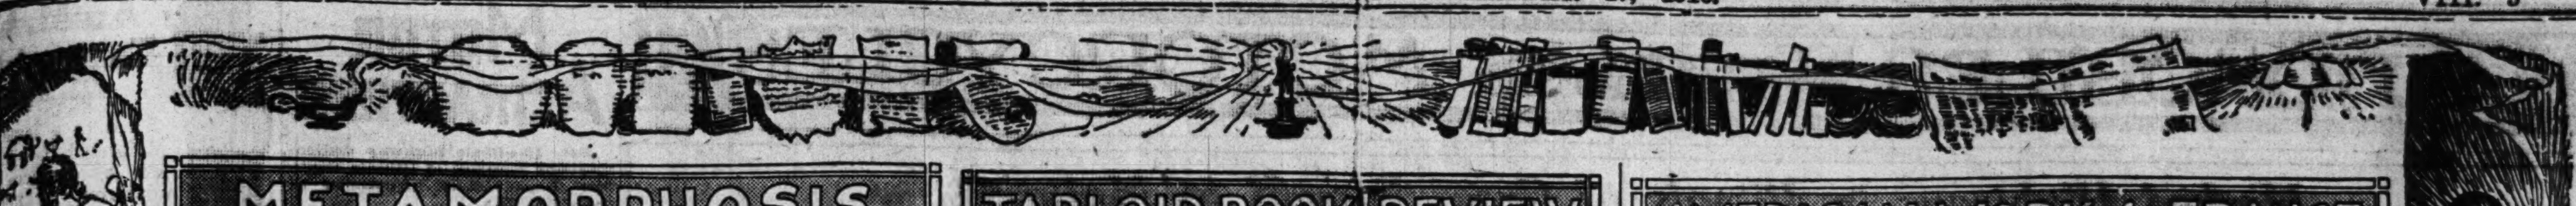
"Wake up America." This subject is the most important question of the hour if we are to fulfill our destiny in preserving a nation that represents freedom and humanity to all people of the world.
H. LANDSMAN,
Past Department Commander of [illegible] United Spanish War Veterans.

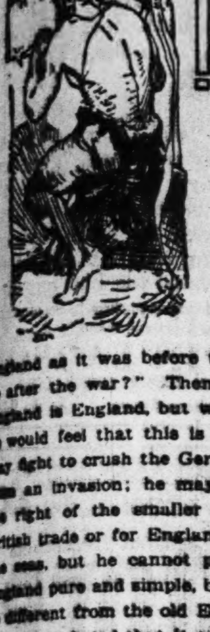
PROHIBITION AND LABOR.

Chicago, Dec. 14.—[Editor of The Tribune.]—Replying to the letter of Mr. G. H. Hermann, I assert that all progress puts men out of employment temporarily. Invention of steam engines—thousands of men put out of employment; invention of thrashing machines—thousands of men put out of employment; invention of automobiles—thousands of men put out of employment.

Prior to Nov. 7, 1916, nineteen states outlawed the liquor business and no complaint from the labor field from these states. The labor markets have not been seriously affected because the men formerly engaged in the liquor business were compelled to seek a more honorable employment. This is not only true in the nineteen states but was endorsed by the farmers, manufacturers, and business men of four more states on Nov. 7, 1916.

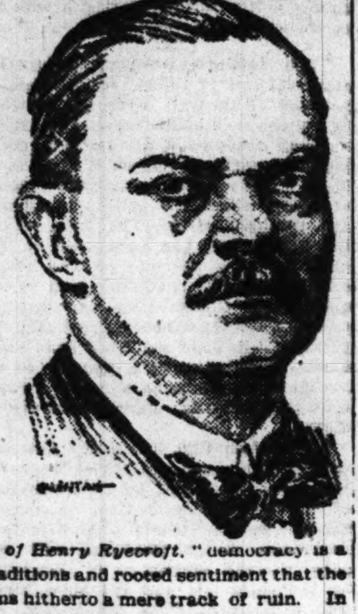
Mr. Hermann says the distillers consume annually the entire surplus crop of the two greatest corn states, Illinois and Iowa. If this corn was used for making the staff of life, the problem of the high cost of living would be to a certain extent solved.
JOHN W. LANGLEY,
Assistant Superintendent Chicago District Anti-Saloon League of Illinois.





METAMORPHOSIS

by Edward Goldbeck



IF we should ask a Britisher for what he was fighting with such admirable courage and perseverance, he probably would answer curtly: "For England!" He might consider the question idle or impertinent, but we would go on and inquire: "For the England as it was before the war or for that which will be after the war?" Then he might try to answer that England is England, but with the answer still on his lips he would feel that this is not true. The English soldier may fight to crush the Germans or to protect his country from an invasion; he may think that he is fighting for the right of the smaller nations or for the future of British trade or for England's unchallenged supremacy on the seas, but he cannot pretend that he is fighting for England pure and simple, because the England of today is so different from the old England which we all knew and admired or hated that it can hardly be recognized.

This old England was the bulwark of individualism. The idea of individual freedom was evolved earlier and realized more thoroughly here than in any other country. Every Englishman lived on a sort of an island, he imitated the geographical condition of the nation in a microcosmic way. "My home is my castle," "Help yourself," "Charity begins at home," these and other sayings are exclusively English. The individual gives as little as possible to the nation, just that minimum which keeps the country from falling asunder. What he values more than anything is liberty. But his individualism differs from that of his Teutonic cousin. The Englishman is willing to think exactly like his neighbor, as long as he may do what he pleases. The German is willing to do what he is bidden, providing that his thought be untrammeled. His motto is Goethe's: "Nach aussen beschränkt, im Inneren unbeschränkt." (Externally limited, internally unlimited), a word which long before the war the kaiser quoted in a programmatical speech of his. The Englishman was conventional in thought, but loath to be hindered in action; the German obeyed with relish, but never gave up his inner independence. The Britisher was a realist, the German an idealist, but both were individualists.

THE thinking Englishman of today knows that individualism of the action is doomed. It is not merely suspended for the period of the war, it is buried for that part of the future which we can embrace with our short sighted human glance. This future belongs to the idea of national concentration. The individual is submerged in the nation. One has called our era the era of masses; the characterization is appropriate if we say "organized masses."

Individualism was an ideal of the English nation, the whole world respected it. Now we look at it from an almost historical point of view, we acknowledge that as a stage it was necessary, that it had its merits for the evolution of mankind, that it must not be entirely rejected, we feel benevolently, nay, indulgently, toward it, and that is the surest sign that it is dead. After years of struggle during which every trace of personal freedom was effaced and the very yearning for it considered almost treason, after years of an all-embracing socio-national organization controlling work, war, food, and ruthlessly exploiting and sacrificing the human being, the nation will not fall back into individualistic self-indulgence.

Every one realizes that he is nothing while standing alone, that he can only be saved with and through the nation. The strongest and tenderest individualistic sentiments are disregarded; the ruling, the overpowering sentiment is national. This will continue after the war, because the war will continue in peace. So it always did; peace is latent war. International life is a continuous thunderstorm, but most of us hear only the detonations, not the subdued grumbling. This time the nations will not be lulled into slumber. There will be more speeches, more pamphlets, more congresses, more utopias than ever before, but the next twenty or thirty years belong to the hideous demon Suspicion. No international arrangement will be able to remove that.

Even if all the nations were sincere in their craving for permanent peace, in their renouncing conquest no nation will believe that all the others are. In the eye of the neighbor they all will see the "glittering worm" of greed. No human wisdom can satisfy all the nationalities, no divine balm can soothe the passions aroused. The nations will not relax after the war, they will remain conscious of their terrible experience for a long time. Listen to Lloyd-George, the dictator: "We have been living in a sheltered valley for generations. We have been too comfortable and too indulgent, many, perhaps, too selfish, and the stern hand of fate has scourged us to an elevation where we can see the great everlasting things that matter for a nation—the great peaks we had forgotten of Honor, Duty, Patriotism, and, clad in glittering white, the great pinnacle of Sacrifice pointing like a rugged finger to heaven."

Translated from the sublime diction of a preacher into everyday language, this means that the old English individualism is dead.

THE Britisher was proud that he had not to serve in the army. Germany's universal service was regarded as unworthy of a free nation. The Englishman of olden times was rich enough to hire menials, foreigners mostly, to do the fighting. He was clever enough to entangle the European nations into war while he grabbed as much as he could. But he was anti-militaristic. The colonial wars he treated as a lucrative sport, the life chance of the younger sons. A real army was not necessary, as the navy protected the United Kingdom. Militarism was a shame, navalism a glory. This attitude has become impossible. An invasion is a probability, perhaps not of today, but of tomorrow. England is vanquished . . . not by Germany, but by technical science. Shakespeare's "silver-wall" is no longer a barrier.

England must have a strong army and there is no other way of raising it but by universal service. Every other plan is a fake. The only way of protecting herself against Germany is to imitate Germany. It is a humiliating necessity, but the Englishman is too sound minded to shirk it. After the war England will be a militaristic country and all the curses which she has thrust at Germany will rebound on her. While all the statesmen and scholars and writers will prattle about the coming millennium, the practical Englishman will think: "All right . . . but in the meantime?" And he will prepare.

ENGLAND was an aristocratic country. Joseph Chamberlain called it "lord-ridden." In the middle of the nineteenth century the democratic movement began to gain some acknowledgement, but its progress was very slow. Now "labor" rules the country. Lloyd-George, the providential man, is dictator only because "labor" graciously permits it. He has to give pledges, he must call three representatives of labor into the wider cabinet. Till the time of the war England was an oligarchy. Read Galsworthy's best novel, The Freelands, and see how the aristocracy holds the peasants in a petty and tyrannical tutelage, read Blatchford's Not Guilty and ask yourselves afterwards if Britons "never shall be slaves." They have been up to the war, but they will refuse to be so when they come back from the trenches.

"In old England," George Gissing wrote in The Private Papers of Henry Ryecroft, "democracy is a thing so alien to our traditions and rooted sentiment that the line of its progress seems hitherto a mere track of ruin. In the very word is something from which we shrink, it seems to signify nothing less than a national apostasy, a denial of the faith in which we won our glory. The democratic Englishman is, by the laws of his own nature, in a parlous case; he has lost the ideal by which he guided his rude, prodigal, domineering instincts; in place of the right honorable, born to noble things, he has set up the mere Plebs, born, more likely than not, for all manner of baseness."

This harsh judgment of a man who by birth was a plebeian himself makes us touch the danger of a too rapid development, as the war has brought it on. Lloyd-George, the enemy of private property, the destructor, the demagogue, is now England's hope, perhaps her last hope. The aristocratic tradition of the government has broken down.

Constraint for freedom, concentration for individualism, universal service for a haughty laissez faire, outspoken democratization for the aristocratic tradition: this is the result of the war and it will last whether England is beaten or not. It is an irony of fate that the Englishman is Germanized while he is fighting Germany. He is militarized while trying to crush militarism. He is disciplined while standing up for freedom. Of course, he thinks that he is only temporarily using the enemy's weapons, but he will discover later on that he has been changing his character, who will say for better or for worse?

IN Germany no change like that can be stated. Germany develops on the same lines in war on which she was moving in peace. Democracy was gaining ground before the war and it will continue to do so, but not at a very quick pace. Socialism was encroaching on almost all domains of public life and it will continue. Prussianism was melting into Germanism and that, too, will continue. There will be no break, no sudden new departure. Monarchy has proved its practical utility, its moral power, and if it becomes still more limited this limitation will be relatively insignificant, and it was bound to come anyhow. The aristocratic element has shown that it is a valuable asset in the life of the nation and there will be no furious assault on it. Germany's inner development probably will be calm and steady for the next years.

It is impossible to answer the question whether these changes will be beneficent or not, because we all feel more or less chaotic now. International public opinion wants to create a universal type and the foremost quality of this type seems to be a profound love for peace. This coming superman is nonresistent or he is nothing at all. Is it the Christian type, resurrected by some Russian peasant saints and introduced into literature by Tolstoi, Dostoievski, and Artzibasheff? If it were, it would be undesirable, but worthy of reverence.

But as we refuse very energetically to give away our property and let civilization decay, as we all intend to go on making money and enjoying life without restraint, as the nations continue to reach out for oversea markets, as, in short, we want to eliminate war, but retain individual and national selfishness with all its consequences, it practically comes to this, that we have not the slightest wish of improving, ennobling, purifying ourselves, but that we would like to lead the same life as before without running any personal risk. The type which results is that of the comfortable business man (including authors, artists, physicians, lawyers, etc.) who abhors any disturbance of his snug, humdrum, egotistical existence. This is what the peace loving citizen of the world represents, if you look at him more closely.

I MUST confess that I prefer the ideal of national limitation. For the Germans, Kaiser Frederick III., the father of William II., once clad it in the words: "Waffengewaltig und gedankenschuer." (Powerful in arms and fraught with ideas.) The English have given the world an ideal in working out the type of the "gentleman" and if they had done nothing else this would remain as a real achievement. If this type were a little more spiritual than it is and if it were a little deeper tinged with the idea of self-sacrifice it would be perfect. Let us hope that the war will influence England in this sense. But let us hope above everything that nations will remain nations and will refuse to be assimilated and leveled into the nondescript human being which seems to haunt the vacillating imagination of certain Wilsonians, Bryanites, and Fordians. Erratic as he is I prefer Teddy.

TABLOID BOOK REVIEW

by Fanny Butcher

Last week's best sellers in a leading Chicago bookstore were:

WAR.

"Gallipoli" (Macmillan), by John Masefield.

FICTION.

"Mr. Britling Sees It Through" (Macmillan), by H. G. Wells.

"Enoch Crane" (Scribners), by F. Berkeley Smith.

"The Rising Tide" (Harpers), by Margaret Deland.

"The Romance of a Christmas Card" (Houghton Mifflin), by Kate Douglas Wiggins.

"Mary 'Gusta" (Appleton), by Joseph C. Lincoln.

"The Wonderful Year" (John Lane), by William J. Locke.

NONFICTION.

"A Hoosier Holiday" (John Lane), by Theodore Dreiser.

WHEN Witter Bynner said last Sunday in his apology for the poetic life at the Little theater that he loved "The Shropshire Lad" I immediately determined that I'd try once more to interview a poet. I'd been told that Vachel Lindsay thought I was an ingrate. "After she did everything in her power to make me talk open heartedly she accused me in the paper of being no more reticent than George Moore," he told Padraic Colum and warned that gentle Irish poet against me and my kind. I sincerely thought Mr. Lindsay would like being called outspoken! I wouldn't intentionally hurt the sensitive soul of any poet—honest, I wouldn't.

With one poet warning his fellow craftsmen agin me, I thought maybe I'd better let the poets go uninterviewed for a few weeks. Then my sincere love of "The Shropshire Lad" triumphed, and I asked Witter Bynner for an interview. The first thing he said was that he'd been told that I'd "knife" him and that I could if I wanted to and it would be kind of fun if I did. I don't think I knife 'em—ever. But this isn't an interview with my accusing poetic angels. It isn't an interview with Witter Bynner, either. He's much too nice a person to be interviewed. It's just a chronicle of a very pleasant hour or so.

"Pierrot, the Grave Digger" he called "The Shropshire Lad." That's a memorable phrase, isn't it? He told me that Housman had never taken money for his verse, which accounts for the many cheap editions of "The Shropshire Lad." He said that he always kept six or seven copies of it with him and whenever he met any one who didn't know it he gave him a copy. I have bought many—how many I don't remember—copies of it, but I haven't one on my bookshelves, and I hope never to have one while I have a friend who hasn't. That's my pussonal feeling about "The Shropshire Lad."

Witter Bynner is 35, but he feels very old, he says, when he thinks of his years between 22 and 26 and of the men who meant everything of art and letters to him then and who are now all gone. Then his best friends were Mark Twain, O. Henry, George Meredith, and Henry James. "I made a pilgrimage to George Meredith," he said, "and I saw him only an hour, but that hour was a lifetime to me. I didn't like the way Henry James wrote, and I told him so the first time that I ever met him. I suppose that's why we were such good friends." About O. Henry I didn't ask him, but he told me a jolly tale about Mark Twain. When he was young he was very, very thin, he said, and Mark Twain used to twit him about it. One afternoon he sent with some flowers to Cora Clemens a little verse. He went to dine with them that evening and was met at the door by Mark Twain, who ordered him out of the house. "Young man, don't you realize that if there are to be verses inscribed to any one in this house they should be inscribed to me in honor of my dignity and my seniority?" he said. He finally admitted him with the promise that he would get his just deserts that very night. Very solemnly at the end of dinner the butler brought in a large cushion with a sheet of paper on it. Mark Twain made a formal declaration that this was the first poetry that he had ever written; that it had been written in punishment of a young man's crime, and that it would be the last poetry he ever would write. And then he pompously read these two lines, which I asked Mr. Bynner to let me print for you:

"Of all sad words of tongue or pen the saddest are these, 'It might have been.'
Ah, say not so, as life grows longer, leaner, thinner, we recognize, O God, it might have Bynner."

From Owen Johnson, whose latest is "The Woman Gives" (Little Brown), comes this letter: "I am writing at a lovely little French village in Savoy. I have an old fashioned farmhouse, transformed with taste, and a garden of roses, walled in, for breakfast and evenings. I write in a tower built in 1640—in ideal surroundings at least. I was at Verdun when Fleury was retaken and dined in the citadel with the general and his staff. I visited the Russian brigade and the Champagne district. Saw Joffre for an hour, and I can tell you every one from the top down knows they've got them on the run. Hurrah! A year and no longer!"

Invited to write for an American funny paper, Bernard Shaw replies: "My articles for America are longer and more ponderous than the sort of thing you need. You want young men with light hands and light purses, not spoilt elderly gentlemen who expect to be paid immoderately for being dull. I should be a doddering octogenarian before I came to the end of a contract for twelve articles."

I was urged the other day to say something about the Chicago Anthology which Minna Mathison and Charles G. Blandon compiled some months ago and which Llewellyn Jones prefaced and which contains excerpts from the opera or the one and only opus of 114 Chicago poets. Mr. Jones slyly says, in his pleasant introduction, that the collection was better than he expected. There were many more poets appearing under its auspices than I suspected of having signed up with the muse, but their turns weren't better than I expected, which is meant to be a delicate compliment to our town and its poetical dramatis personæ.

"Every one in Chicago must be taking a lecture course of one kind or another," they told me at the public library when I asked if there was any special class of books that had suddenly sprung into public favor. "The number of borrowers who come to the library with the printed list of reference books for lecture courses is startling." That's a good word for the new system which permits borrowers to take five books on one card. By the way, have you ever noticed that trough of books at the north end of the open shelf room? Every two weeks the books in it are changed, and there is always something unexpected to be found there. This week and next there are books on Spain, a carefully selected group of the most interesting travel books on the subject the library has to offer.

"Mr. Britling Sees It Through" (Macmillan) was the most popular book in the library last week.

"City Types" (Denison) is a collection of monologues by Marian Bowlan, who, only a few years ago, used to be one of the popular young monologuists of our town. She is in the east now, spending her time at writing mostly. She has given "City Types" herself and she knows what audiences like. Books of monologues are not easy to find, and such an addition to their number is sure to receive a welcome.

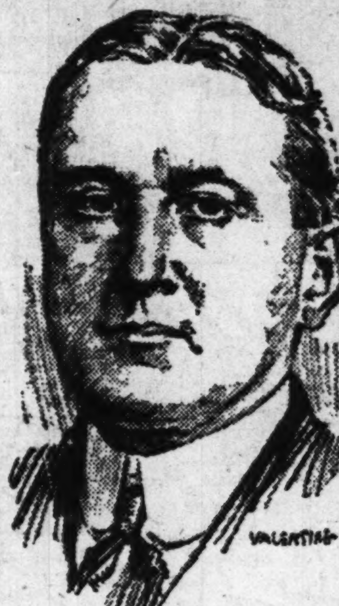
On Tuesday evening at Orchestra hall Rabindranath Tagore will read from his own work. If you don't hear him then you may not again for many moons. He is on his way back to India. Mentioning hearing him, trying to was decidedly an auditory effort the last time he was here, a month or so ago, reminds me of the glib in B. L. T.'s Pillar of Perspicacity: "After listening to Tagore, Tom Daly decided that no big message will ever reach this western world unless it be delivered in a bass voice."

AMERICAN WORK in FRANCE

by Robert Herrick



ANOTHER time I shall have something to say about the many American organizations that have sprung up in France for giving relief and aid to wounded soldiers, to the victims of tuberculosis, to the many orphans created by this bloody war. In no way has the best spirit of America more happily shown itself than in the desire to help France in her hour of trial. I have just returned from an expedition to Savoie with two members of the Paris committee of the American Fund for French Wounded, one of the larger American relief societies, which is now housed in the Alcazar d'Eté on the Champs Elysées, familiar in the past no doubt to many Americans. It is the aim of the "American Fund" to put something of personality into its work for the French wounded, not merely to forward hospital supplies gathered in America, but to investigate hospitals and discover through personal touch what is needed and what help may most usefully be contributed to the always limited resources of the French military hospital service. The Paris committee with this end in view has already established some local centers for distribution in different parts of France to which supplies are sent from time to time to be delivered by their local representative as needed. This time the president and the treasurer of the American fund proposed to establish a post at Chambery in a region where there are many large hospitals. For the big hotels of this French Switzerland have been turned for the most part into military hospitals.

We set forth from Paris in a motor delivery van named "Magnolia" in honor of the local American committee that had furnished the car. It was a dripping November day—and the wettest and coldest place I know of is France in early winter. "Magnolia" sulked at the start, but petted along the trouble.

I SHALL reserve for another place my many impressions of war time life in the country gained during those two days of motoring through southeastern France. We went from the Seine valley up the Yonne and over into the Saone towards the slopes of the Alps, passing through the old historic towns of Sens, Joigny, Auxerre (with its lovely cathedral) past the church of Bru to Aix-les-Bains and Chambery. It was all immensely interesting! And it was clear enough to me, for one thing, that France is still very far from exhaustion either in food products or in man power. The long war has not bled her great resources to the white as her enemies like to proclaim, as I heard even in America so often the last few months.

There was an abundance, even a richness of merchandise in the shops of the many small towns through which our route lay: well stocked food shops of all sorts; nourishing and inviting meals at every country inn of the rich abundance characteristic of provincial France—such meals as could not be found in America at twice the price. There is a shortage of sugar and coal in Paris and some talk in the newspapers of "meatless" days, due I think to transport difficulty, but from what I could see on this long trip there is no shortage of any kind yet in the country. Not even of gasoline, or "essence" as the thing is more aptly called in French. We found plenty in every town and village to be had without formalities such as are imposed in England and are supposed to be used in Paris.

There was no lack of live stock in this country, if one were to judge from the fat steers and cows and pigs being driven to the local markets on the Monday morning, the plentiful hens and corpulent geese that waddled across our road. Also good stout farm horses and sturdy enough farm hands, not all beyond the age for military service. No, superficial as I know any such motor observation is, I am happily convinced that France still has resources in her rich country that have not yet been tapped.

ON my previous visit to France whenever I went into the country I saw a great many old soldiers, "territorials" doing guard duty at all railroad crossings, bridges, and on through routes. And one was always being held up for "papers," especially if one was in a motor car. To be sure my trips then were in regions somewhat nearer the "front." I did not see a soldier all the way from Paris to Chambery doing guard duty, though there were plenty of "permissionaires" and occasionally new formations on their way to the stations. Not once were we asked for our papers. The only interruption to an unobstructed "circulation" as in peace times were the drawn gates at grade crossings.

At first I thought this was merely due to carelessness or laziness in neglecting to open the gates to traffic after a train had passed, but when I saw the stocky women gate tenders dragging the heavy things back just after our car had passed I realized that in this simple manner some sort of check is kept on travelers in the country districts. However, the good women who now do this as most other work merely gave us a curious smiling glance and a cheerful "bon jour, messieurs, mesdames." I suppose the red cross painted conspicuously on Magnolia's black body and on the windshield and the legend underneath, "Comité Americaine pour les Blessés Français," served to explain us sufficiently.

Everywhere we were graciously received and our inquiries eagerly answered. Once as we were passing through the narrow streets of a little town a company of soldiers drawn up in the square saluted the car—and no doubt the two American women with their red cross "brassards" on their arms. Also our handsome young driver in his khaki uniform of the American ambulance corps. The proprietor of the excellent hotel at Chalons-sur-Saone where we spent a night remarked, "It is good to see a young American like that over here working for France! It makes us French feel that America cares after all!" And that is by no means the least of the services these young ambulance drivers and Red Cross helpers perform—a patriotic service for the honor of their own country—and also the little Ford car with its Red Cross and motto from distant America. They prove to many French people struggling through this atrocious war that "America cares," that there are some at any rate, many in our rich, comfortable, powerful land whose hearts go out to them, whose purses are generously opened for them. This serves to counteract the coolness engendered by a prudent diplomacy and the honeyed futility of official "notes." . . .

WELL, we finally reached our destination after a marvelous ride through the mountains in a gray twilight. It was a dark, chill evening at Chambery, and to find another warm, comfortable hotel and excellent dinner was a relief. But our energetic leaders at once set about their task—to see the prefet, the maire, the medecin chef, and to find out what the conditions were in this district, how many wounded and tuberculous patients were now in the hospitals, and what sort of center it would make for distribution of supplies in Savoie. They planned to send hither four young women with two distributing cars to serve the large district which comprises Aix and Annecy and Grenoble, besides a number of smaller places, with more than fifty hospitals at least. There are eleven military hospitals in Chambery alone. Savoie is a healthy country, full of pleasure resorts, with hotels and villas that can be utilized for hospitals. It has not suffered directly from the war and can thus do its share in looking out for the wounded. It happens to be the hospital district for those sections of the army that are fighting from Verdun to the Vosges. Consequently it has had its full quota of wounded during the prolonged contest about Verdun and most of those still in the Chambery hospitals were wounded at Verdun. Unfortunately there are many cases of tuberculosis also for which the medical service is beginning to make provision in separate sanatoria.

Enough opportunity for four active young American women and their two cars! I went over one of the larger military hospitals that had formerly been a high school. There was such an atmosphere of homelike care and kindness created by the staff of French Red Cross nurses in this hospital as in others that I have visited and also such a spirit of courageous good nature among the patients, even those horribly wounded, that it is anything but a depressing experience. Indeed I should recommend to any one inclined to think ill of our complex human nature to visit a French military hospital and feel how fine common clay can become under terrible trials, how devoted and untiring women are when their hearts are wholly stirred.

Of course this hospital like the other military hospitals I have visited—and this one was said to be the best, the show place at Chambery—lacked many things that we regard as essential. Even under the best of circumstances it is difficult to make a modern hygienic hospital out of any old building and when it has to be done in a hurry with the flood of wounded patients never ceasing it is surprising that these French hospitals are as good as they are. With only the 30 cents a day per patient allowed by the government it goes without saying that all the luxuries, most of the comforts, and many of the necessities of hospital work must be provided from unofficial sources.

And that is where the work of the American Fund for French Wounded and other similar American organizations comes in. For instance, in this Chambery hospital there were blankets, pajamas, and shirts on the patients, provided by the American fund, convalescents enjoying the wheeled chairs and lounging chairs distributed by it. One jovial young officer who had received a bad wound at Verdun explained to me warmly the benefit his surgical bed had been to him—a gift from America. He was deeply impressed by the cleverness of the contrivance and was convinced that his rapid recovery dated from the time he was put into it. He was looking forward to the day when he could get back "there."

I SHOULD like to tell some of the many stories of these wounded men, to give some idea of their pluck and indomitable good nature, and of the delightful French women who nurse them in the motherly, homely French way; also of the doctors and of the radiograph work done by a young American who was working for a New York banking firm when the war broke out. But I have not space. I must content myself with a little picture of the delightful old French doctor, the "medecin chef," of the town who came to return the visit of the two American women and to assure them of his gratitude for what "America was doing for France."

His son was killed the first weeks of the war while he was busy making hospitals out of nothing, providing thousands of beds in a place where there were only dozens. He has never ceased his labors. As he stood there in his shabby old military cloak, his worn red trousers, his fine sad face—a face that would never again be anything but sad—he seemed the figure of all that is best in France—of a simple dignity and kindliness, and of a boundless grief.

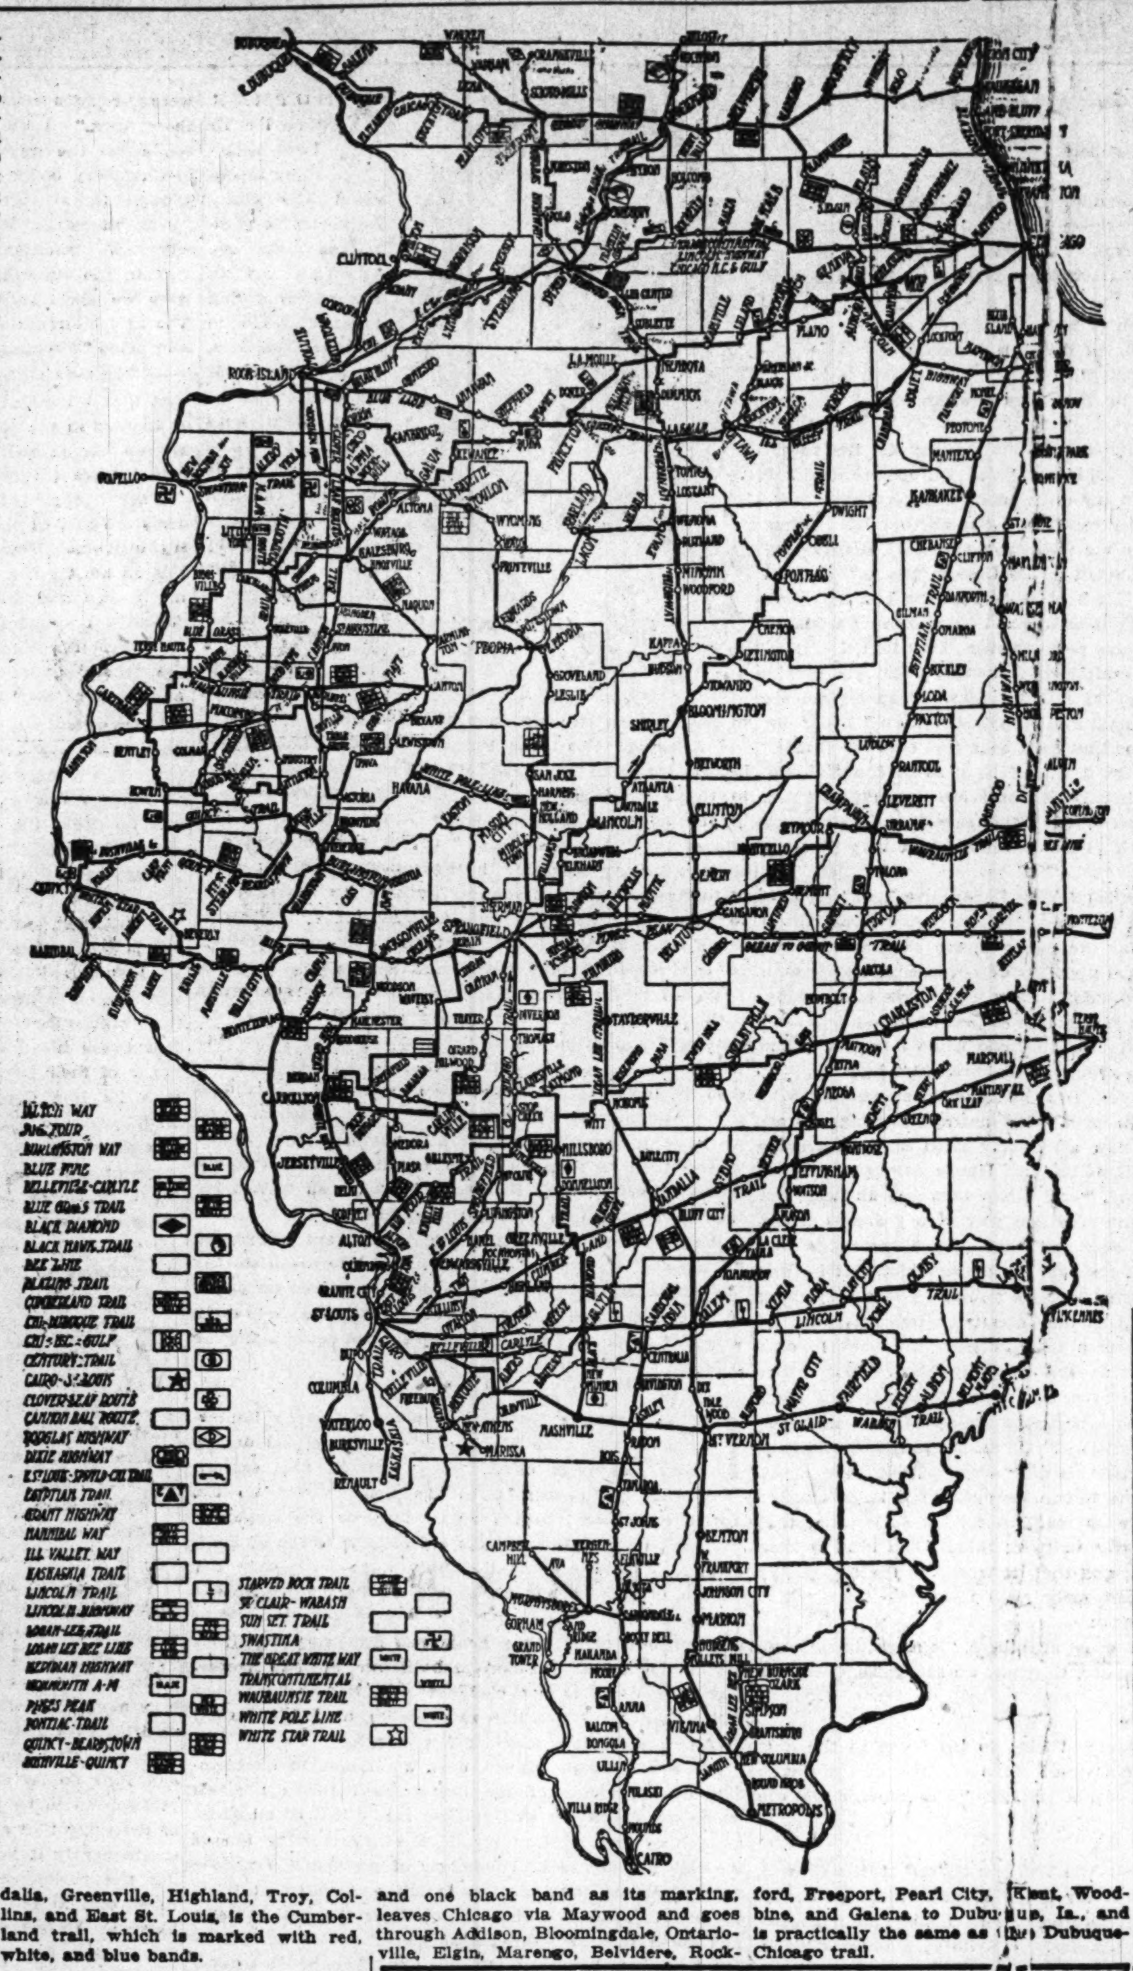
Marked Highways in Illinois of Great Benefit to Motorists.



THE cause of good roads is no better served than by marked highways, by means of which the touring motorist is enabled to drive from place to place without stopping to procure more or less doubtful information along the route. It was only a few years ago that such a thing as a marked highway was unknown, but now the entire country is crisscrossed by blazed routes that add in a great measure to the joys derived from motoring.

Of course, it must not be supposed that all of the main trunk lines have been completely marked, but with the promotion of various highways traversing the United States from north to south and from east to west has come a concerted movement to have them properly designated by various symbols stenciled on signboards and telephone poles. There are few main highways for which some distinguishing mark has not been adopted and eventually every mile will be signboarded, but at the present time promoters of many of the routes are handicapped in various ways and only small sections of their highways are marked. On the other hand, several of the leading highways and many of the smaller connecting ones are so well marked that all it is necessary for a tourist to do is to follow the symbols to his destination.

In Illinois alone there are forty-four marked routes officially listed by the department of highways. Several of these routes traverse the state from north to south and from east to west, while others run for comparatively short distances, but connect in most cases with the main marked trunk lines.

Three great national highways have considerable mileage within the borders of Illinois. These are the Lincoln, Dixie, and Pike's peak ocean to ocean highways. The Lincoln highway, with its familiar red, white, and blue bands bearing the letter "L," comes in from the east and touches Illinois at Chicago Heights, after which it runs to Joliet, then north to Aurora and Geneva, and thence west through De Kalb, Rochelle, Dixon, Sterling, Morrison, and Fulton, from which town the route crosses the Mississippi river to Clinton and continues west to the Pacific coast.

The Dixie highway, designated by a stenciled bale of cotton with the name of the route, leaves Chicago via Blue Island, runs through Chicago Heights, Momence, Watseka, Hoopeston, and Danville, after which it enters the state of Indiana and continues on to southern Florida. The Pike's peak ocean to ocean highway, marked with six inch red bands on a white background, enters Illinois from Montezuma, Ind., goes through Scotland, Tuscola, Decatur, Springfield, Jacksonville, Valley City, and Bayliss to Shepherd and then crosses over to Hannibal, Mo., and continues to the far west.

The longest signboarded highway in the state is the Egyptian trail, the symbol of which is a black pyramid on a white background, with the letters "E-T." This highway begins at Chicago and ends at Cairo after running through Harvey, Kankakee, Onarga, Paxton, Champaign, Tuscola, Mattoon, Effingham, Mason, Salem, Centralia, Ashley, St. Johns, Anna, Pulaski, and many other towns.

The Chicago, Kansas City and Gulf highway follows the route of the Lincoln highway as far as Sterling, after which it runs through Lyndon, Moline, and Rock Island, where it crosses the Mississippi river, and on through Kansas City to the Gulf of Mexico. The symbol of the route is a cross, with the letters "C-K-C-G."

A comparatively new route and one poorly marked at the present time is the Pontiac trail, which has adopted as its symbol the full length figure of an Indian, together with the name of the route. The trail runs between Chicago and St. Louis and includes Joliet, Pontiac, Bloomington, Lincoln, Springfield, Carlinville, Collinsville, and East St. Louis. The Pontiac trail follows practically the same route as the St. Louis-Springfield-Chicago highway.

Entering Illinois from Terre Haute, Ind., and passing through Marshall, Martinsvile, Greenup, Effingham, Vandalia, Greenville, Highland, Troy, Collins, and East St. Louis, is the Cumberland trail, which is marked with red, white, and blue bands.

Among the state's important routes is the Cannonball, marked with a cannonball surmounted by the letter "C." The route leaves Chicago via Maywood and runs through Naperville, Aurora, Plano, Earlville, Mendota, Princeton, Kewanee, Galva, Galesburg, Abingdon, Avon, Bushnell, Macomb, Camp Point, Rushville, and Quincy, and thence into Iowa.

The St. Clair-Wabash trail includes Mount Carmel, Ellery, Farfield, Mount Vernon, Ashley, Nashville, Belleville, and East St. Louis.

The Grant highway, with two yellow and one black band as its marking, leaves Chicago via Maywood and goes through Addison, Bloomingdale, Ontarioville, Elgin, Marengo, Belvidere, Rockford, Freeport, Pearl City, Kent, Woodbine, and Galena to Dubuque, Ia., and is practically the same as the Dubuque-Chicago trail.

The Lincoln trail, marked with the letters "L-T," enters Illinois from Vincennes, Ind. and goes through Lawrenceville, Olney, Xenia, Salem, Carlyle, Trenton, and O'Fallon to St. Louis.

The St. Louis-Springfield-Chicago trail, marked with a black arrow, runs through East St. Louis, Edwardsville, Litchfield, Springfield, Lincoln, Bloomington, Lexington, Pontiac, Dwight, Morris, Joliet, and Lockport to Chicago. Between Springfield and Chicago this route is the same as the Pontiac trail, but is better marked than the latter named highway.

Lack of space prevents a detailed description of all of the various routes, most of which, however, will be found on the map accompanying this article. In addition to the routes above named, the Illinois marked highways, together with their markings, include the Alton way, black and white; the Big Four, black and orange; the Burlington way, white and yellow; the Blue line, blue; the Belleville-Carlyle, letters "B.-C.," with a band of yellow between; the Blue Grass trail, blue and white; the Black Diamond, black diamond; Blackhawk trail, head of an Indian; the Beeline, with name of route; the Blazing trail, arrow shaped diamond; Chicago-Dubuque trail, red and white, with the letter "C"; Cairo-St. Louis highway, black star; the Cloverleaf, green cloverleaf; Douglas highway, diamond in outline, with letter "D."; Hannibal way, red and white; Illinois Valley way, letters "I.-V."; Kaskaskia trail, with name of route; Logan Lee trail, red, white, and blue, with letters "L.-L."; Logan Lee Beeline, red, white and blue, with letters "L.-L.-B.-L."; Monmouth A. M., with letters "M.-A.-M."; Quincy-Beardstown, black and white; Starved Rock trail, yellow and white, with name of route; the Great White way, white square; Waubaunsie trail, black and white; White Pole line, white; White Star trail, white star; Yellowstone trail, arrowhead inside circle.

"The marking signs used so far on the through routes have consisted largely of various colored bands and symbols painted on telephone poles and other roadside structures," says F. T. Sheets of the Illinois state highway department, in Motor Age. "This system of marking might be generally improved in the future if some more permanent marker were used. This idea might be carried out as the route became constructed of the more permanent types of pavement. In this manner the improved stretches might be honored by the more permanent marking system, while the unimproved portions would be simply designated by blazing a trail of colors on the telephone poles.

"The fundamental purpose of the state aid law in Illinois is to obtain a network of through roads. The policy of the state administration, the state highway commission, and the chief state highway engineer has been to bend every effort toward a state-wide system of roads, which will serve local, state, and through traffic. The influence of the department has been used in all cases to secure the type of road which suited the traffic conditions, and to require proper construction and maintenance of the types chosen. All matters pertaining to state aid roads have been administered in such a manner as to benefit the system as a whole rather than to cater to any narrow local prejudices.

"It is plain that this policy has met with popular approval. This approval has been manifested by the formation of the various associations promoting through routes. These promoters are demanding in an unofficial way the same through system as is advocated by the state law and the state highway department. The coöperation of these official and unofficial interests naturally proves beneficial to the road system.

"The state highway department is heartily in sympathy with the movement to establish marked through routes, because in this manner the cause of better roads is served. In order to assist this movement a map has been prepared by the department showing the through routes established up to date. It is believed that proper publicity may be given these routes in this manner and that their importance may be more apparent if official recognition is given."

In a remarkable 584 mile road run from Springfield, Mass., to Montreal, Canada, made recently by Edgar Buck and Howard Pasmore, in a motorcycle with side car, a new record of 19 hours 27 minutes was established. Although much of the trip took the riders over rough roads through the Adirondacks, the former record was beaten by 39 miles. The riders used an Indian machine equipped with Goodyear Bluestreak tires.

THIS MAN IS UNCOMFORTABLE
THIS MAN DRIVES IN PLEASURE WITH STEER WARMS
STEER WARMS LACED ON WHEEL
STEER WARMS GIVE GOOD GRASP ON WHEEL

Keeps Hands Warm for Winter Driving

No longer need motorists fear zero weather. Steer Warms will keep the hands as warm as if you were indoors. No longer need you put your car up in the winter because it is too disagreeable to drive. Steer Warms make winter driving safer. The thermometer may be below zero, but this wonderful device radiates a cheerful warmth that keeps the hands warm and the fingers limber. When your hands are warm, your whole body keeps warm and you do not catch cold so easily. Furthermore, limber fingers grip the wheel better and your driving is safer.

Steer Warms

Easy to Install

They are very simple and easy to install. They can be put on in ten minutes. There are no bolts or screws or holes to bore. Lace on, wire up, that's all. There is nothing complicated about them, and they take up small space on the wheel.

Durable

Steer Warms consist of two neat, leather covered grips heated from the battery on standard gasoline cars, or magneto on Ford cars, which lace on the steering wheel at any place convenient for driving. The resistance unit is protected by heavy brass plates, thus insuring long life. Absolutely no possibility of shocks.

No Maintenance Expense

Because Steer Warms get their electricity from the batteries (from magneto on Ford cars) it does not cost anything to operate them. They consume very little electricity—only half the current necessary for electrical headlights. They give no trouble. Nothing you can put on your car will give you more pleasure and comfort than a pair of Steer Warms. And remember there is no expense after the purchase price.

Guaranteed—Steer Warms are guaranteed against burn-out for five years. The best workmanship and highest grade materials are combined in them. They are nicely finished and look well on the car. They are guaranteed to do all we claim or money will be refunded. INSIST ON THE GENUINE STEER WARMS.

An M. L. Extension Shoe

fitted to a lame or deformed foot hides all appearances of deformity and makes both feet appear alike. This wonderful shoe is styled the country over as a "godsend" to humanity, because it is the only shoe that permits the lame to walk with the same ease and grace of the well. It is light and serviceable, and fits into any shoe.

Price $17 and up, according to requirements.

Why Not a Corset for Xmas
Third Floor—Center

Most women will appreciate a pair of these R & G corsets for dancing, skating and all sporting needs. For the debutante, her figure may be perfectly normal, but it will deteriorate if it is not perfectly corseted. Remember, the plump miss of today may be the stout woman of tomorrow unless she takes good care of her figure during her debutante age. If she is slender and carries herself well and has a normally developed figure she can wear a corset shorter and with fewer bones than her plump sister. If she shows a tendency to develop quickly, she will need a corset a little higher in the back that will keep fat from accumulating under her shoulders.

R & G skating corset for the petite figure, no heavy side steels, all light, flexible boning. This corset is quite short, nicely trimmed with embroidery, short clasp, four good quality hose supporters attached, at $1

R & G dancing corset, topless style, in flesh color, the hook below the front steel keeps the material from tearing away, hips lightly boned, four hose supporters, at............ 1.50

R & G dancing corset as illustrated, for the figure with rather plump thighs, the elastic band around top makes it very flexible, made of fine flesh colored striped batiste, firm enough to wear like coutil. Elastic inserts in skirt allow a trim, snug fit and give with the movement of the body, sizes to 30, at 3.00

The TRIBUNE'S WEEKLY ALMANACK

DECEMBER

December.

DECEMBER sits homely and comfortably about the small home of hut happiness. The later winter months are stark but December is illusory, kindly, decorated and genial. It suggests, it does not produce, inclemency. It strikes a full tide of human vitality which has arisen during the open months of autumn, which has been warmed by the colorful season, which has experienced the joys of change and has found life full of gusto.

Winter later may wear down this vitality but December, coming with its merely suggested inclemencies, presents only a jovial contrast. It has sharpened the appetite for human comforts by demanding that they be worked for.

There are paths to be cleared in the morning after a three-inch fall of snow. Logs are dug out of snow banks. Rabbit tracks are in the brush. A gray sky is cheerful. Buckwheat cakes and sausage are on the fire.

It is the festival month, when emotions quicken and imagination draws upon the experience of many generations for savors which are tangible in illusion and are found nowhere else except in illusion.

An unreal, happy world exists as the snows of December fall. It is the world made jovial by the habits and experiences of forefathers, their unhappiness forgotten, their joys living. The joviality of all times, of the rush strewn hall and the mighty roasts, the great beakers and the roaring songs, lives in the crackle of fire logs as December sits about the hut.

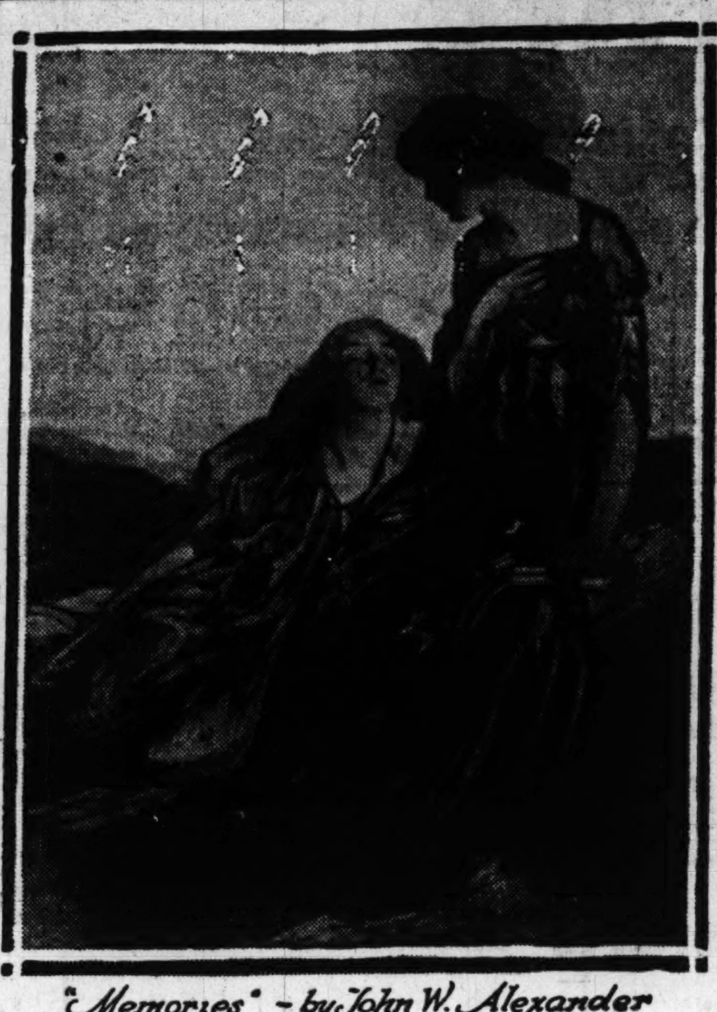
ART - - By Louise James Bargelt.



"Memories" - by John W. Alexander at the Art Institute.

THE first week of the opening of seven exhibits at the Art institute on Tuesday has just come to a triumphal close. Despite the nearness of Christmas and the myriad demands of holiday time the galleries of the exhibitions have been crowded, and these exhibits are richly deserving of the appreciation they are receiving.

In the first spacious room are the paintings of the late John W. Alexander. Among the pictures are included much of the finest work he ever did, and they are excellently illustrative of his genius. Thirty in all, they will give Chicagoans a most enviable opportunity to sharpen their appreciation of one of the most talented figure and portrait painters this country has ever had.

These paintings have come from various sources. The Metropolitan museum has contributed a portrait of Walt Whitman and the Boston museum has contributed the inimitable painting of the "Pot of Basil." From the Quadrangle club in Princeton, N. J., comes the portrait of Mrs. Alexander and one of James W. Alexander from Wheaton college.

A vision in gold is the striking canvas of the "Gossip," and near it is the no less charming full length figure of Joseph Jefferson as Bob Acres. Then there is his "Peonies," his "Green Gown," his "Blue Bowl," his "Black Cat," and his "Marine," all of them lent by Mrs. John Alexander or by the estate of John W. Alexander.

Next come the paintings by Edward W. Redfield of Center Bridge, Pa. Mr. Redfield is the leader of a school of landscape painting in this country, and has to his credit a host of honors and achievements. He is a member of the Society of American Artists and of the National Institute of Arts and Letters. He belongs also to the Philadelphia Art club, the Pennsylvania Academy of Fine Arts, and the Salmagundi club. The medals and awards which he has received are too numerous to mention. He is represented in the Luxembourg, Paris, and in some twelve of the museums of the leading cities of this country.

He has the rare and yet deeply appreciated gift of bringing out the beauties of nature in an essentially understandable fashion. Faintly gleam the lights of a hundred boats in his twilight painting of the East river; in burnished brown and gold glows the foliage of his "Indian Summer," with its blue rolling hills in the background. It would be hard to say which he makes the most alluring, whether he puts more heart and appeal into his caressing summer scenes or infuses with more charm his inspiring winter canvases.

Redfield has been given two rooms during this exhibit and has thirty-two paintings.

The contrast comes upon one with something of the nature of a shock when the next room is reached. Looking first at a bewilderingly angular landscape with deer, then at the picture of a charmless woman asleep, one promptly reaches the opinion that the experiences of Maurice Sterne down in the Indian archipelago are far from enviable; that the Balinese may be a most interesting race, but they are so far from beautiful as to be actually repulsive except, perhaps, to the student of races and their age and origin.

The longer one looks at them, however, the more interesting they do become. One begins to absorb something of the spirit of that far away people in that island which is mostly jungle and dark virgin forest. One senses something of their silences and ponderings. Near a kneeling old man in whose eyes all the gloom of savagery seems caught and centered is a canvas which shows one of the religious rites of the people. The catalogue explains the subject. One could not deduce that from the picture proper. But what one can appreciate is the force and vigor of the figures, their angular, rhythmic movements, which appear peculiarly combined, the flickering of flame, the weird, sinuous flow of water.

In the exhibition by California artists, selected by J. Nilssen Lauvik, there are fifty-three paintings, the work of thirty-two men and women. There are many familiar names and the collection is varied in the different variety of its landscapes and the varying types in the portrait work. There are several paintings which have taken medals at the Panama-Pacific. "Despair" by Perham Nahl took one and also the "Belated Boat" by Armin C. Hansen. Orin Peck's "Lady Flora X" is a realy beautiful woman, full length, and Sandona's "The Kimono" adds brilliancy of color to the charm and naturalness of the figure.

From Dec. 18 to Jan. 12 there will be an exhibition of paintings and sculpture by the professional members of the Arts club of Chicago. Three prizes will be given. All club members are requested to vote and the awarding of the prizes will take place on Jan. 12, the last day of the exhibit. The painting or sculpture which receives the highest number of votes will receive the first prize of $100. Next highest will come the prize of $50.

A prize of $50 will be given by the Chicago Society of Miniature Painters, which will hold its fifth annual exhibition during the above period. This also will be determined by a popular vote. Besides this there will be a special exhibition of Persian paintings. Tea will be served tomorrow and on Jan. 12 from 4 to 6 o'clock.

The success of this new arts club seems to increase with each exhibition. The exhibits of Sloan, Henri and Bellows drew large numbers to the galleries. The first ten days over $400 in paid admissions was taken at the door. The price of admission is 25 cents.

Studebaker
Established 1852

Six Thousand
PROMINENT BUYERS

December 4th, 1916 will go down in Studebaker history as PROMINENT BUYERS' DAY.

On that day, a few hours after the announcement of the new Series 18 Studebakers, from reports now in, over 6,000 of the most prominent business, professional and public men in America placed their orders for Studebaker automobiles.

This list of buyers is national—from every State in the Union, and includes:

Governors of States
U. S. Senators
State Senators
U. S. Congressmen
State Congressmen
Great Manufacturers
Technical Experts
Mechanical Engineers
Bank Presidents
Noted Lawyers
Bank Directors
Supreme Court Judges
College Presidents
Officials of Great Corporations
Famous Educators
Nationally Famous Clergymen
Famous Authors

(A "Blue Book," containing a complete list of these buyers is now being compiled.)

THIS IS THE GREATEST ENDORSEMENT EVER GIVEN ANY AUTOMOBILE BY THE MOST PROMINENT AND REPRESENTATIVE PEOPLE OF AMERICA.

It establishes Studebaker definitely as a fine car—a leader in style and quality.

It has proved beyond doubt that the day of high prices for fine cars has passed.

These buyers of Series 18 Studebaker cars are discriminating, exacting and critical—they are the keenest judges of quality and value.

They are the kind of people who have owned the highest priced cars, and their endorsement of Studebaker cars means that the value of a motor car is not judged by its price tag.

THIS ENDORSEMENT OF STUDEBAKER CARS TRULY SHOWS:
—the obvious value of Studebaker cars.
—the obvious quality and style of Studebaker cars.
—the great confidence the American public has in the name of Studebaker.
—the high standing of the Studebaker dealers' organization and its ability to inspire the public with confidence in its service.

These prominent buyers, in spending $7,000,000 for Studebaker cars in a few hours after the new models were announced is the greatest evidence of faith in a product in the history of merchandising.

It is more money than the public has ever spent before in a single day for an automobile of any kind at any price.

It is more money than the public has ever spent in a single day for any one article, except food, fuel and clothes.

It is the first time the public has ever so significantly stamped with approval the leadership of automobile value and quality.

It means more to the prospective purchaser of a motor car than any record ever made on a speedway, on a hill-climbing contest, on a cross-country run or through various "stunts," by specially prepared cars, in the hands of professional drivers.

See these new Series 18 cars today. Every Studebaker dealer has a specimen of these famous cars on his floor right now—see them—ride in them, and you'll quickly understand why they are the ultimate choice of America's discriminating buyers.

CONSTANT REMY SERVICE

The Motors Service Company, 2641 Michigan Avenue, Chicago, is the authorized service representative for Delco and Remy cranking, lighting and ignition systems and for Klaxon horns.

Authorized service means that the manufacturers of these well known electrical units have chosen the Motors Service Company to care for the service they deem essential. The work will be done by expert mechanics, men trained at the factories where these electrical devices were made.

And authorized service means something more. It means that motorists are assured by this Company of the same quality of service and attention to their requirements which they would expect of the manufacturer.

You may feel these parts on your car are running all right, that they are doing all they should. However, an expert, in five minutes, may show you how to get even better service and greater satisfaction.

We want you to drive into the Motors Service Building, have the electrical equipment in your car thoroughly gone over, and learn more about this unique service.

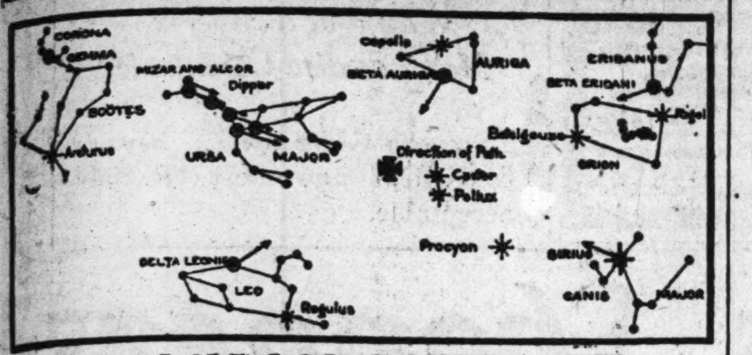
ASTRONOMY

by CLIFFORD RAYMOND



SKY MAP OF THE SIRIUS-DIPPER CLUSTER
DRAWN by S.F. MAXWELL

ABOUT 9 o'clock tonight the Big Dipper is in the north and Sirius has arisen above the southeastern horizon. Orion is in stride across the heavens and the winter luminaries are in sight. Later Regulus will show and Denebla and early in the morning Arcturus.

Early in the evening there is visible the cluster of the Pleiades, a grouping of suns which has definite shape to the observation. It appears as a grouping. It can be recognized by its haze.

The suns which are shown in Mr. Maxwell's drawing are such a cluster, it might be said, as the Pleiades. Our sun, with its satellites, is near the center of it. We are looking at a cluster intimately and not seeking its form because of our intimacy. We see the form of the Pleiades because of their distance.

If you want to imagine what the cluster of the Pleiades would seem like if the world were in it look at the heavens and see the cluster which includes the great star Sirius and the Dipper, Castor and Pollux, Regulus, etc.

They are parts of our nearby star cluster, the Sirius-Dipper star cluster, a grouping such as the Pleiades.

The untrained mind stops short when it receives the suggestion that the vault above is infinite. Trained perceptions undertake to admit this suggestion. To the generality of mankind the dome is one in which stars of varying brilliance are set. The dome is of set dimensions.

When the perceptions have grasped the possibility that in space a star cluster, such as the Pleiades, using this cluster for illustration because it is so prominent and easily recognizable, includes the great stars to be seen this evening in the eastern sky and stars later to arise. When these possibilities have been grasped something of the organization of infinity can be understood.

Then what seems merely an arc specked with lights becomes infinity organizations of suns in groupings. In our cluster Sirius, now seen in its splendor, is the greatert star because of its nearness. It owes its brightness not to its superlative intensity but to its proximity to us. It is nearer to us than the others. The star known as Beta Auriga is 410 times brighter than our sun. The other stars range from 32 to 190 times greater brilliance than our sun.

This star cluster presents a flat disc so large that it requires light sixty-seven years to cross it. The sun and the cluster are traveling in opposite directions, and are separating at the rate of thirteen miles a second.

Here is a star cluster so close to us that its components appear scattered over a belt of sky so wide that the whole of it can hardly be seen on any one night. It is so near that on Sirius a dark satellite has been seen, and at both Beta Aurigae and Mizar and Alcov wonderful systems of suns have been revealed.

It is reasonable to suppose that at some time in the dim past this cluster was a nebula, like the kind we see here and there today in the heavens. Its thinness suggests that it was in rapid rotation. Time elapsed and condensation occurred at numerous points. The stars slowly drew in the nebulous wisps and formed compact suns. All this time the system was rushing onward through space, meeting suns on their way which intermingled with the stars of the cluster for a while and then were passed by.

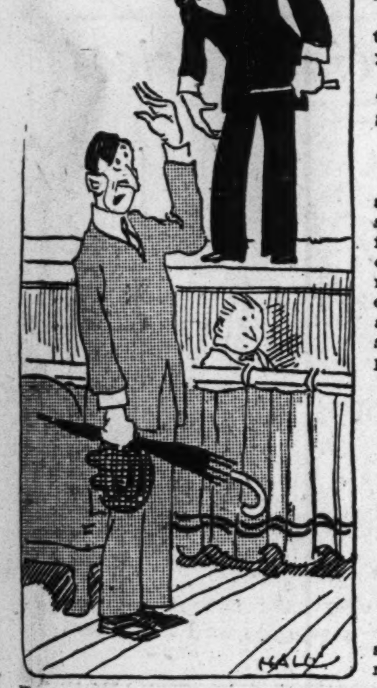
PALACE.

Carl McCullough—I was watching Hiram packing for a trip to Europe and noticed that he put a woman's night gown in his trunk. "What's that for?" I asked.

"That's to wear on the ship," said Hiram. "In case of a wreck it's women and children first."

Hiram was on a train one day when the sheriff got on with a lunatic, who was handcuffed. They sat in front of Hiram, and after a while he leaned over to the sheriff and said: "What's the matter with him?"



"Bugs," said the sheriff.

"Bugs?" asked Hiram.

"Yes, bugs in his head. He's insane."

"Well," said Hiram, "with bugs in his head and handcuffed I should think he would be."

Moore and Jenkins: "Mr. Jenkins, how is it you were caught with one of Jackson's chickens?"

"You see, it were just a cur'ous coincidence. I were goin' home by old man Jackson's place, and something must have scared his chickens, 'cause one old fool of a hen flew right square into my arms, and he was so scared he just hung fast to me, and I was so scared I just hung fast to him. And before I could make that old hen leggo old man Jackson he come round the corner, and things naturally looked a little suspicious."

"Which girl are you going to marry, Lydia or Anna?"

"I'm sure going to marry Anna."

"And why do you prefer Anna to Lydia?"

"Well, I'll tell you. It was just like this. Yesterday I was standing on the corner thinking which of them I should take, Lydia or Anna, when I saw a cigar on the ground. I picked it up, and since then I've decided to take Anna."

"What has the finding of a cigar on the street got to do with the selection of your wife?"

"All the difference in the world, 'cause on this cigar it said 'Havana.' So I took her."

The servant he bowed and then disappeared. Well, I finished my soup and just as I finished it the servant stepped forward to remove my empty plate.

"Where were you?" I asked the servant. "Did I not tell you to leave my room?"

"Yes, sir," said the servant.

"Then leave it at once. I wish to be alone," says I.

"Excuse me, sir," answered the servant, "but I am responsible for the silverware."

"Speculation" says Webster, "is the laying out of money with a view to more than usual success in trade."

Everybody Admits That "DREXEL" Is a Brilliantly Speculative Investment; LET US PROVE TO YOU THAT IT'S SAFE!

¶ This combination is rare, in investments—

¶ The combination of SAFETY and SPECTACULAR SPECULATIVE POSSIBILITIES.

¶ These qualities are today ideally blended in DREXEL COMMON at $10 per share.

¶ And the great Chicago public is awakening to the fact.

¶ Good investments are plentiful.

¶ But only once in ever so often is a good, safe investment opportunity offered which presents a possibility of earning more than six per cent.

¶ One that does is certainly worth investigating.

¶ Consider, in an unbiased attitude, the facts.

¶ Your first consideration, in judging any investment, should be the factor of safety. If you are more greatly influenced by the speculative possibilities of an investment than by its claims for being a safe and sound security, then you are nothing more or less than an Investment Gambler—and are pretty apt to lose your money.

¶ We want none of this sort of capital in our enterprise. We are making our bid for intelligent money—represented by discerning, reasonable, and foresighted people who know that nothing worth while in life comes without a struggle, without patience and without brains.

¶ Over 500 such people visited the DREXEL plant at 76th and Wallace Streets last Sunday—serious-minded, earnest, honest people. They were mostly DREXEL stockholders, who came in response to our invitation to come out and see the progress we are making (for most of them had been to the plant before). Without exception they expressed themselves as highly satisfied; and different ones of them VOLUNTARILY left ADDITIONAL subscriptions to over twelve thousand dollars' worth of stock.

¶ 2,000 individuals have already subscribed to Drexel Common. They have invested only after careful and thoughtful investigation and deliberation. One gentleman who invested heavily spent $1,500 of his own money in examining every phase of our proposition before he would put up a cent.

¶ "You cannot indict a nation."

¶ You can't impugn the judgment of 2,000 intelligent people.

¶ We might well argue that our present large army of enthusiastic stockholders proves the soundness of our project.

¶ But we won't stop there! We will ask you to let us prove our case, point by point, and step by step, to you.

¶ We are a manufacturing company—not merely assemblers of cars.

¶ We make our own engine.

¶ We own our own engine.

¶ We own the patent rights to what we believe is the most wonderful automobile motor of the age. We believe the events of the next four weeks will prove it. And we repeat that there are some big things right now in the air.

¶ Owning and making our own engine, we are certainly in a fair enough way to succeed while times continue prosperous and with practically all motor car manufacturers enjoying larger orders than they can fill.

¶ Our position in the field is unique in that, OWNING AND MANUFACTURING OUR OWN MOTOR, we are prepared against all contingencies.

¶ If times should so tighten up that the demand for automobiles were cut in half, it would affect only those motor car producers who buy their motors from the trade. And nearly half the automobile manufacturers in the country today use "stock" motors.

¶ If we were using a "stock" motor, instead of our own motor, we would have to add $90 to the cost of each DREXEL car. For the motor we are today manufacturing at a cost of $95, formerly cost us $185 to build in outside factories.

¶ We could do pretty well, you see, in just manufacturing motors for the trade.

¶ And there are over forty big automobile concerns at present that can't secure half the motors they require.

¶ But we propose to continue to use the Farmer motor exclusively in Drexel cars.

¶ Half of the additional machinery and materials needed to increase our capacity to 25 cars per day are installed—and paid for through the proceeds of the stock we've sold to date.

¶ The balance is being ordered as fast as the money is being subscribed.

¶ And President Farmer estimates that we will be turning out an average of 25 cars per day by Feb. 1st.

¶ But we could stop where we are (if we had to) and, in 30 days' time, put ourselves on a restricted manufacturing basis where we could earn 6% or better on our capitalization, without taking another forward step.

¶ These facts, you will agree, argue for the soundness of this investment. If further proof is needed, we need but point to the personnel of the men behind our project and to the fact that we have nearly $400,000 of assets at this moment, with not a dollar owing to any one, except for the current monthly bills.

Many Are Making Christmas Gifts of "Drexel" Stock to Their Friends and Kin.

WHY NOT YOU?

What more appropriate Christmas Gifts can you imagine? What gift that would be more appreciated by your wife, husband, brother, sister, daughter, son or sweetheart!!

¶ For, here is a gift that will not decay with age, but that should grow more and more valuable with the increasing years.

¶ Suppose—8 years ago—you had given your loved one 10 shares of stock in the General Motors Co., with which Mr. Farmer (president of the Drexel Co.) was formerly connected. It seems incredible that such a gift, which you could have then purchased at around $400, would today be worth over $8,000, as is the case.

¶ We will issue you your Drexel stock certificate, upon request, and have it in your hands before Christmas Day, so that you may personally present it, if you desire, or we will mail it direct to the person you desire to remember, accompanied by a letter to the recipient, stating that this gracious gift is from you.

¶ So much for the SAFETY of this investment.

¶ We have shown where, investing with us at this advanced stage in the evolution of our business, that your money is more than reasonably safe, and that you are pretty thoroughly assured of the usual returns on your money.

¶ What UNUSUAL returns may you expect on your investment, however?—what OVERAGE value does Drexel, at $10 per share, offer you?—

¶ These are the questions that now interest you.

¶ And here is an interesting story.

¶ The public, by habit, has grown to think of a SPECULATION as something to be shunned.

¶ But is it, really, to be shunned?

¶ What does "Speculation" mean?

¶ Let's consult the Dictionary.

¶ The Dictionary says that Speculation is "the laying out of money with a view to more than usual success in trade."

¶ Read it over the second time.

¶ Note that Webster doesn't say that Speculation is a matter of taking big chances, of accepting great odds, as some seem to think the term Speculation implies.

¶ "The laying out of money with a view to more than usual success in trade."

¶ By that definition (which is the only correct definition) DREXEL IS TODAY THE MOST BRILLIANT SPECULATION OFFERED THE PEOPLE OF CHICAGO.

¶ And here is why—

¶ Because, while providing safety, it offers you more in the way of UNUSUAL returns than anything we know of.

¶ Big things are about to transpire in connection with DREXEL.

¶ The first of these important events will be announced publicly next Sunday for the first time. This information will then, of course, become public property. But thousands of people will learn of it in advance of the General Public. These lucky ones are our Advance Inquirers—the folks who respond to this ad—those who clip the coupon in the upper right hand corner.

Private Advance Information Will Be Supplied You

¶ We have a series of Big Announcements to make beginning next Sunday. Their spectacular nature is such as will electrify Chicago.

¶ They will make people who have been dubious about this enterprise nod their heads in approval. They will make thousands of "doubting Thomases" eager to invest in Drexel stock.

¶ But the foresighted man is not waiting. He realizes that waiting may be a dangerous business at this stage of the thing.

¶ He says, in candor and in fairness, "The Drexel people have shown me enough already. I will take them at their word when they say that 'Now's the time to buy.'"

¶ And this is the spirit that has caught this entire great community these last few days, and that has started a veritable stampede of buyers of Drexel stock.

¶ Our "Preferred List" now numbers something like 4,000 names. These people will be first to receive the Important Information we shall soon give out. They will have the first opportunity to take advantage of any favorable condition that may be brought to pass. They will each receive absolute protection and first preference.

¶ But don't postpone action; don't say that you will wait a day or two. We can't hold back the Big Secret much longer. And this announcement will hardly again appear.

Mail Above Coupon And Get the Facts

¶ All the facts are yours for the asking, as well as the advance information we promise to give you. We will gladly send you our prospectus, our little house organ, "DREXEL DOINGS," and a beautiful 20-page 10x13 inch De Luxe Book of Factory Views, containing twelve handsome 9x12 reproductions of the plant and motor, done in sepia ink and printed on one side only, and without advertising. Our literature, in fact, so thoroughly and comprehensively covers every phase of the situation that even a person located thousands of miles from Chicago can, through its perusual, become fully posted on our proposition. We want you to learn all about the Drexel, so that you can intelligently decide what to do with the startling opportunity we are about to face you with.

¶ Remember—this is all without cost or obligation to you.

Our Demonstration Car Makes Daily Trip to Factory at 2 P. M. Visitors Invited.

IT HAS BEEN DONE. THE REQUEST FOR A MORE CONVENIENT WAY TO GO FROM OUR STORE FLOORS TO THE RESTAURANT HAS BEEN COMPLIED WITH. Beginning tomorrow, between the hours of 11:00 and 2:00 each day, one of the arcade elevators in the State Street building will be run for the special service of [illegible]tomers between the store and the Stevens Building Restaurant on the eighth floor. This elevator will not go below the second nor above tht eighth floor during these hours, and will stop at each store floor so that customers on any of the upper floors of Chas. A. Stevens & Bros. store may take the elevator and reach the restaurant [illegible] seconds, instead of going down the store elevators, as formerly, and over to the arcade to go up.

A Special Service for Men

To make Christmas shopping easy—so that you can buy for the women of your acquaintance the things they want most—we have arranged this service.

Upon request, any floorman on the first floor will assign to you an expert shopper, man or woman—a person who knows how to guide you, to make suggestions, and to assist you in every way.

This will save you time and effort and make the results more satisfactory. For this there is no charge.

Those persons desiring $5.00, $10.00 or $15.00 gold pieces for gift purposes may obtain them from our Fifth Floor Cashier.

Furs Are Fascinating Xmas Gifts

and most gratefully received. A Fur Coat is an object for desire to any woman, and separate Fur Sets are seldom in danger of duplication.

Quality, genuineness, style, and the reputation of the furrier should be the dominant points in making a selection.

Our reputation as quality furriers is unquestioned, and we confidently assert that we have the most carefully selected stock in Chicago—a stock where quality and not quantity receives paramount consideration.

Read the accompanying list of fur items very specially priced for this last week before Christmas. Each one represents a wonderful value.

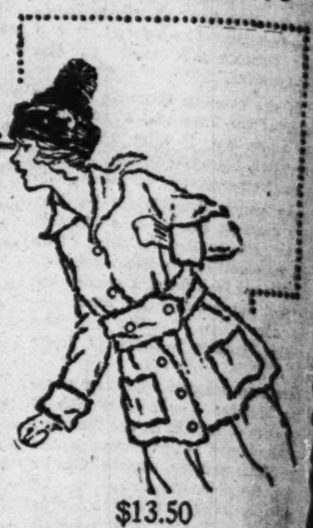
A Sweater Is an Ideal Gift



$13.50

This one especially—long, white angora wool, woven into a richly colored foundation to give a two-tone effect—white and rose, white and purple, and white and peacock. It is light but warm, extremely attractive, and so elastic that size is not so very important. $13.50.

Then there are others, running from a little lot of very nice wool Sweaters in good colors, which have been marked $2.50 for final disposal, to attractive models in plain knit wool and brushed wool finishes, at $5.00, $7.50 and $10.00. These have large, graceful collars and belts or sashes.

A Silk Sweater makes a wonderful gift. Every woman wants one and any one would appreciate it greatly. In all sorts of fascinating colors. Priced from $27.50 to $40.00.

Holiday Hosiery

A very charming collection of fine Silk Hose, the gift which forever pleases women.

Women's Embroidered Silk Hose, a range in price from $1.00 to $12.50.

Women's Silk Hose, lace effects for evening wear, $1.75 to $8.50.

Women's Accordion Ribbed Heavy Weight Silk Hose, two and three tone effects, a very practical street hose. Per pair, $2.95, $3.75 and $5.00.

Boot Silk Hose, black, white and colors, 50c.

Silk Lisle Hose, full fashioned, in black or white, 35c and 50c.

Children's Silk Hose, in black, white and pink. Sizes 7 to 9½. Per pair $1 to $1.50.

Linen Handkerchiefs

Give Handkerchiefs. Here are good ones to give.

Men's fine linen, with hand embroidered initials. Each 50c.

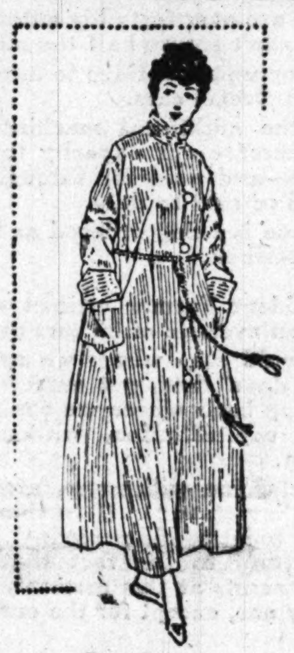
Men's fine linen, with novelty cord effectively woven in the handkerchief. Each, 75c.

Novelty Glove Handkerchiefs for the ladies. Fine linen in pink, blue, helio, green or tan. Each, 25c.

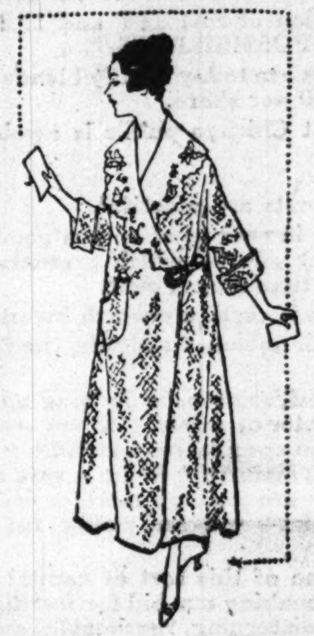
Women's Hand Woven Linen, very fine and sheer, with the dainty block letter. The quality talks. Each, 50c.

Women's Sheer Linen, in a splendid assortment of the new designs in embroidery, either white or novelty colors. Each, 25c, 35c, 50c.

House Robes Specially Priced



The charmingly attractive Robe illustrated to the right is of silk matelasse, lined throughout with heavy quality Habutai silk. The patch pocket and cuffs are bound with silk, and the lingerie collar is beautifully hand embroidered. $22.50.



The Robe to the left—just the thing for cold weather wear—is of corded eiderdown. It is made with a military collar and deep patch pockets. The neck can be worn open or closed. Specially priced at $5.00.

Sale of House Robes

Special attention is called to our wonderful assortment of House Robes—velvet, blanket, corduroy, Bedford cord, and Japanese wadded Robes—ranging in price from $2.95 to $55.00.

Tricot, Milanese and Italian Silk Undergarments

These garments are now among the most practical holiday gifts.

Tricot Silk Vests, a good, heavy quality with narrow tailored band and shoulder straps, pink or white. A very special value at $1.75 each.

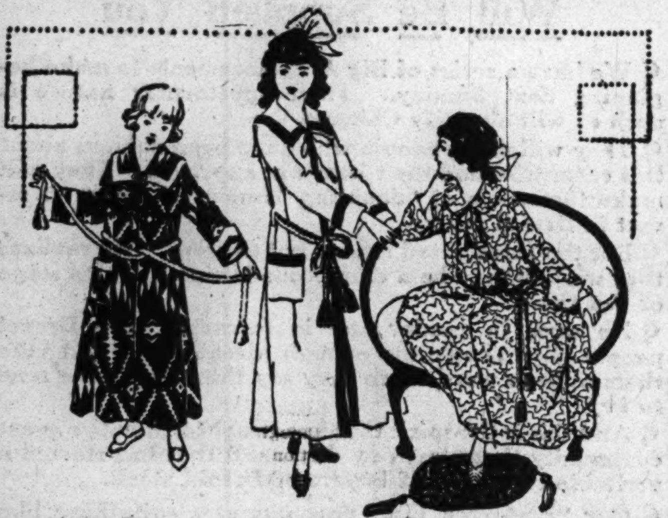
Tricot Silk Vests, embroidered fronts. A very extensive line of pretty, new designs at $2.25 and $2.50 each.

Italian Silk Corset Covers, very prettily trimmed with lace or ribbon shoulder straps. A special lot, made up for the holiday season. Each, $1.50.

Silk Bloomers, heavy weight tricot silk, in black, white and pink. Sizes 4 to 7. Each, $2.50.

Silk Envelope Chemise, come in fancy lace tops or plain with tailored band tops. Each, $2.95.

Gift Robes for Misses and Girls



Blanket Robe, $3.75

Elderdown Robe, $3.75

Terry Robe, $3.75

It is really a pleasure to choose from this selection of Terry, Blanket, Eiderdown and Flannelette Robes, for girls and misses, $1.50 to $5.

Sweaters for girls and misses, silk and wool, $2 to $13.75.

Girls' Caps and Scarfs, sets, $2 to $3.95.

Much Worn in Paris

are the new Veils, braided in contrasting colors in scroll designs. New York is wearing them, but they are still quite new here. Such a gift will be distinctive and have merit. We have a considerable shipment of attractive ones at $2.50 to $3.95.

Corsage Bouquets

of exquisite artificial flowers in attractive gift boxes are very good.

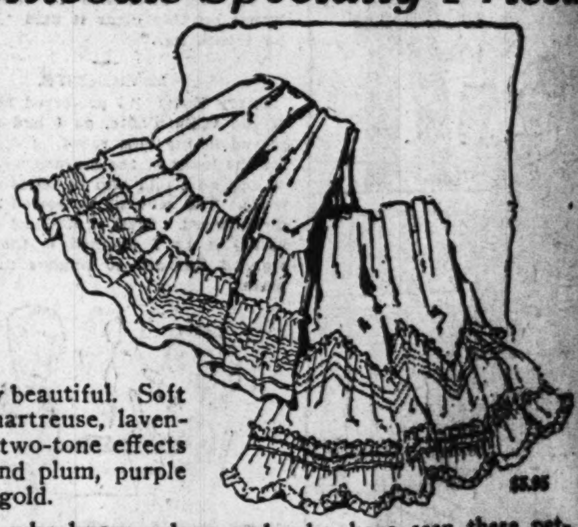
Also roses, gardenias, zinnias and combinations of flowers.

New Sport Silks

The display of "Khaki Kool" sport silks is extremely fascinating. The smartest suits and dresses for resort wear will be made of them—with no fear of the possibility of cheap imitations. We are showing them in the most attractive colors and patterns.

New Silk Petticoats Specially Priced at $5.95



$5.95

A special lot of Women's Silk Petticoats, specially priced at $5.95.

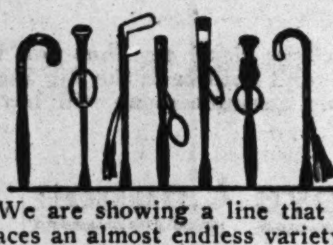
Every Petticoat properly gored and has fitted top with elastic waist bands.

The beautiful styles and perfect workmanship should be seen to be appreciated.

The array of color is truly beautiful. Soft evening shades in gray, chartreuse, lavender rose and apple green; two-tone effects in navy and rose, green and plum, purple and gold, copenhagen and gold.

Discriminating women who know values and who have seen these petticoats proclaim them to be the best values they have seen, as well as the best made and most attractive materials.

New Umbrellas



We are showing a line that embraces an almost endless variety of novelty handles from which to select, including the new military strap handle with embroidered Chinese monograms, medallions, silk cord and leather loops, gold and silver effects. A useful as well as an acceptable gift, at $2, $3.50 and $5.

Others ranging in price up to $25.

Gift Neckwear

Among the many attractive novelties in Women's Neckwear which are very acceptable as Christmas gifts are Georgette Collars and Collar and Cuff Sets, many of them hand embroidered, in new broadcloth and satin; also fine Net Collar and Cuff Sets; Vestees and Guimpes; Knitted Silk Scarfs; Crepe de Chine Scarfs; Crepe de Chine Bows; La Valliere Ties in silk or satin; Ostrich and Maribou Novelties.

We specialize in the better qualities. The merchandise is carefully selected and there is real merit and value in every article offered.

6 SPECIALS IN New, Slightly Used and Second Hand Pianos.

NEW ENGLAND PIANO, $125.

Walnut case, full size piano, in fine condition; very good tone; a splendid opportunity to secure special value.

KRAKAUER PIANO, $175.

Burled walnut case, full size, in good order, full resonant tone; a good example of this well known make.

LELAND PIANO, $195.

Of our own make, mahogany case, of late catalogue design; in good condition; exceptionally pure in tone quality; well constructed of finest materials. This piano is well worth considerably more than the price at which it is offered.

STERLING PIANO, $225.

Mahogany case, of artistic design, very good tone quality and special musical value. In good condition; only slightly used and practically like new. This instrument would be a decidedly good investment.

WASHBURN PIANO, $225.

This is a new piano of our own make, an expert design in a rich, nicely figured, dark mahogany case, of the characteristic tone quality for which pianos of this make are widely known; well worth quite a little more than the price mentioned and represents rare value.

STEINWAY PIANO, $375.

Beautifully figured, medium colored walnut case, in fine condition; a characteristic instrument of this world standard make of pianos.

SALESMEN—CAPABLE OF HANDLING A BIG PROPOSITION. MEN MAKING $1,000 A WEEK.

We have a new and original plan of selling a difficult and profitable proposition. It takes a heavyweight salesman to handle the situation properly, but the man who can do so makes some one else do 90 pct. of his work for him, and the hardest part of it, enabling the salesman to devote his time to closing red hot prospects for large sales.

Men with us make as high as $1,000 a week, and get it in full the same week. The work is legitimate, pleasant, and dignified, although not more than one salesman [so called] in fifty can do it justice, and we will consider no other kind.

If you are really capable of using your brains instead of your feet, have judgment, tact, personality, persistence, determination, and other qualifications of a real salesman, we want you. This work pays the right man big money, but not easy money. You earn all you get and get all you can earn. You work on a make good basis, so, four flushers, don't waste your time.

Address with information showing you are the man we are looking for, T C 223, Tribune.

SALESMEN — LIVE MEN AND WOMEN who want to learn to be successful real estate salesmen and salesladies.

We conduct a night school on Monday and Wednesday evenings from 7 to 9.

It is not necessary to form a full time connection with our organization to start, but you can make money in your spare time—then when fully educated join our company on full time.

The school is free of tuition.

Register today or tomorrow, 8:30 a. m. to 5:30 p. m.

OVER 250 POSITIONS OPEN NOW

For high grade men in every department. Orders simply roll in for men from the Office Clerk to the General Manager. Last week we placed the $15,000 General Sales Manager we have been advertising for so long and we have now another Sales Manager position which will pay from $7,500 to $18,000, besides several other positions for $6,000-$10,000.

Drop in and talk to one of our department managers. If you don't see advertised what you want, ask for it. We fill many positions which are never advertised. If we haven't what you want we know how and where to find it. It matters not where you are located, it behooves you to get in touch with us because we may have an opening right in your vicinity. If you can't call, write us.

REMEMBER, we have been placing High Grade Men successfully for the past 14 years. We are not an experiment or something new. We have stood the test.

YOUNG WOMEN
SEEKING EMPLOYMENT.

OPERATORS WANTED.

Rapid growth of business necessitates employment of larger force of young women operators at telephone exchanges, thus offering opportunities of immediate employment with good chance of advancement.

Operators are paid at the rate of thirteen cents (13c) per hour for the first month (while learning the work), fourteen cents (14c) for the second and third months, fifteen cents (15c) for the fourth, fifth, and sixth months, and so on up to and including twenty-four cents (24c) per hour for those who remain operators; further, exceptional opportunity exists for those who show marked ability.

In addition to this luncheon is provided free of expense to students and operators.

The pleasant surroundings, ideal working conditions, attractive luncheon and rest rooms, make an operator's position highly desirable.

Young women over 16 yrs. of age apply at any of our offices, or at Room 1, 111 No. Franklin-st.

TRADE SCHOOLS.

WOMEN—30, HIGH CLASS; MUST BE CULtured, refined, intelligent, of excellent character and fine personal appearance and from 25 to 50 years of age. Such women can learn at low cost and in a comparatively short time a profession that is second to none, the profession of teaching people how to get well, how to keep well and how to keep happy. There can be no greater service than this. One's success in doing this under my methods which are entirely new depends entirely upon the individual applying them.

I wish to start a class of twenty early in January and it is possible for a student to begin earning money under my system within three months after commencing the course and to continue the course at the same time.

It means close application, honest work and an ardent capacity for doing good. It also means adequate compensation. Remember that those only who possess the above qualifications will be admitted to the class. For further information address N N 174, Tribune.

GROUND FLOOR

The New Orleans Great Northern Railway opens for farm settlement the immense acreage of the great lumber company lands among its lines in Mississippi and Louisiana.

Growing towns, churches, schools, lumber companies, shipbuilding, turpentine distilleries, pine oil, and paper mills have sprung up all along the line of the railroad, but, timber being the chief asset, the land itself, regardless of its great agricultural worth, has been carried on the books at a mere nominal value.

As the timber is being cut out and the stumps and discarded tree trunks and limbs in the logging fields are being ground into pulp for pine oil, turpentine, and the manufacture of paper, an immense acreage of virgin land close in to the railroad, towns, factories, churches, and schools is being left for farm occupation.

Unless the railroad settles these lands with farmers it will fail to provide for a chief source of revenue when the timber is gone, and the railroad, with its future means of support materially at stake, will therefore afford every aid in the matter of prices, terms, and co-operation in obtaining settlers on the land.

Write Walter S. Ayres, Industrial Commissioner, N. O. G. N. Ry., 864 McCormick Bldg., Chicago, Ill., how to obtain, first hand, a desirable farm out of this great body of cheap virgin land.

REAL ESTATE—FARM LANDS.

Michigan.

Colonizing

THE NAME "SWIGART TRACT" stands for a district in Manistee, Mason, Lake, and Wexford Counties, Michigan, but it means more. It means the progress and development of that district, in other words colonizing it, and not simply the selling of its lands.

SELLING LANDS at prices reasonable enough and on terms of credit liberal enough so that most any one earning wages can buy is of itself a good work in these times of land scarcity, but colonizing is a still bigger work.

COLONIZING calls for organization on a large scale and united effort. There is a common purpose, a mutual interest on the part of owner, employés, agents, and settlers. And therein lies the secret of the enduring strength of this project. Even with the best of natural advantages, it takes men to make a community.

IN THE SALE of every piece of land a promise is involved. A few years ago we promised that this district would develop. It has, and that development has gathered momentum. We stated the lands would produce excellent crops of clover, alfalfa, rye, timothy, oats, beans, fruits, potatoes, and all vegetables. They are doing it. Come to my offices and see samples of these products. We stated the lands would increase materially in value. They have, and each year the sales and number of settlers have increased. We advertised there would be industrial development. It has happened. The first of seven immense power dams is in operation, the second is now being built by a force of some 400 men. These dams, all located in the Swigart Tract, mean enhanced value to every acre.

ADVERTISING this district steadily and liberally for years has been a part of my policy. The extent of the project warranted it. 175,000 acres have been sold. There are 50,000 unsold acres now to select from, and new lands are constantly being added. This coöperative project is kept in the limelight of publicity—and we invite thorough investigation.

THIS UNITED EFFORT is for you, if you would seek a farm home. These days men join associations for the greater benefit to the individual. Some of the features of our plan are as follows: Agricultural experts to visit the farm of every settler; operation of demonstration farms; seed-distributing arrangement; insurance with every contract after the land is partly paid for—a security to the buyer's family; the terms give long time, being as low as $25 to $50 down and $7 to $10 per month on 40 acres, or annual terms if preferred, or 5% off for all cash; a Warranty Deed and Abstract on completion of every sale. The prices are $15 to $25 per acre, and until the next rise in price this coming spring there is a large selection at $18 to $20 per acre of some of the best lying land in the Tract. Many buy from the map on our Midwinter offer at present prices, with privilege to exchange or money back when they go on our special car excursions to inspect the lands next spring or summer.

A DESCRIPTION of the soil, roads, schools, towns, crops, water supply, climate, class of people, transportation, markets, etc., is contained in a 72 page book, with 115 excellent views. Send a postal for it. Call if you can and get a large map and see many stereopticon views of the Tract.

Man with $5,000 Wanted

The largest Manufacturing corporation in its line in the world, controlling the patents of an absolutely new invention, desires to interest a man with $5,000 or more in Chicago and neighboring cities.

The work may be conducted in connection with present occupation, as it will require only a few hours daily or evenings if preferred. It is no "War Bride" or stock selling scheme, requires no canvassing or soliciting, and is highly respectable and refined.

The invention is exceedingly attractive and pronounced by the United States Government one of the eight greatest inventions of the decade. Awarded many gold medals.

A man with a capital as small as $5,000 is here offered an excellent business with no risk, no store or storage rent to pay. The income begins the moment installation is made. Full investigation granted and unless you are in position to comply with our requirements, please do not waste your time and ours. This is a live proposition for a live man who desires to assure himself of a lifetime income and he must have the necessary cash to take advantage of it.

For interview address O C 556, Tribune.

German Prison Camps and Hospitals Shown to Writers

ARTICLE VII.

BY MADELEINE Z. DOTY.

[Author of "Society's Misfits."]

The official tour for the newspaper writers began in Karlsruhe. It was under the direction of Herr Dr. Schumacher. Journalists from neutral countries were to be shown the greatness of Germany. All expenses were paid. There were nineteen press representatives, including myself—four women and fifteen men.

We came from Norway, Sweden, Denmark, Holland, Switzerland, Spain, and America. The one other American was a woman who lives in Germany and writes for a New York paper.

At first it was a little difficult to live up to our royal surroundings. No money was spared for our entertainment. We traveled in a special car. Carriages and taxis met us and conducted us to expensive hotels.

The moment of descent on a new city was thrilling. As the train drew into the station lined up on the platform would be a group of prominent citizens, retired generals, covered with gold braid and medals, wealthy merchants, the bürgermeister and oberbürgermeister, and other city officials, while the populace crowded in the background. At such moments I descended from the train as graciously as I could and extended my hand. Often I had it kissed. We newspaper writers soon felt we were doing duty for the kaiser.

Visit Hospital for Cripples.

Our luncheon in Karlsruhe was given by the chamber of commerce. After two hours of champagne we were all friendly. At 3 we set off for the crippled soldiers' hospital at Ettlingen. With a private car we reach that suburb in a few moments. The lazareth for armless and legless men is impressive. It has a great stretch of open ground and many well equipped buildings.

The first room we entered contained surgical appliaces. Suspended in each machine was a man. One was hung by his shoulders, having his neck stretched. Another lay face downward, having a leg pulled. A third endured the twisting of a thumb and hand.

Many of the patients were white with pain; beads of perspiration stood on their foreheads. I shrank back. It was like entering Mme. Tussaud's chamber of horrors, only these were living men, not wax figures.

But the military doctors were urging us forward. With great pride they exhibited their inventions. It was the machine that counted. But I looked in the men's faces. Their expressions varied. Sometimes it was patient endurance, but often I saw anger and resentment.

Much of interest was shown. At one time we were treated to a drill. A squad of one legged men was called to do dumb-bell exercises. Nearly all kept their balance, only one or two lurched and tottered. Then a group of armless or one armed men were made to jump wooden horses and do kindred stunts. At the end of the performance we were taken to the room of false limbs.

Have Two Kinds of Arms.

Here were steel arms with great iron hooks. These are called weekday arms. The Sunday arms are imitations of the real thing. Few except officers have Sunday arms. It was a weird scene, this exhibition of the latest invention in arms and legs. It might have been a demonstration in automobiles.

Our little group stood or sat while the military doctors produced a crippled patient and strapped on appliances. The doctor's talk ran as follows:

"This one has had his leg off just below the knee, but he walks quite well"—and he started the man down the room.

"This one," bringing another wreck forward, "has one leg off at the knee and the other at the thigh, but see how well he walks," and the maimed man walked up and down before us. "Now this one," continued the doctor, with pride, "has both legs and an arm removed, but you see he is quite satisfactory."

I began to feel in a horrible nightmare. It seemed to me in another moment the doctor would be saying: "Now, this man had his head shot off and we have substituted a wooden one. We found the spine controlled muscular action, and he is a perfectly satisfactory worker."

From the hospital we made a hurried trip back to Karlsruhe and, packing bags, dashed for the train. As we passed through the station I noticed a large sign with a huge index finger. It said, "In case of aeroplanes go into the cellar." It was at Karlsruhe that eighty women and children were killed by bombs from a French aeroplane.

Luggage Fails to Arrive.

Our special car took us to Baden Baden. I closed my eyes wearily, but we were soon at our destination. At the station were the open victorias and white horses and we made a triumphant journey to the hotel. But then came a hitch. No baggage appeared.

We sat in the hotel parlor and the minutes slipped by. Across the way on the Casino terrace elaborate dinner preparations were going forward. The "stadt" was entertaining us this evening. A long table with sixty places and covered with flowers was being made ready. At a short distance were many small tables where wealthy citizens sat and humbly gazed from afar.

Generals in glittering uniforms and the ober burgomaster and other city officials began to arrive. And still we sat on in that hotel parlor. It really didn't matter if our luggage was lost. Still it was too bad not to have clean collars and my evening dress.

Sent Back for Labels.

An hour passed, then came word that our possessions were on the way. This is what had occurred. When we reached Baden Baden our luggage was in the special car, but it hadn't been labeled. The stuff went back to Karlsruhe to get labeled and start out properly.

We scampered into our clothes and arrived late and flushed at the dinner party. There were charming red roses at my place. They hid many deficiencies. It was a sumptuous meal, an hour long, with everything from oysters to ices, and a grand mixture of wines.

A German general sat on my right and a prominent citizen on the left. Though I understood some German I still could not speak it. But the German general was attractive, so I just smiled and murmured: "Ja wohl."

His thinness bothered me and when we were half through dinner and the champagne had warmed his heart he said confidingly:

"My clothes no longer fit; I have lost twenty-four pounds around the waist." His childlike confession was pathetic, but he had a stoical pride that was thrilling, for he added: "It's been much better for my health getting thin, all the German people are better off for this shortage of meat and fat." But he ate hungrily as did every one else.

These dinner parties were a splendid excuse for a little joy. During the meal a band played. Thoughts of war vanished. The Casino garden with its lights, its music and thronging people seemed a fairyland. It wasn't until we left and passed through the iron gates that reality returned.

You cannot enter the Casino without a membership ticket. Consequently pressed against the outer railing were the lean and hungry populace of Baden Baden. The taste in my mouth grew bitter. It suddenly became difficult to go on with this life of luxury.

The next morning we visited the baths. They are gorgeous affairs, much like those of ancient Rome. There is every conceivable kind of treatment for every conceivable disease. Whole houses are devoted to vapor inhalations. After we had all been treated and reduced to sneezes and coughs we were conducted to the top of a 2,000 foot mountain.

Baden Baden Beautiful City.

Baden Baden was a beautiful spot. From that glorious mountain top the glowing landscape stretched out on every side. It was impossible to believe war raged a few miles away. There was the shining meadow land with the glittering Rhine, winding in and out, the thickly wooded hills, somber in shadows, fitting their name "Black Forest," and far off on the horizon dimly rose a church steeple. It marked the city of Strassburg. On a clear day, when the wind was right, the booming of cannon could be heard.

But nothing in that serene and smiling scene spoke of death. I remembered the remark of a German woman:

"Thank God," she said, "the fighting isn't in our land. We are suffering badly, but at least our beloved country isn't being destroyed."

Dine on Mountain Top.

Again the "stadt" fed us. This time on the mountain top. Again we clinked glasses and drank toasts. In the afternoon a special electric train took us through the town. We saw parks and fountains and flower gardens, and the modern art gallery and were introduced to the aged and distinguished painter, Hans Thoma.

At 5 o'clock we started in our private car for Heidelberg. I had begun to grow weary of constant entertainment, besides I felt myself a prisoner. I had overheard the gentleman who accompanied us at Baden say to my future guide in Heidelberg, as he delivered me over: "Never let her out of your sight."

At Heidelberg there was a quiet dinner in the hotel, but in the evening we were given a concert in the park, where more beer and wine flowed. It was a dreary affair. Few persons were present. Heidelberg was no longer the gay, alive little university town I had known a few years before. A great stillness hung over it. Scarcely any one moved on the streets. The university grounds were empty. No students flocked to patisseries for kaffee and apfelkuchen. There is no apfelkuchen.

Reporters Visit Prison Camp.

Heidelberg outdid herself for entertainment. She had obtained some official automobiles for our service. The next morning came the great adventure. We were taken to visit a prison war camp. It is a camp for English, French, and Russian officers and is situated on the outskirts of the town.

The buildings are the new barracks recently erected for German soldiers, but never so used. With the automobiles we were there in a few moments. As we passed inside the high wire fence we saw a great open square. This was laid out in three tennis courts. Unmistakable Englishmen were playing strenuous tennis. There were 300 prisoners, including officers and orderlies.

We spent an hour in inspection and were hurried from room to room. There was a billiard room, a sitting room, library, dining room, kitchen, and sleeping quarters, also a shop. All the prisoners receive money from home. In the store they can buy anything from tennis rackets to food. The actual cash is not given the men, but instead an equivalent in imitation money.

Prisoners Appear Healthy.

We saw more of the buildings than the prisoners, but those we saw looked well. They had color and life. There was no doubt the camp was a good one. But there was no fraternizing between the German officers and the prisoners. All were rigidly silent.

I spoke a word of greeting to one or two English and French officers. Their faces lit up when addressed and their eyes beamed when I added, "I am an American." One Englishman volunteered: "You don't know how good it is to speak to a woman; it's so long since we've seen any one but the enemy."

Some men had been interned two years. I knew they must have been homesick and I wanted to give them news from home, but dared not. I heard a young American, a volunteer in the English army, was a prisoner in the camp. I asked permission to speak to him privately. This was granted. I stepped to one side with the youth. We had only gotten as far as his name [C. G. Martin] when my ever-faithful attendant loomed up. Further confessions were useless.

Tries to Warn American.

I tried to warn the young American. I feared he would mistake my companion for a compatriot, for that gentleman spoke excellent English and had no Teutonic earmarks. But young Martin didn't heed the warning, he continued: "There is much to complain of in the camp. The beds are terribly hard and there is frightful overcrowding."

The German gentleman at my elbow turned red, but to me the criticism was trivial. That this was all a wealthy young American had to complain of made me doubly sure the camp was a good one. but he continued:

"An English officer named McLane tried to escape and got caught. He has been put in solitary confinement without trial. For ten days he has had no exercise and is growing ill." By this time my German companion was enraged. I dared delay my departure no longer. As we left we brought Mr. McLane's case before the German officials. They said he was receiving the same discipline a German soldier would have had to endure for a similar offense. I remembered the Lazarette. German soldiers seemed to be suffering greater torment at the hand of their own government than were the enemy prisoners.

Prison Camp Depressing.

But the prison camp at Heidelberg was depressing. There seemed to be a relentlessness about the German official that to a free spirit was suffocating. As an honored guest even I felt it. I had become suddenly glad I was an American. Not from love of country, but because America is a democracy.

Champagne, hand kissing, and physical comfort cannot take the place of liberty. To be able to go to Washington and complain to the president or stand on a soap box on a street corner and debate on suffrage are priceless possessions.

From the prison camp we went to inspect the gas works. These had recently been built and were shown us as a demonstration of what Germany can do in spite of war. From the gas works we went to the famous sixteenth century restaurant, "Der Ritter." Here we had light luncheon of more beer and wine and caviar sandwiches. Yes, real caviar.

Visit Half-Ruined Castle.

After this treat we walked to an ancient "schloss." It is a massive half-ruined castle on the hillside. We sat on broken pillars and listened to a historical discourse. I wondered how many reporters thought such material copy. At 2 o'clock we were on top of a mountain having another gorgeous repast, given by the city.

We had a private dining room with a table for sixty. There were flowers for the women and six or seven courses and unlimited beverages. I began to call a halt on drinks. No wonder reporters who make official tours and never see anything else of Germany report the land flowing with plenty.

In the afternoon we had a pleasant motor trip. We went far out into the country, following the course of the Necker. This part of Germany is smiling and fertile, quite different from the north. About Hamburg and Berlin and on the journey to the south the land was barren, dry and juiceless. It looks motheaten and flybitten. The lack of fertility showed in pale faces and lusterless hair and the thinness and stringiness of the meat and fish. But here fodder was better. The chickens were plump, the cows gave better milk.

Banquet at Mannheim.

Late that afternoon the pilgrimage began again. This time we went to Mannheim. We arived at 7. Here clean collars and every speck of finery were put forth. The "stadt" gave us a magnincent dinner in the Friederich's park. It seemed to me I should die if I drank another toast, but I saw a failure to appear would be taken amiss.

On my first morning in Mannheim I awoke suddenly. For a moment I didn't realize where I was. I had been given a parlor suite. I was lost in my gigantic sitting room with five windows. I lay still a moment. Then gay music came floating through the window. It was that which has awakened me. I stepped out on my balcony.

It was early, only 7. There was a drizzly rain. Not a pedestrian was on the street, but coming down the square was a regiment of soldiers. The band played cheerily, but the mens' feet dragged. Tired eyes looked out of pale faces. I felt as though I was going mad. To dine in a rose garden and awaken to such a scene. Germany was getting on my nerves.

Inspect Slaughter Houses.

That morning our time was divided between a slaughter house and a milk depot. These visits were intended to demonstrate Germany's great food supply. At the slaughter yards were four big buildings for animals, but only one was occupied. A bullock was to be killed for our benefit. Poor, little wooly bullock. I wasn't of course present at the death, but the men reporters crowded to the slaughter.

There was something pathetic in the incident. Reporters from every quarter of the globe assembled to see one bullock killed. It was the only creature slain during our hour's stay.

In the milk depots there were four large tanks and only one in use. All the cream from this supply was being made into butter and put in cold storage.

In another building a dozen women were cutting and drying vegetables, string beans and potatoes, and storing them in bags for the winter. But such work done by hand was a drop in the bucket. Hand labor couldn't even supply an industrial center like Mannheim.

Take Trip on Rhine.

At noon there was an elaborate luncheon in a hotel given by the Merchants' association and after that a special treat. A Rhine steamboat had been chartered. It was decorated from bow to stern with flags and bunting.

The entire populace of Mannheim came to the river front to view it. This was the first evidence of luxury and festivity the city had had since the war. The crowd cheered. It didn't know what it was cheering for, but it was good to yell for something. As we departed ours was the only boat on the Rhine. Women and children ran along the banks and waved at us. At every little village the entire town turned out. To have something happen was a godsend. For two years, nothing had occurred but death notices.

During the afternoon our boat passed two others. The wharves along the river front were empty and still. This was the tragedy of Germany, its internal silence and decay.

Few Goods for Export.

Activity except to create necessities had stopped. There was no piling up of goods for America. Smoke came from only one factory in four. Supplies and workers seemed to be given out. There was little leather. Children in Berlin were going barefoot. Blankets to go under horse saddles were scarce. Linen and cotton for fuses was running low. All the linen in Belgium had been appropriated. Rubber was scarce.

In a dark corner of a munition factory I saw rubber tubes from hospital douche bags piled high to be turned into munitions. Every family has given all the brass or copper it had.

In the gardens sunflowers were cherished instead of roses, for they gave a few drops of oil. In barren fields an old woman and a scarecrow kept guard; or a woman with a baby in a carriage and two toddlers at her skirt tried to toss hay. The soldiers at the front pushed forward, but at home death seemed to lurk.

SHE HAS BOYS REARRESTED.

Mrs. Anna Leitch Gets New Warrants for Young Motorists.

Walter Clark, 19 years old, of [illegible] Harvard avenue, son of C. S. Clark, chief architect for Armour & Co., and Howard Tucker, 18 years old, of 21 West Garfield boulevard, were rearrested yesterday on warrants obtained by Mrs. Anna Leitch of 4308 Calumet avenue, who charges they attempted to mistreat her, then kicked and beat her, fracturing her nose, at West Ninety-fifth street and South Western avenue, late the night of Nov. 24. She said she was riding with Tucker and Clark in the latter's automobile and that when she resisted them they pulled her out of the car and inflicted the injury.

LAST week's real estate market gave evidence of the dullness which always accompanies the approach of the holiday season. There was in the aggregate a fair movement of property, but it mostly was of the cheaper sort, the proportion of really important transactions being smaller than for some time past.

There are reports of big deals in course of negotiation, both in the downtown district as well as outside, but they seem slow in materializing, which lends color to the reports of brokers that much trouble is being experienced in closing deals. The real wintry weather which the week brought is also credited with slowing up the market somewhat, particularly in the more outlying districts. It also operated to check building operations to a considerable extent, although a fair showing was made in the way of permits issued by the city building department.

New Apartment Building.

Unlike the markets for several weeks past, that of last week was without important features with the exception of the announcement of plans for the construction of another high grade twelve story fireproof apartment building in Walton place, just east of Lincoln parkway, and the revival of the plans of the Santa Fé road first announced nearly two years ago for a big fruit and produce market in the Archer avenue district.

There were, in addition, a few good sized apartment house deals, the sale of the John Cudahy home at Michigan avenue and Thirty-third street to a Kansas fraternal insurance corporation, and two rather interesting acre transactions in south side property.

Boom in Building.

An event of considerable interest was the publication of the building figures for the eleven months of the year, which went to confirm all that has been said regarding the vast extent of the building operations of the year. In 1911, when there was both a real estate as well as building boom, and which was given a great impetus by a flood of permits taken out by downtown property owners in order to take advantage of the provisions of the former building ordinances which permitted a building height of 260 feet instead of the 200 feet which now prevails, the total cost of the permits issued amounted to a little over $105,000,000, setting a new record for the city in this respect. Of this amount over $22,000,000 was for buildings in the downtown district taken out during the month of August alone.

Total of $106,982,650.

During the present year there has been no building to speak of in the downtown district, and yet the permits taken out for the eleven months of the year exceed in cost those taken out for the entire year of 1911, the figures being $106,982,650. The number was 9,721, a slight decrease from the number taken out for the eleven months of 1911, which amounted to 10,351, but there was an increase in the feet frontage of the buildings, which amounted to 308,648, as compared with 280,513 for 1911.

As compared with 1915 there has been an increase of 23.35 per cent, when the figures amounted to $86,650,080. November shows a slight falling in cost as compared with November, 1915, and a considerable decrease in the number of permits issued, the figures being 760 in number with a total cost of $10,056,100, as compared with 1,166 and a total cost of $10,861,600 for November, 1915. This would seem to point to a wane in the building boom, a condition which many brokers and owners will hail with considerable satisfaction.

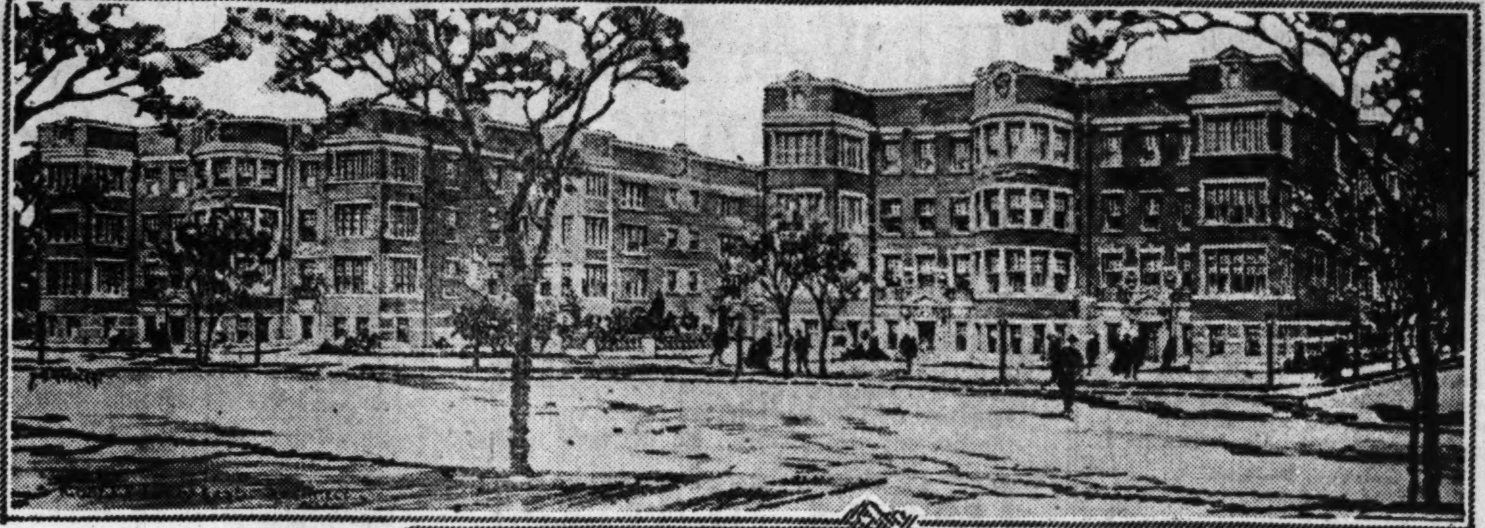
Gain in Real Estate.

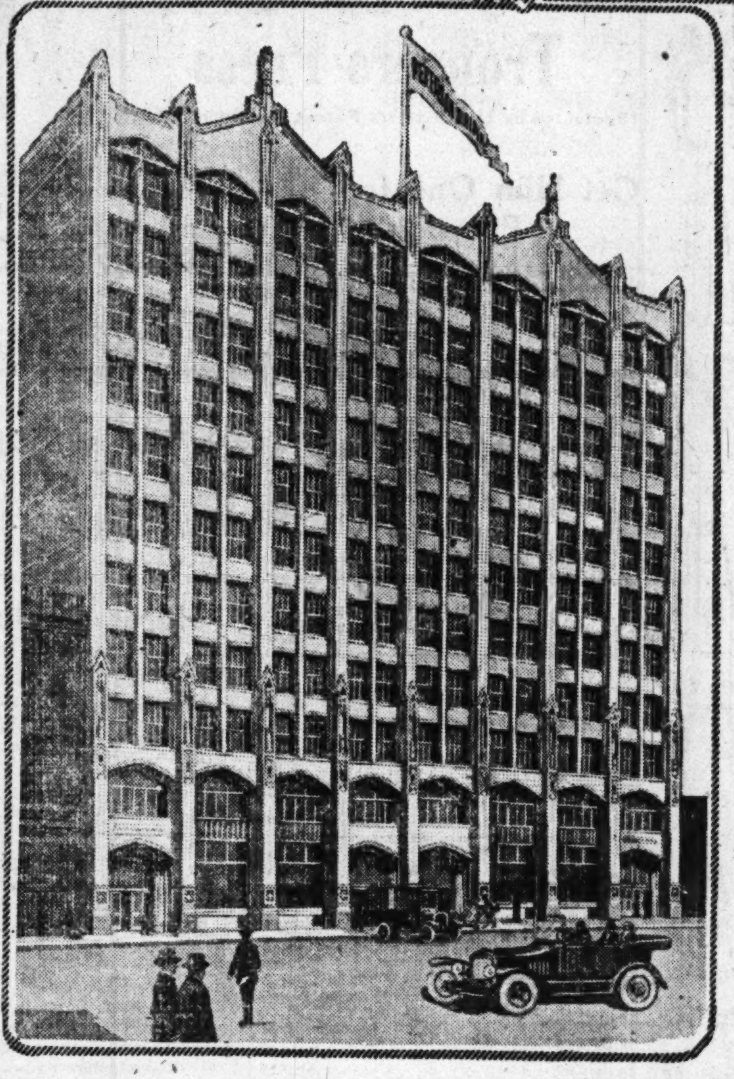
While the November transfer record, as compiled by Recorder Joseph F. Haas, is not a particularly good one, there being a considerable falling off in the number of transfers filed for record as compared with November of last year, the figures for the eleven months of the year show marked gain both in the number as well as total consideration as compared with the corresponding period a year ago. Thus, for November of the present year there were 4,435 deeds recorded with a total consideration of $9,619,696, against 4,740 and total consideration of $7,881,244 for November, 1915.

For the eleven months of the year there were 51,392 deeds recorded with total consideration of $111,950,691, as compared with 48,450 and total considerations of $94,772,401 for the corresponding period of 1915. This is a gain of 2,942 in number and $17,178,200 in the total considerations.

NEW NORTH SIDE APARTMENT

"The Sterling," Just Completed; the Peterson Building, to Be Occupied by Printing Concerns.





An attractive north side apartment building, just completed, is the Sterling, which occupies the block in Sheridan road between Crescent and Airdrie places, with a frontage of 250 feet on the road and a depth of 150 on both the last named streets. It contains seventy-eight apartments of two, three, and four rooms, with sun parlors, etc., sixty-six of the apartments having wall beds and buffet kitchens. The building is owned and was erected by Richard Curran, the builder, and is said to have cost between $240,000 and $250,000, excluding the land. In connection with its construction Peabody, Houghteling & Co. have underwritten a bond issue of $180,000. John J. Fischer, who has charge of the building, reports 50 per cent of it rented.

The lower building is the Peterson building, now in course of construction at 521-37 Plymouth place, just south of Van Buren street. It will occupy a lot 160x101 feet to an alley, and will be eleven stories and basement high. The exterior finish will be white enameled terra cotta.

The building, which will be one of the largest printing and publishing establishments in the west, is being erected by the McCormick estate for C. S. Peterson on a thirty year lease. It was designed by S. N. Crowen, with Richard E. Schmidt, Garden & Martin, associate architects. The lower six floors will be occupied by the Regan printing house and Peterson Lintoyping company, the seventh floor by the Acme Electrotyping company, the eighth, ninth, and tenth floors being used for publishers' offices, and the eleventh by the Columbia Engraving company. The first section, 72x100 feet, is now under construction. Mr. Peterson will construct a building on the remainder of the ground, which he holds under a ninety-nine year lease.

LITTLE MOVEMENT NOTED IN OUTSIDE BUSINESS DEALS

Outside business property made a poor showing, there having been nothing of any real importance in the few transactions reported or made matters of record.

Record was also made of the sale by Christina Krug to Ella Bomke of the property on Wentworth avenue, 133 feet south of Twenty-eighth place, lot 100x125 feet, east front, with store and flat improvements, the consideration being nominal, subject to an incumbrance of $20,000.

Sigmund M. Rosenthal has sold to John F. Schiffman the old Wicker Park postoffice property, located at 1633-35 Milwaukee avenue, improved with a one story and basement brick building, on a lot 50x105 feet, for a reported consideration of $20,000, clear. W. R. Nealeigh was the broker.

Record was made of the transfer by the Stockyards Warehouse company to the Anglo-American Provision company of the property at the southwest corner of the south branch of the river and Thirty-ninth street, a nominal consideration being given.

Record has been made of the transfer by M. H. Prescott et al. to Edwin B. Jennings of the property at the northeast corner of Fullerton avenue and Surrey court, 102½x150 feet, with improvements, for an expressed consideration of $31,200.

The property at the northeast corner of Twelfth street and Spaulding avenue, lot 82x125 feet, with brick business improvements, has been conveyed by Philip Epstein to Maurice C. Lipman for an expressed consideration of $27,000.

Another noteworthy transaction on Twelfth street also made a matter of record was the sale by H. C. Diamond to Alexander Eisenstein et al. of the property 100 feet west of Central Park avenue, lot 50x108 feet, south front, with store and flat improvements, the consideration being nominal, subject to an incumbrance of $20,300.

REARRANGE GREEN LEASE.

As the result of the failure of Thomas C. Dennehy to acquire from Frederick R. Barnheisel the leasehold interest and the ten story building at 618-20 South Michigan avenue and the making of a loan of $400,000 on the leasehold interest by S. W. Straus & Co., there has been a formal rearrangement of the old lease in which the Hetty H. R. Green estate was the original lessor. Mr. Dennehy and his wife, Virginie, are the lessors in the new lease, which in its rental terms is identical with the old lease. For the five years beginning April 1, 1917, the annual rental is $20,000; for the succeeding thirty-nine years it is $28,000, and for the remaining fifty years of the term it is $35,000. Isadore S. Blumenthal represented Mr. Dennehy in a legal way; Mr. Barnheisel by Emil Wetten, while Straus & Co. were represented by Nicholas R. Jones and H. Sonnenschein.

F. H. JUNE ENTERS FIRM.

Willoughby & Co. announce that Frank H. June, who has been an active figure in west side real estate operations for a number of years, has become associated with that firm in its sales department. Mr. June will specialize in west side and central business property.

JOHN CUDAHY RESIDENCE FIGURES IN TRANSACTION

The John Cudahy residence at the northwest corner of Michigan avenue and Thirty-third street, one of the residential Michigan avenue landmarks, figured in a transaction filed for record during the week. The house, a large three story brown stone structure, containing about twenty-eight rooms and occupying a lot with a frontage of 125 feet on the avenue and 175 feet on Thirty-third, with garage in the rear, has been sold by Mrs. Margaret F. Cudahy to the Fraternal Aid union, stated to be a corporation of Kansas, its principal place of business being the city of Lawrence, Kas.

The property was sold for an expressed consideration of $85,000, the grantee paying $42,500 cash and giving a purchase money mortgage for the balance of the consideration, $42,500. It is understood that the grantee, which is an insurance concern and which has been consolidated with the North American Union, will occupy the premises as its Chicago headquarters.

BUNGALOW FEATURE ON ROOF

Another big fireproof apartment building is announced for the exclusive near north side residential district.

It will be erected by Mrs. H. S. Warren and Beach T. Van Dousen on 100x109 feet on Walton place just east of Lincoln parkway, which they have just purchased from Albert Silverman and E. B. Woolf for a reported consideration of $50,000 cash. The sale was negotiated by George W. Stewart, who will have charge of the construction and management of the proposed building.

The building, the plans for which will be prepared by H. B. Wilson & Co., will be a twelve story structure with a bungalow feature on the roof, and it is expected to cost in the neighborhood of $400,000.

The apartments will contain nine rooms each, with four baths, with the most up to date appointments, and are expected, it is stated, to rent at from $6,000 to $7,500 a year. Work will be begun as soon as the plans are completed.

SANTA FE MARKET HOUSE PLANS CARRIED FORWARD

The plans of the Santa Fé railroad for the establishment of a new big fruit and produce market in the Archer avenue district, first announced nearly two years ago, have assumed a more definite shape, as the result of the probable favorable action of the subcommittee on local industries of the city council on an ordinance looking to the vacation of certain streets in the district between Eighteenth and Twenty-second streets and from Clark street or Wentworth avenue to Stewart avenue.

If the committee and council act favorably on the recommendation the Sante Fé road will at once let the contracts for the erection of an auction fruit house, 800x80 feet ground dimensions and several stories high, also a banana and office building, 600 or 700x70 feet, a power house and garage.

The first thing done will be a new arrangement of the tracts to meet the needs of the proposed plan, which in its entirety will, it is said, represent an investment of from $15,000,000 to $20,000,000.

The plans provide for the widening of Blackhawk street to 120 feet, with a viaduct over to connect with the Eighteenth street viaduct. It also is said that all the other roads will be given the privilege of using the terminal on the same basis as the Sante Fé.

CHICAGO HAS AWAKENING.

Real estate men find much encouragement in the "get together" spirit shown recently in connection with some of the great public works which have been hanging fire for a long time. This is notably true in the progress made in the long deadlock between the Illinois Central road and the city council and south park board regarding the great projects along the lake, involving also electrification for the road's suburban service, the greatly improved situation regarding the Michigan boulevard connecting link, and the proposed extension of Ogden avenue and other highly important west side projects, the opening of North Ashland avenue for through traffic by means of a viaduct and bridge across the north branch, and the proposed widening and extension of Robey street and Western avenue. No other interest is as deeply concerned as real estate and the materialization of these great projects will have a most farreaching effect on land values over a wide range of territory.

OLD LUNA PARK TO BE OPENED UP

Oswald Heirs Sell Six Acre Tract to James H. Milligan.

There were a few transactions of interest in acres and smaller vacant made matters of record during the week, although nothing of marked importance.

A south side acre transaction of considerable importance because of the interesting history of the property covers the six and one-half acres at the southwest corner of Fifty-second street and Halsted streets, originally known as Sharpshooters' park, then as Luna park, it later becoming a municipal market. The property, which fronts 331 feet on Halsted street and 785 feet on Fifty-second street, was originally purchased in May, 1873, by Joseph Oswald and became known as Sharpshooters' park.

The increase of population in the district, however, was so rapid the club was forced to move, and the property then became known as Oswald's picnic grove. In turn it was leased to the Luna Park company and then a municipal market. Eventually the property was vacated and now has been transferred by the Oswald heirs to James H. Milligan, who will open it as a high class subdivision. Extensive building plans are said to be under consideration. Alex Friend & Co. were the brokers in the transaction.

Forty Acre Tract Sold.

Another interesting acre transaction in the outlying south part of the city was the sale by Charles C. Heisen, Thomas W. Riley taking title, to a tract of forty acres at the southeast corner of South State and Eighty-seventh streets for a reported consideration of $60,000. The property was purchased for subdivision purposes and will be placed on the market in the spring. A car line is now being constructed on State street to Ninety-fifth street and connection will be made along this street to Michigan avenue.

A vacant noteworthy deal in Archer avenue vacant property was the sale by Warren Gorrell to Michael Rozenski, John J. Lipski, and Joseph Zacker of the property at the southwest corner of Archer and Sacramento avenues, 856x454x620 feet, for an expressed consideration of $35,000, subject to an incumbrance of $22,000.

Paisley Property Transferred.

The vacant property at the northwest corner of Winthrop and Balmoral avenues, lot 50x150 feet, has been conveyed by Miss Mary G. Paisley and Mrs. Lulu P. Keith and husband, Clifton L., to Elzadia P. Baldwin and husband, a nominal consideration being given.

The vacant 52.6x125 feet at the northwest corner of Broadway and Rosedale avenue has been conveyed by Helena Dehmlow to Joseph B. Zeigler. A nominal consideration, subject to an incumbrance of $5,000, is given in the deed, but it is reported the price was in the neighborhood of $300 a front foot.

The Aetna Material and Coal company has conveyed to the West Englewood State bank the property on Fifty-ninth street between Hoyne and Seeley avenues, 242x290 feet, consideration nominal, subject to $14,500 incumbrance.

Record was made of the sale by J. J. Patchen to Joseph Uhrig of the property in Woodlawn avenue, ninety feet north of Sixty-third street, 100x150 feet, for an expressed consideration of $14,811.

Edward T. Bell has purchased of L. H. Stafford the property in Maryland avenue, 305 feet south of Seventy-ninth street, 225x125 feet, east front, a consideration of $10 being given in the transfer.

MOST ACTIVITY IN APARTMENTS ON SOUTH SIDE

Flat Building Property Just About Holds Its Own During the Week.

Apartment house property more nearly held its own in the week's business than any other class of property. The south side rather monopolized business in this field, three or four transactions in that part of the city constituting the most important features of the market. In the most important of these two nonresidents figured as grantor and grantee. The property was the high grade eighteen apartment building of six rooms at 4410-20 Grand boulevard, which was sold by A. F. Humphrey of Pittsburgh to Eugene P. Natrebe of Ouray county, Colo., for an expressed consideration of $200,000, subject to an incumbrance of $79,000. The building, which has a gross annual rental of about $18,000, occupies a lot with an east frontage of 148 feet and a depth of 156 feet and was erected about three years ago. The property was reported to have been held at about $150,000.

Clinton Court Deal.

Another important deal covered the Clinton Court apartment building of thirty-six apartments of two, four, and five rooms, with an annual rental of about $15,000, on Kenwood avenue, thirty-eight feet north of Sixty-seventh street, occupying a lot 100x165 feet, east front. The property was sold by C. C. Hile to Albert E. Lake for an expressed consideration of $100,000, subject to an incumbrance of $72,000. In part payment Mr. Lake conveyed his residence at 6104 Woodlawn avenue.

Katherine Goodman of Los Angeles, Cal., bought from James Slauson the twenty-one apartment building, lot 90x125 feet, northwest corner Forty-fourth street and Forrestville avenue, with gross annual rental of over $8,600, consideration withheld, the purchaser giving a purchase money mortgage of $28,000 for five years at 6 per cent from the Bond and Mortgage Company of Illinois. Ralph C. Hefter of Mark Levy & Bro. negotiated the loan.

Consideration of $30,000.

The fifteen apartment building at the southeast corner of Franklin boulevard and Albany avenue, lot 50x140 feet, has been sold by Joseph J. Miller to Eva Davis for a reported consideration of $50,000, subject to an incumbrance of $33,000. In part payment the purchaser conveyed fifty feet of vacant at 544-46 East Thirty-fifth street and forty-eight lots in Gary, Ind. Krause, Beak & Co. were the brokers.

The thirty apartment building in Berteau avenue, sixty feet east of Leavitt street, lot 105x125 feet, south front, and with an annual gross rental of a little in excess of $9,200, has been conveyed by Laura Simmons to Nicholas Walter, the consideration being nominal, subject to an incumbrance of $49,500, but the actual figure is said to have been $85,000.

Another north side apartment house deal made a matter of record was the sale by G. H. J. Haas to John A. Garden of the property at the southwest corner of Wrightwood and Seminary avenues, lot 57x132 feet, the consideration being nominal, subject to an incumbrance of $30,500.

Waubun Building Changes Hands.

Another transaction covers the Waubun apartment building at the northwest corner of Thirty-ninth street and Ellis avenue, one of the old world's fair structures. The building, which is a seven story structure, occupies a lot 96x127 feet, and contains about fifty apartments and seven stores. It was transferred by E. J. Case to Charles A. Ford of Kokomo, Ind., the consideration being nominal, subject to an incumbrance of $65,000.

Another south side transaction in apartment house property was the sale by H. R. Crawley to Guy G. Dowdall of the property at the southeast corner of Lexington avenue and Sixty-fifth street. The building is a three story structure, on a lot 99x126 feet, and sold for a stated consideration of $43,000.

Half Interest Conveyed.

An undivided half interest in the new "Reyshore" apartments at 615-31 Addison street, has been conveyed by Charlotte D. and Peter F. Reynolds, the consideration being nominal, subject to an incumbrance of $100,000. It is stated the property was given a value of $200,000 in the transaction. The purchaser is stated to have conveyed his interest in the Belclaire, a fifteen flat building at 333-337 Belden avenue.

In October Mr. Ibold purchased from the same grantors a half interest in the southwest corner of Addison street and Pine Grove avenue. This covers the two frontages of 450 feet on Addison street from Pine Grove to Broadway, the west 100 feet, owned by Mr. Reynolds, is being improved with a building containing six stores and twenty flats. W. P. Heyn represented all parties.

The property at the southeast corner of Maple Square and Waveland avenues, lot 50x123 feet, with flat improvements, has been sold by Herman Emerman to Benjamin F. J. Odell, the consideration being nominal, subject to an incumbrance of $30,000.

WELL established, prosperous manufacturer, located in small middle west city, compelled to greatly enlarge plant, being handicapped at present location by freight rate discriminations, high cost of power fuel and scarcity of skilled labor, is seeking new location where these conditions do not exist.

Would consider propositions in cities between St. Paul, St. Louis, Chicago and Omaha where larger portion of necessary increase in capital would be provided locally.

Now has rapidly increasing domestic trade, sold principally through well-known jobbers in every city. Foreign trade of considerable volume and growing fast. Now employs 100 skilled machinists. Capital invested, $160,000. Output and capital should be trebled.

ADDRESS M F 162, TRIBUNE

Leases and Loans.

OUTSIDE of the announcement that Harold McCormick and associates have practically closed with the Auditorium association for another five years' lease of the Auditorium theater there was nothing of noteworthy interest in the way of leases of business space, either in the downtown or outlying districts, reported during the week. The general renting situation in the downtown district as regards store, office, and loft space is not good, but there is encouragement in the fact it steadily is improving.

Owing to the necessity of enlarging the space occupied by the classified department of THE TRIBUNE, the Benjamin F. Ames Hat company will move from the store which it has occupied on the Madison street front of the Tribune building to the store at 17 West Jackson boulevard, which it has leased from Mrs. Anna L. Sears for a term of years, commencing April 1 next, at a total rental in excess of $30,000.

The Ames company will occupy the premises leased after new fixtures and other improvements have been made. The lease was negotiated by Ben K. Babbitt, of John R. Magill & Co., agents of the Sears property, and he has also leased store space in the same building to the Skee Ball Company of Illinois for a term commencing Dec. 1, 1916. He also has closed leases of second and third floor space to the United Cigar Stores company and the R. W. Clark Manufacturing company.

H. G. Howard & Co. have rented from Nettie F. McCormick the main floor banking space of about 15,000 square feet in the Reaper block, northeast corner of Clark and Washington streets, for a term rent of $18,000. The firm has been occupying space on the second floor of the Reaper block for over twenty years, but have found the space inadequate to their business needs.

But for the fact it is not a recent transaction, much interest would attach to the lease, made a matter of record, by Robert M. Fair to the Charles Emmerich company, manufacturers of feather articles, etc., of the five story and basement manufacturing building on 144x100 feet of ground at the southwest corner of Huron and Kingsbury streets. The lease, which runs from Aug. 1, 1914, to Dec. 31, 1939, provides for a term rent of $304,237, payable at the rate of $997.50 a month.

A small lease, also made a matter of record, covers the second floor and window space of the building at 1306 Milwaukee avenue, which was leased by the Star Cloak, Suit and Millinery company to Sam Katz for a term from Jan. 1, 1916, to Sept. 30, 1921, at a term rent of $10,200.

Paul C. Loeber & Co. have leased for the Watson estate, represented by Frank M. Elliott, to the Kondt company the four story and basement building at the northwest corner of Kinzie street and North La Salle street for a term rent of $20,000. The building will be remodeled and used for the manufacture of food products.

An interesting loan was reported in which the Berkshire Life Insurance company of Pittsfield, Mass., made a loan of $70,000 for five years at 5½ per cent on the property at the southwest corner of Fifty-third street and Woodlawn avenue, improved with a three story building containing seven stores, twenty apartments, and three offices, on a lot 164x85 feet. Henry E. Coonley represented the insurance company and H. G. Howard & Co. the borrower, Lloyd H. Taylor. The loan was made to refund the original bond issue, bearing 6 per cent, and which does not mature for four years.

The Independent Drug company has leased through Benjamin Rosenberg the store in the theater store and office building at the northeast corner of Garfield and Michigan boulevards for a term rent of $20,000. It will give the company eight stores.

ELECTION ON WEDNESDAY.

The annual election and meeting of the Chicago real estate board will be held on Wednesday, the polls being open from 10 a. m. to 2 p. m. As there is no opposition ticket in the field, the election of the regular ticket headed by Valentine H. Surghnor is asured. The other leading nominations are: President, Walter S. Ross; secretary, Hyde W. Perce; treasurer, Nelson N. Lampert.

We will make loans upon well located store or apartment buildings at

AUDITORIUM PUT UNDER A NEW 5 YEAR LEASE

Harold McCormick and Associates Renew Contract at Higher Rate.

An event of much importance, as well as wide general interest, was the announcement late in the week that negotiations are practically completed by which Harold McCormick and associates have renewed their lease of the Auditorium theater for a term of five years following the expiration of the present lease. The annual rental under the new lease is said to be $75,000, a material increase over the present rental.

The transaction had a peculiar interest, for the reason that upon the acceptance by Mr. McCormick and associates of a large increase in the rental hung the decision of the owners of the building, the members of the Auditorium association, whether to tear down the entire structure—theater, hotel, office building, and tower—and rebuild with a more modern structure. That the immense waste of space in both hotel and theater has militated against the operation of the structure at a profit is generally known.

The question of income from the big building has of late been made additionally a vexation through the revaluation of a strip of land fifty-three feet front on Michigan avenue belonging to the Studebaker property, now owned by the Chapins. Not only the north end of the hotel but part of the theater itself is on this strip. It was revalued last summer at so great an increase as to constitute, in the additional rent payable to the Chapins, a prohibition against the further leasing of the theater save at an increase of at least $10,000 a year.

REALTY BANQUET A SUCCESS

The great success which attended the ninth annual banquet of the Cook county real estate board in the goldroom of the Congress hotel Tuesday night last fully confirmed the expectations of those who expected it to set a new high standard for these functions. From every standpoint, the large attendance about 600, the unusually interesting character of the several addresses, the excellence of the dinner served, together with the smoothness with which the entire program was carried out, reflects the greatest credit on former President Robert E. L. Brooks and the committee which had the affair in charge.

This committee was Mary Levy, chairman; Mr. Brooks, Richard W. Wolfe, James Hedenberg, C. S. Adelman, A. C. Lueder, Clarence Goodman, C. T. A. Anderson, Albert Wahl, H. T. Davis, C. F. Durland, F. L. Dean, J. M. Pace, Charles Ringer, Peter Foote, and A. S. Ruud.

At the annual election of the Cook county real estate board held on Tuesday the following ticket was elected for the ensuing year: President, Paul Kraemer; vice president, Mary Levy; secretary, John P. Carney; treasurer, Emil J. Dirks; direcotrs, Robert E. L. Brooks, J. Madison Pace, and A. S. Ruud.

SITE FOR BRASS WORKS.

The Star Brass Works have purchased the factory site containing 16,000 square feet on Carroll avenue between Kedzie and Albany avenues and have begun the erection of a building for their exclusive occupancy. It is a Chicago concern and specializes in the manufacture of spraying machines. Alex Friend & Co. were the brokers.

GREAT PACKING INDUSTRY SOON IN ALASKA WILDS

Reindeer Increase Extremely Rapid and Immense Business Will Develop.

BY FRANK G. CARPENTER.

[Copyright: 1916: By Frank G. Carpenter.]

NOME, Alaska.—The day will soon come when reindeer meat will be as common as beef and mutton in our American markets. The meat will come from Alaska. It will form the basis of a large packing industry, and will be shipped in cold storage steamers and trains to every town in the United States.

There are now from 75,000 to 100,000 reindeer in this territory. They are being handled under government regulation and are doubling in number every two or three years. At the present rate of increase there will be 400,000 within six years from this writing, and 800,000 in 1925.

By 1931 the number will have increased to more than 3,000,000, and five years later it will be almost 13,000,000. That will be only twenty years from now, and after that the increase will be so great than reindeer meat will probably be as cheap as any other in the American markets.

The reindeer packing industry is at its beginning. The first shipments were made about three years ago, when twenty-five reindeer carcasses were shipped to Seattle. The meat was placed on sale and sold at from 20 to 25 cents per pound. More meat was shipped the following year, and just now they are beginning to slaughter the animals for this season's shipments.

I saw the work going on in a slaughter house back of Nome. The reindeer had been brought in from the surrounding country and the men were beginning the killing. There are in the pens at this time more than 1,000 deer ready for the butchers, and perhaps 1,500 carcasses will be shipped south this year.

The men who handle the deer and do the killing are Eskimos. They are short, stocky, yellow faced and slant-eyed and lusty.

Discovered Nome Field.

The deer I saw slaughtered belonged to a stock company which had been organized at Nome to develop the industry. The company is a close corporation with an authorized capital of $750,000.

None of the stock is for sale, and the principal owners are men of large means. One, for instance, is Jafet Lindeberg, one of the "three lucky Swedes" who discovered the gold fields of Nome, and now one of the chief owners and managers of the Pioneer Mining company, which has vast gold properties here.

Mr. Lindeberg was employed by the United States government to bring a herd of reindeer from Norway to Alaska along about 1898; at the time of the great famine in Dawson. The idea then was to land the reindeer on the Alaska coast and drive them over the mountains to the Klondike to feed the American miners.

The deer were landed, but the undertaking was not a success, as far as giving the miners a large supply of food was concerned.

Millions in Reindeer.

After that Mr. Lindeberg came northward to the Seward peninsula, and made his great gold strike here. He is greatly interested in the reindeer industry and tells me that he expects to make more from selling venison than he has ever made from mining gold.

Another of the stockholders of this company is D. J. Lomen, who came here from St. Paul, and who is now engaged in the practice of law at Nome.

During my stay I have had interviews regarding the reindeer industry with Mr. Lindeberg and Mr. Lomen. They are enthusiastic as to the prospects. Mr. Lindeberg says the value of the reindeer now in Alaska is $2,000,000 or $3,000,000, and that notwithstanding it cost the government only about $300,000 to establish the industry.

He says the company has no desire to complicate the arrangements which Uncle Sam has to supply the natives with deer. According to the present laws, the Eskimos and Indians cannot sell their deer, and private parties can only acquire reindeer from the Laplanders who brought the deer over, and the missions who have some deer of their own independent of those that belong to the Eskimos.

Said Mr. Lindeberg: "The government has from the beginning prohibited the natives from selling their breeding animals. We heartily approve of this. We shall not kill the females of our own herds, and we would like to keep the local Alaskan markets for hte natives only. Our plan is to develop a demand for the meat in the United States, and to handle any surplus that the natives may have in that way. Such stock as we have has been bought from the Laplanders and the Swedish mission. We have altogether about 3,000 deer, and our present increase per annum is about 40 per cent."

"Do you think a market for the meat can be created in the United States?"

"Yes. There is already such a market in Europe. Norway and Sweden, as well as Finland and Russia, have been shipping large quantities of reindeer meat for years. They send it to the chief European centers, and even to the United States.

When I was at Panama a year or so ago I saw reindeer meat from Norway among the government supplies. It was brought for the men working upon the canal. The northern part of the Russian empire eats more reindeer meat than either beef or mutton.

"As you know, we are importing fresh meat from Australia and New Zealand to San Francisco, and New York is getting some of its beef from Argentina. As it is now it costs us a cent and a half a pound in freight to send our venison to San Francisco, and this rate will probably be cut in the future.

I expect the deer meat to compete with the present domestic and foreign meat supplies, and that we shall be able to put it at a price that will make it possible to do so. The meat is delicious, and there will be a demand for it among the meat eaters who like to have a change of diet now and then."

In my talk with Mr. Lomen I asked as to the by-products of the industry. He says the day will come when the packing houses here will have as many by-products as those of Chicago. At present they are able to sell the skins and horns only, in addition to the meat, but in the future the blood will be used for tankage, the hoofs for the making of glue, and certain of the bones for other purposes.

Possibilities Are Great.

Today the horns are sold by the pound to men in Nome, who cut them up and ship them away to be used as knife handles. The hides are in demand for buckskin gloves and for shoe uppers. Some of the skins are tanned and sold as furs. The reindeer fur is dyed, and as such it is more beautiful than the pony skin coats now worn. The fur is finer and the skins are lighter.

"Tell me something of the reindeer possibilities of Alaska."

"They are great," said Mr. Lomen. "The first deer were only sixteen, introduced twenty-five years ago. They were brought across Bering strait from Siberia, and the first reindeer colony was established at Unalaska in the Aleutian islands.

"That experiment was not a success and it was some years before a real start was made by the importation of Siberian animals. The government began to import in 1893, and deer were brought in off and on until 1902, when the Russian government prohibited further exportation. At that time, fourteen years ago, nine herds had been established, and the government owned about 2,200 reindeer, worth $56,000.

LITTLE HOPE FOR PEACE, IS VIEW OF S. ZEISLER.

Speaker Before Irish Fellowship Club Talks of Allies' Aim to Crush Rivals.

"The outlook for immediate peace is not bright. The only hope lies in a second sober judgment asserting itself among the allies," said Attorney Sigmund Zeisler, master in chancery of the Circuit court, in an address before the Irish Fellowship club yesterday.

"If there were a reasonable chance that the allies could gain their object—to crush a commercial rival who was fast outstripping them in the markets of the world—by prolonging the war, I could understand their disinclination to make peace," he said.

"Not one of their objects has come within a thousand miles of being accomplished. Hence the allies feel that to lay down their arms is to make the humiliating confession of a complete failure.

"The government leaders and the newspapers in the allied countries are running true to form; with few exceptions they are guided by the jingo spirit in their appeal to national pride and prejudice."

ROBBERS LOCK UP FOUR MEN; GET PAY ROLL

Two Highwaymen Escape with $360 at Office of H. G. Wolff & Co.

Two men, flourishing revolvers, rushed into the offices of H. G. Wolff & Co. at 3337 North Halsted street, plumbers, shortly after noon yesterday, drove four employés into the basement, and escaped with the payroll of $360.

Emil Rothschild, manager of the concern, who was among those locked in the basement, had just withdrawn the money from the Fort Dearborn National bank. The money was in envelopes in a small satchel.

Forced Men Into Basement.

Mr. Rothschild had just entered the offices and had placed the satchel on his desk when the men, between 25 and 30 years old, rushed in. One held a nickel plated revolver and the other flourished one of the blue steel type. They covered Mr. Rothschild, John Monroe, Ray Nelson, and Robert Thompson with the weapons and forced them into the basement.

Locking the door of the basement, the robbers hurried upstairs, seized the satchel, and fled into the street.

Prisoners Fifteen Minutes.

For fifteen minutes Mr. Rothschild and the others were prisoners in the basement, H. Holmes, 3828 North Claremont avenue, another employé, releasing them. He was not in the office when the holdup occurred.

Mr. Rothschild telephoned to the Town Hall police station and detectives searched the neighborhood in vain.

Whether the men had an automobile in the alley the police were unable to ascertain. They are believed to have followed Mr. Rothschild from the bank.

MILWAUKEE REPORT SHOWS GREAT LOSSES BY ILLNESS.

Ten Per Cent of People Were Ailing on Oct. 28—Medical Attention Fails for Many.

Milwaukee, Wis., Dec. 16.—That 10 per cent of the people in Milwaukee were ill on Oct. 28, that sickness results in a wage loss of $3,000,000 annually to the city, that less than one-half of the persons sick were under a doctor's care, that less than one-fourth of the sick had prompt medical attention, that the poor are seriously sick three times as frequently as the well to do are some of the outstanding conclusions drawn from the health investigation conducted recently by social workers of the City club.

More complete and prompt medical care and some means of protecting workers against wage loss through sickness are urgently needed in the opinion of the investigating committee.

KNOW ALL MEN BY THESE PRESENTS that at the regular annual meeting of the stockholders of American Merchants Syndicate, a Corporation, held at its office in Omaha, Douglas County, Nebraska, on the 4th day of December, 1916, as authorized by Article XI of its original Articles of Incorporation, as amended, Article IV, as amended, of the original Articles of Incorporation by a majority of the stockholders at said meeting present in person or represented by a proxy, was amended to read as follows:

Article IV. "The authorized capital stock of said corporation shall be Ten Million ($10,000,000.00) Dollars, divided as follows: One Hundred Thousand ($100,000.00) Dollars Common Stock; Nine Million Nine Hundred Thousand ($9,900,000.00) Dollars Preferred Stock. The Common stock shall be divided into Ten Thousand (10,000) shares of the par value of Ten ($10.00) Dollars each. The Preferred stock shall be divided into Nine Hundred and Ninety Thousand (990,000) shares of the par value of Ten ($10.00) Dollars each, and shall be entitled to a cumulative annual dividend preference of Six (6%) per cent, and in addition thereto to participate equally with the Common stock in all dividends in excess of Six (6%) per cent. Preferred stock shall have no voting power. All shares of stock shall be fully paid up when issued, and non-assessable, and the Board of Directors are hereby authorized to sell and or issue preferred stock upon such terms and conditions as they determine best for the interests of this corporation."

IN WITNESS WHEREOF we have hereunto set our hands and seal this Fourth day of December, 1916.

Near Tampa, Florida's Greatest City!

Best location in all Florida—right in the very vicinity of beautiful Tampa, the coming Los Angeles of the South. Your Dixie Estate will be near fine boulevards, railroad stations, schools, churches, etc. And the soil! You could not buy better land for fruit growing at any price. The trees we plant on your Dixie Estate are the very finest obtainable—budded, pedigreed stock, grown by experts. We own and operate extensive nurseries. Therefore, we give you a big advantage in our development of Dixie Estates. Climate is ideal for fruit growing and wonderful to live in. Our free booklet shows actual photographs of all Dixie Estate features.

Oranges, Grapefruit and Avocadoes

Three fruits famous as money-makers planted on your Dixie Estate., The avocado (commonly called alligator pear) is known as the aristocrat of fruits. The supply is so limited that in the northern cities only the rich can afford to pay the prices it sells for. In December, 1915, avocadoes sold in Chicago at the almost unbelievable price of $3 and $4 each.

A Splendid Income for You!

Past and present prices for these three fruits show an earning power of from $1,000 to $1,500 a year for one-acre Dixie Estates and proportionately upwards, of that amount for larger size tracts. Even one-half or one-third of these returns, to be very conservative, would show a profit of nearly 100 per cent on your investment annually.

66 reasons

—40 wells, producing 12,500 barrels of oil per month, and 25 wells producing 36,000,000 feet of gas daily. These are sixty-six of the reasons why Sequoyah is earning more than 50%—right now. 12% is the present dividend.

Sequoyah
(see—kwoi—ah)
Oil and Refining

Officially listed and traded in on the New York Curb

We predict a dividend increase of 50% very soon—the earnings fully warrant it; and we also predict that when this increase comes, the stock will sell at a much higher figure than present quotations.

The time to buy is now—before the rise.

We have not one share of this stock to sell you. We are brokers—buy and sell listed securities, and fill your orders at the market.

BIG LEDGE

What caused the recent slump in this issue? Is it worth prevailing prices?

We should shortly witness a boom in a line of stocks which will benefit largely by the cessation of hostilities in Europe.

Our opinion on the above will be mailed to anyone interested.
